Groceries in the Cash and Carry store took a sudden drop last week, giving the clerical force of that store much extra work. However, it was not a drop in prices. The shelves on the east side of the store gave way letting all the goods on them fall to the floor in a heap, causing a great mixture of vinegar, molasses, extracts, cereals, etc. One of the clerks pronounced it as worse than a "Duke's mixture." Everything has been replaced now, much better than they were before.

W. P. Tyson says he hated to see today come. When asked why, he told us confidentially that it is his birthday anniversary today. Tyson says that hereafter his birthdays are going to number backwards, as the girls say theirs do, and he will start growing a year younger from today, instead of older. You can make your own guess, but we'll wager you won't hit it very near unless you are well acquainted with the young gent. Anyway he shouldn't kick when he has a vacation and all this snow in which to frolic.

GRADE AUTO ACCIDENTS ARE DECREASING

For the year ending September 30, 1919, there were 44 grade fatalities and 165 injuries on the Southern Pacific line, according to reports from the office of the assistant general manager of that road. The report continues:

"In practically every instance occupants of automobiles had unobstructed view of track in both directions sufficient to enable them to observe approach of train before reaching crossing.

"As in the past, most of these accidents involved passenger trains disproportionately to the number of trains of this class which continues to emphasize the belief that misjudgment of speed of passenger trains by occupants of automobiles is a primary contributing cause to such accidents."
