Chas. Hall has filed his petition as an independent candidate for governor. The secretary of state was reported, a day or two ago, as awaiting an opinion from the attorney general as to whether Mr. Hall's name can be legally placed on the ballot or not.

L. L. Ray, of Eugene, has announced his withdrawal from his candidacy on the Democratic ticket for state senator, because of the projection into the campaign of issues sectarian and otherwise outside of the proper field of politics. This leaves the field clear, at present, for J. S. Magladry.

"These knee-length dresses have accomplished one good, at least. Nobody ever blushes, nowadays, at mention of a woman's 'leg', or calls it a 'limb'—Oregonian editorial. Nobody ever blushes at anything, nowadays. Blushing is out of date. There is nothing left to blush about.

A recent news letter from Washington, D. C. sets forth that children in the District of Columbia are required to attend school up to the age of 14, the lowest age fixed by any state in the union. Thirty-two states fix the age at 16, and each year from 14 to 18 is the limit fixed by some of the states. But the laws of the district do not prescribe any course of study and does not specify the character or degree of education that shall be required. The congress of the United States is the legislative body of the District of Columbia and the single in-

Get Ready for Prosperity

AND the best way to do it is to get the savings habit now. Then it will be so firmly established that you can't shake it loose when money comes easier, and buys more.

Because you know what the temptation is going to be. You are going to forget all the lessons of thrift you necessarily learned the last two years, and you're going to throw money around good and plenty. That is, unless you dig right into saving and investing.

stance given above should furnish a sufficient reason why the citizens of the district should desire to have their local affairs regulated by a body of their own permanent citizens, whose members would have a citizens interest in studying and providing for its peculiar local needs.

VOTE FOR IT

Referring to the "Exposition Tax Amendment," on the ballot at the coming election, a bulletin from the exposition headquarters says: "The measure on the ballot at the November election will Permit Portland to tax itself for the exposition, and no other section of Oregon is to be taxed."

And again: "The point will be emphasized in every community that all Portland asks is permission from the voters to tax itself to raise money for the exposition, but that this will be beneficial to every county in Oregon."

Portland cannot tax herself for this purpose without the permission of the state at large. It would seem that the voters of the rest of the state should be willing to grant her this permission. But there will be voters at the last that will be afraid to put the cross on this measure for fear they will be voting some burden on themselves.

MORE, BUT WHERE?

A brief, pointed, well written bulletin issued from the mayor's office in Portland in behalf of the 1925 exposition, contains these two sentences, and these two sentences contain food for thought for all the people of Oregon, especially for those living in the outer part of the state:

"There are fine opportunities for business, farmers and investments in every county of this state. We need more pop-

The Ideal Purgative

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.

ulation and more capital to develop industries."

A very common remark, heard all about us, in various terms, is this: "The crying need of Oregon is more population outside of Portland." Say a hundred thousand or so distributed through eastern Oregon.

This paper is published in a small town in western Oregon, but it does not desire to have all the additional population located in Springfield. Western Oregon would be more prosperous if there were more people in eastern Oregon. The whole state would be better off if its population were better balanced; and the balancing can be done best by filling up the thinly populated parts with new people.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM VARIOUS SOURCES

Of the armies of the world, as they now stand, Russia's is the largest, 1,370,000; China's second, 1,083,000; France's third, 818,000; Abyssinia's an eastern African country, but little known to our people fourth, 571,000; Greece's fifth, 310,000; the United States', fourteenth, 158,000. The numbers of these armies, however, are by no means a gauge of their effective strength. For instance, the army of Abyssinia or of China would be no match for Greece's army of 310,000 or Japan's of 302,000 or our own.

Surgeons performing an operation on a lady patient in a Chicago hospital, inserted a tube of radium in the incision. It burned its way into her body where it could not be reached without another operation. She submitted to it to save the doctors the loss of fourteen thousand dollars of radium. It is not stated how much the doctors paid her for the privilege of making the second operation. Some of these days, some one not so scrupulous as this woman will be wanting to have his body charged with radium and then transport to parts unknown.

The Key that Unlocks the Door to Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy, when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

Three brakes on many cars ~ and one is always set

As much as 20% of the power at the rear or driving wheels of the automobile may be lost through the use of an incorrect oil. Too heavy an oil, or one lacking in certain qualities, acts as a brake on the car.

The ideal oil is the thinnest oil which will keep the bearing parts separated, and at the same time offer in itself the least frictional resistance to the engine power going to the driving wheels.

This oil, providing it has "oiliness," stability and purity, will give perfect lubrication and permit the development of the maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage of the car.

Zerolene fills all these requirements perfectly.

The Ideal Oil

All bearing clearances decrease under the heat of operation.

Analysis of Zerolene shows that the differences in its body at the various engine temperatures, from cold to operating temperature, follow in close relation the decrease in bearing clearances.

For this reason Zerolene oils have at all operating temperatures exactly the required body to splash and flow freely into the last-moving, small-clearance bearings to provide an adequate film of lubricant.

Because of this and its "oiliness," stability and purity, Zerolene gives perfect lubrication under all conditions of engine operation, and permits the development of the maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage of the car.
