Ernest S. Sergeant, president of the Butler and Sergeant, Inc., of New York, who is visiting the west to study the dried fruit situation, made the following remark at a large gathering of prune growers: "The county passed its critical financial point about the middle of July of this year and from this time forward business will be on a steady, gradual increase."

FORESTALLING DANGER OF A PACIFIC WAR

After thirty years of color blindness and after a World War, Washington has at last realized that the danger point of America's political relations with foreign countries lies in the Pacific, rather than the Atlantic. While both Latin America and the United States were weak, the storm hovered in the south. Now that the strength of the Union and the anaemia of Europe have dispelled the clouds, the ever-present cyclone area over the Pacific is receiving deserved recognition.

Today the crying need of every industrial nation is markets. The eight or nine hundred million people round the Pacific's rim, the undeveloped countries washed by its waves, offer the greatest outlet for commodities and surplus populations on earth. Is this great market, are these great undeveloped resources to be parcelled out in slices and strips for exclusive consumption by Japan, England and France, with Uncle Sam on the outside looking in, or shall all countries have an equal chance everywhere in the territory to capture by strictly commercial methods that share of the trade to which their non-political efforts entitle them? That is the fundamental aspect of the Pacific problems to be discussed in the conference called by President Harding.

For many decades, America has been the sole champion of the Open Door in the Orient—by words, not deeds. America proclaimed a principle, but allowed constant violations of it to go unchallenged. Not heeding the Oriental markets and resources America was not ready to fight for them. Now Harding is trying the other tack. He is endeavoring to demonstrate that modern war costs the victors far more than the maximum spoils are worth. On the basis of this demonstration he is asking the so-called great powers to quit piling up more armaments for unprofitable wars, to get together and arrange for peaceable, free competition in the Pacific Basin.

More power to his efforts. They may succeed—provided no nation feels itself strong enough to try to hog it all.—Sunset.

street cars constantly have been slow to believe that there was a street car company anywhere that was not making a pile of money. It has been hard to convince them of the necessity of a raise above the old standard fare of five cents, when a street car company asked it. The company which has been performing the greater part of the street car service in Des Moines, Iowa, a city of something near 150,000 population, has been operating under a franchise which limited the fare to five cents. With the general rise in prices brought on by the war, the company began to run behind heavily. The laws of Iowa provided no relief from the terms of the contract. No legal remedy has yet been found. The street railway system has been in the hands of a receiver for several years. The receiver had no means of providing for the deficit.

Recently the holders of the bonds and mortgages of the company refused to stand the loss any longer. The receiver applied to the federal court for relief. There appearing to be no other remedy in sight, the court ordered the company to cease operating the lines. So, at the end of their last runs before midnight on a certain night recently all the cars of this region were parked at the car barns; and from that time on the greater part of the population of Des Moines—about 80,000 it was estimated—began to scheme to reach their objective points by buses, taxis, autos, buggies, wagons, motorcycles, bicycles, afoot and about any way their ingenuity could devise; one doing the errands for a dozen; and a condition bordering on stagnation falling on all the local business of the city.

The indebtedness of the company including bonds and mortgages, was estimated at $7,500,000.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

T. S. Land office at Roseburg, Ore., July 26, 1921.

Notice is hereby given that Mike G. Kaatz, of Wendling, Oregon, who, on May 25, 1920, made Homestead entry serial No. 012861, for W½ NE¼, Section 9, Township 16S, Range 1W, Willamette Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final three year Proof, to establish claim to the above described, before E. O. Immel, U. S. Commissioner at his office, at Eugene Oregon, on the 6th day of September, 1921.

Claimant names as witnesses: Herbert J. Downing, of Wendling, Ore.

W. H. CANNON, Register.

Same Old Story But a Good One.

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Lane County.

Lucius Sherman, plaintiff, vs. Ella May Sherman, defendant.

To Ella May Sherman, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby summoned and required to be and appear in the above entitled Court and cause and answer the complaint of the plaintiff on file herein against you within six weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons to-wit, July 21st 1921 and if you so fail to appear and answer thereto within said time, plaintiff will apply to the Court for a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing by and between you and the plaintiff, and for the custody of the minor child, Lottie Sherman, and for full relief.

This summons is served upon you by publication in the Springfield News, a newspaper published in Springfield, Lane County, Oregon, for six consecutive weeks by order of the Hon. C. P. Barnard, County Judge of Lane County, Oregon, made and entered of record July 18th, 1921.

"Just Between You and Me" says the Good Judge

Here's genuine chewing satisfaction for you, hooked up with real economy. A small chew of this class of tobacco lasts much longer than a big chew of the ordinary kind—that's because the full, rich, real tobacco taste lasts so long. Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.
