SKINS OF THE PEOPLE AND FUNCTIONS PERFORMED

Written for the Oregon Tuberculosis Association by Dr. B. S. Herben of New York

Taking away the skins of the people is something any summer sun can do. Behold the blisters and the peeling of the beach combers indirectly intense heat may cause loss of skin for heat rash, with its itching, leads the finger into mischievous diggings. The suffering which hot weather brings is not always due to spectacular stroke or prostration but may be brought about by various skin diseases and irritations and of these summer sufferers little children and infants rank first. The attendant loss of appetite and sleep undermines the health and this together with other factors may cause diarrhea and similar serious conditions to follow in the wake of a heat wave.

Sunburns should be treated with the same respect that you would give to burns from any other cause. Slight redness without soreness can be relieved by a bath of cold water. Deeper burns should be covered with bland powders and ointments and blistered skins should be dressed by the family physician that they may not become infected or leave scars.

Heat rash or prickly heat is a disease of the glands in the skin which produce the sweat, that cooling moisture on the surface which keeps the body from having fever on hot days. These glands if compelled to overwork become irritated and inflamed. Compulsion is exerted by intense heat to much clothing, working in high artificial heat, and over-indulgence in alcoholic drinks.

The trunk is usually first involved in heat rash through the tiny cyst-like points surrounded with red halos may spread and cover most of the body. Itching and burning develop to make the patient restless, cross and sometime feverish and even nauseated.

Absolute cleanliness of the skin is essential. Dusting powders may be used and thick applications of ordinary baking powder made wet enough to stick on the skin relieves the itching. Menthol and other special medicines should be prescribed by the family doctor, and he should be entrusted with the treatment in all severe cases lest serious skin infections or eczema develop.

Tan is a protection and evidence of healthy reactions. Freckles are results of imperfect tanning, harmless as long as unhealed. Your skin is part of your cooling system, keep it clean and in working order.

Oldest Rider was Rivett

Rivett rode in the parade, juggling a piece decorated with flags on his head. He did not mind losing the medal so much as he did the Eugene papers calling him Bill Knickerbocker.
