So many women are worried from time to time over their unused linens which become yellow when stored away. It is an extremely simple matter to overcome this difficulty by dipping them into very blue water after washing and when dry folding them without ironing, after which they should be put away until the time comes for their use. Then they must be washed again and will come out as freshly white as when first made.

Much comment has been aroused by the display in the window of Hampton's department store in Eugene of the wedding dress worn by Mrs. Florence Douglas, of Springfield, 30 years ago. Twenty-two yards of brown satin were used in making the dress which is typical of the leading style in the latter part of the nineteenth century. On display with the dress are the boots, parasol, hat and gloves worn with the costume thirty years ago.

There are numerous ways to make leather waterproof. Melt together with gentle heat equal parts of mutton tallow and beeswax. Mix to a soft paste with castor oil and color if desired with ivory black. Apply hot. Or apply equal parts of mutton suet and beeswax without any other ingredients. Or mix with gentle heat eight ounces of raw linseed oil, four ounces of suet, three ounces of wax, one-half ounce of rosin, two and one-half ounce of turpentine and apply hot. Or melt one pound of tallow and one-half pound of rosin and apply with a brush red hot all the mixture the leather will absorb.
