Sallie's Temptations

A few days passed. Then came the night of the opening of Jacksonville's most beautiful country club in Oretga on the St. Johns. It had been decided that a costume ball would celebrate the event and because father was president of the club, he and I had been asked to lead. Costumes had been planned weeks ahead and the members were on tip-toe of expectation for more than one reason. It was said that Anne and Curtiss would both be there.

With flutters of pleasureable excitement, I dressed for the dance. Days before they had sent my costume from an importer in New York. It was Oriental in feeling and very lovely. The Mandarin jacket was softly pink like the first shy clouds of dawn and the rich satin trousers were copies of those worn by the royal chinese family. Bizarre and vivid jewels for my body and hair made the tout ensemble one of unusual brilliance and the many gems flashed fitfully as I moved about.

"De Lord have mucky on ma' soul," exclaimed Mom Nellie when I passed in review. "if dat lam' ain't zackly lak a boy chile in dem ill' pants. You'll sho be knockin' de eyes plum outer dey heads dis night."

"Thank you, Mom Nellie, but remember what I've told you before. It makes a difference when you see people through eyes of love. Your little Sallie's not so great!"

Fater was 'almost boisterous in his approval and so after turning me around several times for a final inspection, we were off.

Upon arriving, we found the spacious club had been transformed into a Chinese palace suggesting the magnificence of the dynasty of Ming. Silks and rare tapestries, handsomely emossed in gold dragons and heavily-padded chrysanthemums, covered the walls. From the ceiling were swung myriad lanterns of colored glass, the glow of which danced to the far corners of the room, bathing all in an atmosphere of mystery and romance.

Suddenly, the muffled sound of an orchestra played a Chinese march and the room was invaded by six little figures in Oriental attire. They waved their fans and tottered toward two tremendous tea boxes patterned in motifs grotesquely bright. They struck the tea boxes and the room was thronged with Chinese subjects garbed in robes of great splendor, each being original in its design.

Then, up flared the lights and now, indeed, did the room, with its fine trappings, take on a festive air while their escorts were in the tea boxes, the fair ladies of their choice had stood attentively around the walls intrigued with the elaborate ceremonies being performed. To lend variety to the event, they had been asked to bedeck themselves in fancy array and now as they moved over the floor to a twentieth century tune, the scene was one of kaleidoscopic delight. Here were Sicilian maidens, balloon girls, Alsatian peasants, bewitching nomads, Dutch flower vendors, Alpine beauties, Colonial ladies in bouffant satin and powdered coiffures piled high on their shapely heads, Night in her resplendent glory, whirled by and proud Castilian belles with mantillas of costly black lace.

Everyone was sweet and cordial to me as if they had long ago grown tired of trying to make gossip about anyone who had been as uninterestingly orthodox in their behavior as I had been during the last few months. Besides, as far as scandal went, tonight Anne occupied the center of the stage.

She seemed to be everywhere and for the first time in her life was wearing black. With Anne's cleverness for effort, one would have thought that tonight of all times, she would have chosen a sweet and simple costume, like her frocks, which always gave one the impression that she was the fresh and innocent type. But, no; it was a new Anne who came to this dance—a daring Anne who wore the most sportive costume of all the gala throng. I heard someone ask her what she was supposed to represent.

"A good time, for a change," she said and threw back her head. Indeed she might have been described as Vice. A brief frock of black satin came just above her knees. From her waist line were innumerable ribbons of red that fell miniature cards, cigarettes and tiny bottles of liquor that had probably been used as samples in the days of saloons. On her head, poised at a rakish angle, was a "put and take" top with each of its sides cleverly marked. Her crowning achievement, however, was a pair of square earrings made of enormous dice. In some way, they had been made electrical and twinkled intermittently with light. Slippers of black satin with heels of brilliant red, and chiffon hose completed her conspicuous attire.

More than ever, I had the presentiment that within the next few hours many startling things would come about.

Where Education is Done. Visitor:—"Do you feel that the effort and sacrifice in sending your son through college was worth it?" Fond Wife:—"Oh yes indeed—it for no other reason, the wonderful education it has given his father."

It's Tough on Ma!

(To Have the Kids Back in School.)

A REAL Kid BY HIMSELF is generally a rather quiet peaceable sort of animal, but gosh, what a difference when he gets buzzin around with a dozen OTHER Kids! Without a quiver he changes in ONE MINUTE from a calm judicial sort of human into a rip roarin, fast moving peace buster!

And THIS transformation sure means plenty trouble for mothers. Black eyes, scuffed elbows, shins, noodles and knuckles are only samples. For in addition to bruises, the youngster has only a vague notion concerning what constitutes a REASONABLE amount of FOOD! The list of foodstuff he swallows pleasantly makes a boa constrictor green with envy!

It behooves Mothers with Boys and Girls to get our list of FIRST AIDS and arrange to KEEP THEM ON HAND at home!

Healing Ointment

Nature in most cases will see to it that the average wound heals over, but why lean on Nature when with a good ointment such as Arnica and Witch Hazel Compound you can hurry said healing?

A Clever Conceit!

It's called a compact, but it's got a little hootnanny arrangement which with a simple twist, inlooses JUST ENUF powder on the puff to take off the 'shine,' $1.50.

Lazy Eaters!

Malted Milk plus an egg plus some chocolate is My idea of lazy eating! It's so pleasant and successful, however, that I really can't knock the idea VERY much. Try one.

A He-Scratch!

He-combs are just as necessary to feminine Contentment as Bobbed Hair combs. He-combs make you easier to look at and makes her eyes glisten! Think this over.

Goggles!

A "Goggle" is a protection agin glaring headlights at night and work with equal efficiency on grey, blue and black eyes. Don't bother about this ad if you already have a pair.

NO COMPANY'S NOT COMING

If you drop a dish cloth, company won't come, save as a matter of coincidence. Popular superstitions like this are losing ground; so is the superstition that there is something mysteriously better about "eastern" motor lubricants, merely because they cost more and are made in the east.

The Right Way to Judge Motor Oils

More than ever, motorists are discovering that the test of an oil is not where but how it is made, and how it lubricates. That's why Zerolene—refined from selected western naphthenic base crudes—is today successfully lubricating more cars in the Pacific Coast states than any other oil made.

An Exclusive Process—What it Does

Lubricating qualities have never been more carefully or successfully preserved than by the processes used at Standard Oil Company refineries for the refining of Zerolene—the Zerolene high-vacuum process, the Zerolene process of filtration through 40 tons of Florida Fuller's Earth, the refineries' 15 positive checks for quality!

What Zerolene Will Do For Your Car

Zerolene will give your car better lubrication: it increases the gasoline mileage, reduces carbon-removal and maintenance costs and lengthens the life of any engine in which it is used. Why pay tribute to a superstition? Insist on Zerolene. Always ask for Zerolene by name.

Get the Facts!

A series of independent and impartial reports showing the experience of large users with Zerolene motor oil has been collected in our booklet, "Why Pay Tribute to a Superstition?" Ask any Standard Oil Company representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.

Insist on Zerolene—even if it does cost less
