SUCCESS WITH YOUNG STOCK
Part of Constructive Benefits Lost by Failure to Properly Develop Animals.
To breed good dairy cattle and then fail to grow and develop them is to lose part of the benefits of constructive breeding. More beginners fail because they do not properly feed the stock they buy or breed, than fail from any other cause. Find the farmers who grow out their young stock, and you will find men who are making a success in their animal husbandry enterprises.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

SCOUT SERVICE

In a report to the national council headquarters, a scoutmaster fills in the blank asking for comment upon his troop's community good turns as follows: "Did everything they could, anywhere," which seems to be typical of the spirit of scouts throughout the country. The jobs aren't always the pleasantest sort either, or the easiest, but when a scout tackles the thing he does it "for all he's worth," with brain and brawn and a right good will. Here are a few little things scouts in Birmingham did, in their "leisure hours." It looks as if these boys were not only going to be good citizens in the future, but are good citizens, here and now.

One scout repaired a bridge, cleaned mud out of two curbs and drained a ditch; half-hour time.

Five scouts removed a large pile of brush where trees had been trimmed up; 15 minutes each.

Five scouts repaired a street where it had washed out by piling rocks and brush and then dirt on top; one hour's time.

Two scouts buried a dead hen, that the city health department would not remove; 30 minutes' time.

Four scouts dug a drainway to let standing water out of the street, and opened up ten sewers and 23 gutters.

Two scouts repaired a bridge and opened four sewers and 20 gutters; ten hours.

One scout cut a dead tree which stood close by the passageway and was very dangerous to those passing; one hour.

Eleven scouts worked two hours getting water out of basement of a church, then built a fire and dried out the place.

Three scouts repaired four sewers, also raked up a lot of leaves from around a house and burned them, as they were dangerous to the community; one and one-half hours.

CHIEF SEA SCOUT REPORTS.

At the last national council meeting the chief sea scout, James A. Wilder, made this report:

"We have found our sea legs. After some backing and filling as to the best methods, we have, with the advice of some 400 executives, and others, settled on the course to be steered. This decision has steadied the sea-coast program and the taffrail log begins to register more speed. November, 1920, was our banner month, followed by the record breakers, December and January, 1920 and 1921. As we go to press, February, 1921, has already broken the record again. We have registered more ships in the last five months than in the previous three years. This is at the rate of 110 per cent increase annually.

"We have the assurance that the sea-coast program is being pushed as the official older boy program, in 87 cities. Ship's papers or preliminary steps have already been taken by 104 scout centers. In some cities, notably San Francisco, Honolulu and others, the program has been under way for several years without the registry of a single ship, because of a vote to thoroughly train leadership before admitting boys to membership. The sea-coasts, at the rate we are growing at present, will be 200 "ships" in 1922. If the last four months' increase in our number is maintained we will be, in six months, the largest seamanship training course or 'nautical school' in the United States. Swift increase is not expected in the face of such slogans as 'You must know it all the time,' 'Don't start anything you can't finish,' 'Practice makes perfect,' 'No frauds,' 'The ship is what you make her,' 'Don't give up the ship.' Nevertheless, we're already half the size of Annapolis, and as far as plain sailing goes, we are giving the same boat-seamanship program.

"Fifty navy boats have been loaned to bona-fide sea-coasts, according to regulations, and to certain sea-coast training bases. Five hundred are still available for really determined sea-coasts of schooner (or second) grade.

"The slogan is now, 'run your troop like a ship,' and in a seamanlike manner. Sea-coast centers are asked to avoid foolhardy practices, slack seamanship and frauds, and the local shipping committees are required to take a pledge that no boatwork or small boat sailing shall take place until the ship's company have qualified as lifesavers. This waiting game may not spell numbers, but spells quality."

MUCH BUTTER IS IMPORTED
Efficiency of Foreign Dairymen is Largely Responsible for Large Amount Coming Here.

The efficiency of the foreign dairyman is largely responsible for the vast amount of imported butter reaching this country. In Denmark the average cow's production is 220 pounds of butterfat a year. The average cow in this country is credited with less than 150 pounds.

First Rule of Feeding.
The first rule of successful and economical feeding of dairy cows is to give all the good roughage the cow will eat, making as much use as possible of those roughages on the farm.
