KEEP CHICKS IN BEST CONDITION

Young Fowls When Old Enough to Shift for Themselves Must Be Given Care.

NEGLECT IS CAUSE OF LOSS

Bulletin Given Out by Department of Agriculture Especially for Beginners Gives Essentials for Proper Growth.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The enthusiasm with which many poultry raisers, particularly beginners, start in the spring with young chicks sometimes lags as the season advances and the chicks get old enough to shift for themselves. If care is neglected at this period, however, success is improbable. The baby chicks may be smart little fellows from strong, vigorous parent stock, and they may have been brooded carefully for the first two or three weeks, but unless they receive proper care and management during their later growing period they will not develop properly, and many of them will be lost by sickness and disease. This is the timely warning made by poultrymen of the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1111, "Management of Growing Young Chicks," published by the department, in which is given the essentials to proper growth and development of chicks. The bulletin is written briefly and in simple terms for beginners, especially members of boys and girls' poultry clubs.

Suitable Food and Care.

The chief essentials to the proper growth of chicks, according to the bulletin, are good coops, or houses, cleanliness, proper feed and water, shade and free range. Growing chicks should be provided with large, roomy coops or houses, which will give them a comfortable place to stay at night and during stormy weather. The bulletin suggests no particular kind of house, but states it should be so built that it will provide the chicks with plenty of light, pure air and sunshine, and protect them from dampness and storms of all kinds.

Chicks should never be crowded in brood coops, for crowding will cause them to become overheated, resulting in improper growth and sometimes in dead chicks.

Sickness or disease usually starts in unclean quarters, and in such places lice and mites are always more plentiful, the bulletin says. The coops should be cleaned and sprayed once a week, and clean shavings, chaff, or sand put on the floor. Examine the

WHITE ANTS INJURE TIMBERS

Insects Enter Wood Wherever It Comes in Contact With Damp Earth and Eat Into Beams.

Winged white ants are often observed flying about houses in spring, and are sometimes supposed to have come in from outside. The bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture explains that these winged insects really are hatched inside the buildings, and usually are to be taken as indicating nests of wingless white ants working destruction in the timbers.

These insects, which really are not properly ants, enter the wood wherever it comes in contact with damp earth, and often eat into the center of an upright beam without manifesting their presence on the outside until the wood is entirely ruined, and possibly a settling and cracking of the building has resulted.

The department urges that buildings be constructed with such foundations that no wood touches the ground, chicks and houses often for lice and mites, and if found they should be gotten rid of at once. Farmers' Bulletin 1110 gives directions for fighting lice and mites.

Feed Right for Rapid Growth.

The three kinds of feeds most necessary for rapid growth are grain feed, green feed and dry mash. A grain mixture should be fed night and morning, giving as large a quantity as the chicks will eat clean, but no more. A good mixture for growing chicks consists of
