Twenty five men met at the News office last Monday night to organize a volunteer fire department. H. B. Corsaw was elected temporary chairman and H. B. Freeland temporary secretary. A general discussion of the matter followed the election and finally decided to appoint a committee of three to appear before the council and ask their support of the department. The committee consisted of Jess Smitson, H. B. Freeland and Jack DeVore.

The officers of the organization were elected as follows: Jess Smitson, fire chief; Frank DePue Jr., secretary; H. B. Corsaw, treasurer.

They came to a final decision that the force should be limited to 15 men including the chief. The next meeting will be called after the city council takes action.

THINGS LOOKING BETTER

There has been much in the general conditions of the country that has been depressing. The general scaling down of prices has caused more or less of disturbance of business. Things do not come down on the same scale all the way along. There is a good deal of seesawing. There is a good deal of gambling on the part of individuals and classes about the conditions they were called upon to accept in the readjustment. The operations of various industries and lines of business activity were thrown out of line by the war demands; and much of waste and loss and clash of interest has to be encountered in getting them to going in a normal way again. The few months just past have probably seen the worst that we shall have to endure in this way.

To turn to local affairs. We have had the longest season of almost continuous rain that the country has ever known. We call the rainy season in this country winter. Although it began in the last of August, this season will probably be spoken of in the years to come as the long winter. We have come to the opening of spring, the time of renewal of general activity. The clouds will not pass away all at once. It may be just as well if we do not have a sudden change from wet to dry. We have been cooped up so long by the rainy weather that we hardly know what to do with our freedom since it has come. We are a little awkward about getting things started off. We do a good deal of fumbling. It takes us some time to get limbered up. The early farm and garden work, though starting up irregularly and with many interruptions, is coming along surprisingly well.

In a business way. The demoralization of the lumber industry, our chief industry, from the general causes mentioned above, of course is detrimental to all our interests. The negotiations going on between the various interests concerned will no doubt bring matters to a working basis before long. The natural demand, held in check so long, will assert itself. The suspension of the local mill, prolonged from week to week, of course makes something of a pinch. The uncertainty as to the time of starting up unsettles all the plans of those whose calculations are based on the mill work. We are hopeful that this suspense will soon be ended.

There has been a good deal of running down at the heel in conditions and appearances about town. Not much has been done for a good while in the way of new building or extensive repairs. The walks all over town are in bad condition. The high school building has come to a condition where it is a question from season to season whether it can be longer used or not. The recent fire left an ugly blotch in the business section of the town.

But conditions like this finally reach a point where the remedy forces itself. When a stir for better things begins in one place it extends to the whole community. It looks as though a movement upward was in sight in Springfield. Probably more cement walks have been laid in the heart of the town right along through the latter part of the rainy season than have been laid in a like period for several years. The two buildings ruined by the fire are being torn down, and plans for rebuilding are already laid or under consideration. The overwhelming sentiment brought to light in the school meeting in favor of a new high school building foreshadows the erection of such a building, probably, during this season. The activity involved in building will be a great stimulus to general business. The erection of a creditable and satisfactory building in place of the eyesore now occupying the ground and the facilities thus afforded for maintaining our high school on a proper plane of efficiency will do as much to attract desirable people and direct favorable attention to the town generally as anything that could be undertaken.

As the season opens up, we hope to be able, from time to time, to speak more definitely concerning the improvements in conditions that have been hastily sketched above.

Found a Cure for Indigestion

"I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different medicines. I am nearly fifty one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to, now," writes George W. Emory, Rock Mills Ala. These tablets contain no pepsin but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest food naturally.

The margin is very small—If you earn three dollars and save one you have marked the dividing line.

The war cost our country at least twenty billion dollars and yet that capital can be easily replaced.

If the average family of five persons will save 1250 a year for two years the deficit would be largely wiped out.
