Bigger and Better Than Ever

Rebuilding the home of the Pacific International Livestock Exposition

Above are pictured the new buildings, August 23rd, just one month after the fire. When people heard that the Pacific International Livestock Exposition at Portland had been destroyed, it was like a blow in the face. But the indomitable spirits who formed it first, who labored for its establishment and continuance were not daunted.

Within a few days, work had been begun on a new home, "bigger and better than ever," and now it is nearing completion. The contractors have promised to have it done and ready for occupancy by October 25th, and the great Exposition will open its doors to the public on the morning of November 1st with a larger and more beautiful show than ever in its history.

The new structure is modeled in general after the old one, for the arrangement and plan of the former one was hard to beat. The stadium has been enlarged, however, and forty feet have been added to its length, and the seating capacity has been increased to 7000.

The horse department has been enlarged and improved, as has the poultry department, while the boys' and girls' clubs will have a department exclusively for their exhibits.

Magnificent animals from all over the United States will show what breeding and scientific care can do with the race of dairy cows. World record animals of various breeds are promised and the dairy department will be a union of beauty and utility not to be surpassed anywhere in the world. The breeders of cattle vie with each other for numbers and excellence, and there is always a sportsmanlike struggle in the show ring between breeders for the coveted blue ribbons.

Collected within the walls of the immense Exposition building are not only the finest dairy cattle to be found anywhere in the world, but hundreds of other animals, representing the time, labor and thought and work of centuries to bring them to as near perfection as the ingenuity of man can compass. Nor is this all. The products of the soil in their glory of color and fragrance, the accomplishments of the boys and girls in useful endeavor and other things worthy of study and enjoyment will be found at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, November 1 to 8 inclusive.

The formal schedule for the landscape garden dealing with fall planting and pruning and ordering and handling nursery stock, by Prof. A. B. Beck, is one subject for October 21. Late fall and winter vegetables, including storage, by Prof. A. G. Bouquet, is the other. Subjects for every Tuesday evening will be sent to all weekly newspapers in time for publication the week before. Among some of those already scheduled are the following:
