Sallie's Temptations

Curtis Wright is Kind--Too Kind

"Curtis!" I called. He looked up from a pile of letters on the table.

"Sallie!" he advanced with outstretched arms but when he came close to me, he stopped suddenly and an expression of astonishment swept over his face. The glare of early morning streamed through the windows and fell directly on my figure and face, bathing me in its pitiless light.

"What on earth is the matter?" he asked. "Look, Child you're cold and wet," he exclaimed. My coat had fallen open and he had seen my dripping gown.

"And Sallie, your feet! Where are your shoes?" he called and in rapid succession the questions came. "Who brought you home?" and the kindly tone of concern in his voice gave way to one of suspicion and doubt.

"Joe Schuyler—but he's gone," as Curtis started toward the door.

"Come here," I demanded. He came across the room.

"Please tell me that you love me and that you won't ever leave me entirely alone again. I'm so tired. I can't stand it if you fuss."

"I'm not going to scold you, child. In your condition, the best thing for you to do is to get into bed. 'Mom Nellie will help you undress' he said.

"Oh, I'm so cold!" I shuddered. "Hold my hands, Curtis, hold my hands," I pleaded and pulled him down on a divan.

He rubbed my hands, each finger separately, briskly and the flow of blood began.

"You poor little fellow!" he murmured sympathetically. "You're cold through and through." He removed my mules and rubbed my feet as he had my hands. "Now go to your room and get out of those clothes," he admonished. "This is a fine way to catch pneumonia," he added as I ran upstairs.

Mom Nellie put me to bed and covered me snugly with blankets galore. Someone wrapped.

"Come in," I called. It was Curtis standing with a hot water bottle in his hand.

"I thought shir might need this," I heard him whisper. "She was so thoroughly chilled."

I was thrilled at his voice. "Lor' bless you Mister Curtis!" Mom Nellie said. "Tee gonna give dat child a hot mustard foot baf. Its bettern all de hot water bottles in de world. Fine pusson I'd be lettin dat lam' ketch de Flu while her papa done gone an left her in my charge."

"Curtis, come here, I called him again.

"Stay, Mom Nellie" he nodded to her as she was about to leave. Then he came toward the bed.

"Do you love me?" I asked. "Are you perfectly comfortable?" was his reply.

I nodded. "Thank you, yes," I replied. "Oh you are such a dear. Curtis, I wanted to tell you about to-night. It wasn't because I didn't love you. I was thinking about you and missing you every minute but they just "Never mind about that now Sallie, make me take too much wine." the thing for you to do is to go to sleep and sleep hard."

"Why, do I look like a hag?" "No," he replied. "You look like a precious, beautiful, little angel—but you're not!" and he was gone.

I woke with an awful start. Ellie had jumped into bed with me in her hat, fur coat, gloves and even a corsage.

"Lo, little boy, where'd you come from?" I asked, rubbing my eyes.

"A fine, rousing welcome you give your guests," she laughed, hugging me close. "Sallie, what on earth are you doing, you look like the wrath of God."

I hopped out of bed. I did look much worse for wear. My complexion had a peculiar ralyish tinge and there were deep, violet shadows under my eyes.

My thoughts rushed to Curtis. I wondered if I looked like this when he saw me at dawn. I'd probably never see him again if I did. He had been kind to me but he would be to anyone in trouble. And what did he mean by saying I "looked like an angel but was not."

"Ellie, please go down and talk up my stock to Curtis Wright. You'll find him somewhere. I'm so in love with him and I've acted like a perfect nut."

"Thrills and heart throbs!" Ellie exclaimed, "but I won't find the object of your youthful dreams. While coming from the station, I saw him driving with a very pretty young girl.

LOCAL GIRLS HELPS IN MEMORIAL CAMPAIGN

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Feb. 29.—Thelma Cole of Springfield, sophomore in vocational education, has had a part in raising more than $300,000 of the $500,000 required to erect a Memorial Union building on the campus. Miss Cole served in the capacity of lieutenant during the campaign.

Inspired by the example of the men who gave their lives in the Spanish-American and World Wars, students and faculty members contributed $263,000 to the project in less than a week. Of this sum faculty members pledged $31,000. Alumni in Portland and business men of Corvallis have contributed nearly $40,000 in campaigns not yet completed. With less than $200,000 to be raised and the entire alumni field practically untapped the financial goal of $500,000 will be reached by April 1, say those in charge.

The building is planned for completion in the fall of 1926. The plans offered by Lee Thomas, '07 architect, provide for a building 200 feet square and towering to a height of 180 feet. It is designed in keeping with the campus building plan, yet has the added attraction of classic architecture.

In the building will be offices for the various student organizations now scattered over the entire campus, and separate gathering places for men and women with appropriate rest and reading rooms. The rotunda, with a seating capacity of 500 to 800, will probably be utilized by large gatherings such as the alumni union in the spring.
