Poem by Uncle John

THOUGH it's called "The old, old story" it is ever, ever new, from the embers of Redemption's blessed past; over nine-hundred Christmases have voiced allegiance true—each Christmas morn more hallowed than the last. We celebrate this birthday with the anthem and the feast, for the shepherds must be diligent as when they saw "the bright an' mornin' star" a-glazin' in the east, an' heard the strains of "Peace, Good-will to Men." We contemplate the table, loaded down with blessin's rare, provided by a gracious Master-hand, while faith endows ability to feel His presence there,—it's a faith that all His children understand. Let doubts an' fears assail us by whatever law they may—we'll treat 'em with the dignity of scorn—and pray divine forgiveness on this blessed Christmas-day, from evil thoughts to which all flesh is born. Lord, give us strength and meekness in the journey as we run, for Thou hast conquered death, that we may live. Go with us through the shadders till the spell of life is done,—remember to forgive us we forgive.

UPPER WILLAMETTE

Mr. and Mrs. Will Churchill were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Knatson at Trent Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hays, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Phelps and family plan to leave Wednesday afternoon for Roseburg to spend the holidays with relatives.

The Pleasant Hill high school team beat the Lorane team Friday night December 20 by a score of 23 to 14. Owing to the severe weather very few were present at the game as the gymnasium is not heated.

Elmer and Ernest Olson and their sister Mabel Olson, arrived at their home at Edenville Saturday morning, to spend the holidays with their father and sisters. Miss Mabel Olson is attending Normal at Monmouth this year and the boys are employed in Washington.

On Saturday December 21, the Wheelers of Pleasant Hill were the envy of their neighbors as they went briskly to church and return in a sled drawn by two horses. There was a time when those who had autos were envied but a sleigh and span of horses would have been welcomed by any one Sunday.

E. B. Tinker received a telegram Monday telling of the death of Charles Goranson at Whittier, California, last week. Mr. Goranson was formerly associated with Mr. Tinker in the mining business in Arizona and Canada and visited him in Oregon for several months four years ago. He was a member of the Elks Club at Globe, Arizona.

The young folks of the Christian Endeavor society had a pleasant time Saturday December 20, when they gathered in the Endeavor rooms at the church for a Christmas social. A well decorated tree was covered with small gifts, each bearing a number. Numbers were then distributed to the members and the gifts given out. As most of them were small toys the young folks became wee tots for a few hours and had much merriment playing and quarreling over their toys.

The Pleasant Hill public school and the high school will have Christmas trees Wednesday and then dismiss until Monday after New Years.

A few of the mothers and the teachers of the Pleasant Hill public school met Sunday and completed arrangements for the Carnival to be given New Years Day at Woodman Hall. The following chairmen were appointed: Mrs. Andy Olson, candy booth; Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Tinker miscellaneous booth; phonograph music, Mrs. E. Y. Swift, fortune telling, Mrs. Kabler, Mrs. Hays vaudeville; Mrs. Phelps museum and wax dolls, Mrs. C. L. Williams fish pond. There will be a Queen and two clowns, and a cafeteria. Supper to add to the success of the carnival.

Eighth Grade Examination

The uniform state eighth grade examinations will be given at schools which have pupils who have complied with the conditions the law imposes and for whom questions have been asked, on Thursday and Friday January 8 and 9, 1925.

U. S. Awakening to Properly Equipped Air Force Need

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—France has 50,000 aeroplanes in actual service.

Japan has seventeen factories working night and day turning out aeroplanes.

England has an air Admiralty and a startling national development in aeronautics.

America invented the aeroplane, but America has no air service worthy of consideration.

These facts have burned themselves into the mind of President Coolidge. Quickly he has been digesting the growing content of the press on this subject. Calmly and without any splash he has been analyzing the situation relative to our national defense. Now, without any dramatic message he has set out to give America her proper and sensible place in the air.

The president is disposed to believe the aeroplane is destined to supplant the battleship as our first line of defense. He is determined to know whether his judgment is correct. He has put the subject before an expert board and ordered a thorough investigation and report. While the war experts are working out their problem the president has sent to the budget bureau for facts and figures covering the small appropriations allotted to the various government departments for aeroplane purposes.

Want Air Department and Secretary in Cabinet.

Peculiarly, while the President is thus pressing his inquiry, Charles F. Curry, Representative from California, has introduced a bill providing for the creation of a department of aeronautics to be headed by a Secretary of Aeronautics who would have a place in the cabinet and direct the entire aviation plans of the government. It is not known whether this measure comes as a result of conversations with the president or indirectly at his suggestion, or whether the provisions to its logical end, regardless of its sole creation of Mr. Curry, but there is every reason to believe the President looks with favor on the move.

Unless the political dragon shows its head such a measure stands a strong chance of adoption. Certainly it will lead to a greater unification of the air service. The president seems determined no longer to permit the service to remain as the unfortunate veriform appendix of our other governmental bodies to be cut out whenever a financial pain is felt.

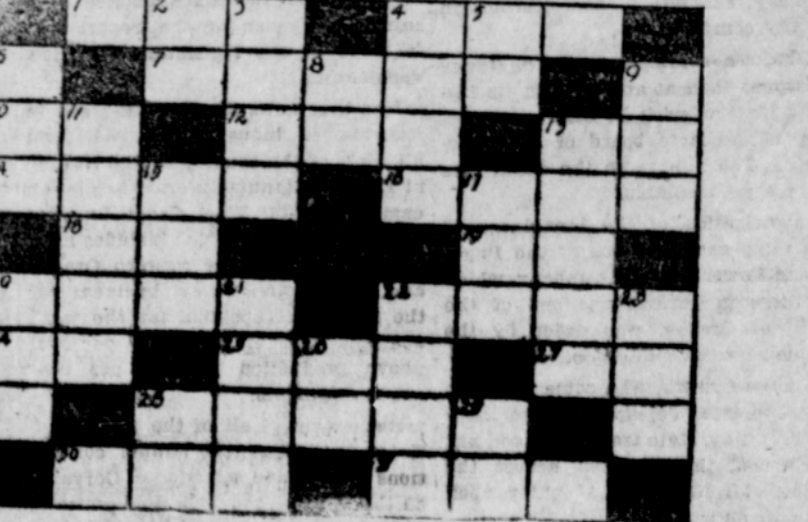

The naval policy of the government seems fairly well defined. The navy will be kept up to full strength, but no more. This it is felt will permit the reasonable expenditure for the development of our air service.

Whether the expansion will come, as suggested, through the more extensive use of aeroplanes by the Post Office department, is not known, though some of the members of the Congress who are strongly in favor of a vigorous aeronautics programme believe this would be a wise way to meet the situation. They contend that a great air mail service should be established and bring to the government such income as it might be reasonable to expect. The balance of the cost could properly be charged to the cost of peace.

President Senses Value of Yankees in Air

Here and there complaint is heard that the development in aeronautics is so electrical that as soon as one type of aeroplane built is obsolete. The President, however pays no attention to such arguments. He knows that the scrapping of aeroplanes is nothing to the cost of scrapping battleships. He senses the fact that one daredevil American with some high explosive and Yankee pluck can sink a battleship with its thousand or eighteen hundred men in the twinkling of an eye. It is safe to say that now the President has set himself to this investigation it will be persuaded its logical end, regardless of its influence or politics.
