Marshal Donaldson took Lee Sankey to Eugene last Thursday morning and started him on the way to the state industrial school. He has been under the care of the county probation officer for some time, has repeatedly violated his parole and has been before the recorder a time or two. His father was willing for him to go, for he could not control him. There are several other boys that are headed for the same station unless they mend their ways soon.

On Tuesday, the opening day of the county fair, a reunion of early settlers of the county was held in a tent on the fair grounds. Fifty or sixty were present. Rev. P. R. Burnett, of Eugene, was the earliest settler present. He crossed the plains with his parents with an ox team in 1846. Among those who made addresses were Melvin Fenwick, F. M. Wilkins and Henry Matthews. These three were appointed a committee to arrange for a reunion next June.

Miss Lucile Smith spent last week with her father here. She left on Saturday, to be ready for the opening of her school on Monday. She is teaching where she taught last year, near Astoria. Her sister Olive commenced her school work in Portland a week earlier. They returned from their eastern trip a week before that.

HOW COTTAGE GROVE CAME TO BE INCORPORATED

Several persons were in conversation, a few days ago, in Mr. Masters' store, in Z. T. Collins' building, in West Springfield. Mr. Collins was present. Some remarks were made

The Ideal Purgative.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.

about the improvements that had been going on in West Springfield in the past few months. Some one remarked that West Springfield would be incorporated soon. Mr. Collins who lived at Cottage Grove in the days of its infancy, about thirty-five years ago, propounded this challenge: "I'll bet none of you can guess in a thousand guesses how Cottage Grove came to be incorporated." That was a big leeway, if there had been anything at stake on the effort; but they all gave it up. Then he related the history.

There was a great number of hogs in the village, running at large. They occupied every shady spot, under the trees, under the houses, against the fences and the walls of the houses, and in every position of vantage. The lower parts of the walls were plastered with the mud the hogs had rubbed off. These items of description are not in Mr. Collins' exact words. As a result of this state of things, the place was overrun with fleas.

One day several of the citizens of the village were in a store or shop, and they fell to discussing the flea nuisance, between scratches. The question was raised how they could be gotten rid of. Finally, one bright genius proposed that they incorporate. The idea took with the crowd, it was passed on to the other residents of the village, and in due course of time was carried out.

So, according to Mr. Collins' account Cottage Grove was incorporated as a means of bringing the fleas under legal control. And it worked.

NEW ENTERPRISES IN WEST SPRINGFIELD

Some time after O. F. Bevere moved his stock of merchandise and his gasoline service station from his former stand at the Collins store building in West Springfield to his present location at the crossing near the school house, T. B. Masters rented the Collins building, put in a light stock of merchandise and put up a small service station in front of it.

H. L. Mooney and family lately came from Sutherlin, and settled in West Springfield, or Glenwood, as the people there generally prefer to call it now. He and his son Lloyd are putting up a light frame building just south of the Collins building, and expect to open a garage and automobile repair shop in it. The family are at present living in a tent in the rear of the shop, but they expect to make other arrangements for the winter.

ANOTHER CHANGE SUGGESTED

A writer in the Eugene Register of recent date suggests that the county court purchase the street car bridge, and the right of way from the point where the street car line now crosses the Pacific highway into Springfield, and divert the highway over this line. His plan seems to contemplate the rebuilding of this bridge, which would certainly be a necessity, and the abandonment of the present highway bridge. His principal argument is that it would shorten the McKenzie highway, which it would, by a few hundred feet.

It would take a lot of fine figuring to balance up the disadvantages, in accessibility and distance of such a change to different localities and different individuals. Perhaps some of the people about Springfield, West Springfield, down the Goshen way or up the valley may have something to offer concerning some of these projects, while talk of change is in the air.

The Key that Unlocks the Door to Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation, and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.
