'ISLE OF LOST SHIPS' IS THRILL AT BELL THEATRE

"The Isle of Lost Ships" probably holds the record for the number of thrills and unusual situations it contains. The picture, produced by M. C. Levee for First National and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur, has a locale never before used in a photoplay—the Sargasso Sea. The characters in the drama are the survivors of numerous shipwrecks, sucked to the center of the mass of seaweed, where they establish a colony. Crittenden Marriott, the famous author, has furnished a plot that is strikingly original and fascinating. The picture is playing at the Bell Theatre Saturday.

Shipping Wide Lumber

The Booth-Kelly sawmill has been turning out extra wide lumber this week no order from Roseburg. The order calls for green clear cedar surfaced on two sides. The timbers are 1 by 16, and 1 by 20, 14 feet and longer. To turn them out it is necessary to sort the logs to find the large ones.

NEW MARY PICKFORD STRONG ATTRACTION

Capacity Audiences Throng the Rex Theatre to See "Rosita"

Seldom has there been shown such pronounced interest in any photoplay yet presented in Eugene at the Rex theatre, as that evidenced by the audiences crowding to see Mary Pickford in "Rosita." This United Artists attraction is creating more discussion and bringing a most diversified patronage. Manager says he has seen more new faces; people who have never been to his theatre heretofore, coming to see the different Mary Pickford.

It is perhaps the combination of a favorite star in an entirely different role which is making this screen event so notable, but it is also certain the fact that Miss Pickford is a portrayal of a grown-up young woman has greatly enhanced her triumph and histrionic ability, which has had this marked effect in intensifying the public interest.

It is clearly evident that Miss Pickford has spared no expense in making "Rosita" her greatest production to date.
