Several business houses have been painting up during the last few weeks. There are a good many more that need it. A little effort along this line together with the new buildings will change the entire appearance of Main street.

Spending his summer in Paris is the privilege allowed his 16 year-old son by General Pershing. Envy of other boys may be reduced somewhat when they learn he is working as a laborer in an automobile factory.

International coiffeurs, meeting in Berlin tell us that milady is to wear a white wig, with a boyish bob. Maybe. The old will agree to be made youthful, but when it comes to making youth silver haired,—good afternoon shirt. Not a chance.

If necessity is the mother of invention, after travelling at a speed of 250 miles an hour and getting the news of the day through the air, someone will soon invent a wireless shaving set.

To the autoist looking for a place to park this country is enjoying a bumper crop of fire hydrants.

It must be remembered Murray has been granted a greater chance to save his life in the courts than he granted his victims in the prison break.

Our advice to the budget committees is to hold 'er down this year.

Isn't it strange that golf is a Scotch game and so expensive?

Raising a family is an expensive hobby, but usually worth the money.

All the theatrical baseball fans are clamoring for a revival of the play "Too Much Johnson."

Vice-president Dawes has renewed his attack on talking senators and announces he will take his fight to the people. He proposes to campaign to that end, as the Irishman who said we would have peace even if he had to fight for it was not alone in his idea.

The hard working farmer requires about 6000 food calories per day, the "light labor man about 3000, while the chap who sits at a desk needs only 2500. The more useful you are the more it costs you to live. Safunnyworld.

London has manufactured a one seated aeroplane for thin women. It costs $1500. Henpecked husbands will rejoice in the announcement of the manufacturers that it is built for women only.

Editorial Comment

We think Governor Pierce is right in his conclusions about the difficulties existing between the Southern Pacific and Oregon Trunk lines, when he states that the development of the state is of much more importance than the row between the two railroads. It is not good business to give any railroad a monopoly in any particular section of Oregon if this state is to grow and prosper.—Roseburg News Review.

THE SCHOOLBOOK OUTRAGE

One little mother complained at paying eleven dollars for books this year so she could send her little sixth grade boy to school.

She had to buy one book that she bought last year for 36 cents and it cost her exactly $1.12, so she said.

Think of a family of working people who have to buy books for six or eight children, and there are many such cases of large families.

In Portland and many other cities in the state collections are taken up to buy and supply children of poor families with school books.

It seems the entire school machine in Oregon is built up to wring as many dollars as possible out of the people who send children to school. Yet we are boasting we have the most perfect educational system in The United States.—Southwestern Oregon Daily News.

PAY SOMETHING NOW.

There are two kinds of "pay in full" men. One is the man who pays in full on the nail; the other is the man who puts off paying anything on account until he can pay in full. Everybody likes the former sort; but the latter could improve his methods by paying on account as he can. It is better to pay 25 per cent at stated intervals than to hold up payment until enough money has accumulated to wipe out an account. Any merchant would prefer to receive payments on account by the week than to wait for five or six or seven weeks and then receive the same amount that would have been paid in weekly payments.

It is a good thing for any man to learn—that even if he cannot pay an account in full it is his duty not to wait, but to pay what he can; such payments get back into business, help the merchant who has given him credit, make it plain that he is keeping his eye on his account, and causes the opinion that he means to pay as quickly as he can. It ought to be the plan of every man who buys on credit to pay a certain part of his account at stated intervals; it is far better for everybody concerned for him to pay in this way than to wait until he has accumulated enough to pay the whole account.—Record Press Ellensburg, Wash.

$500 in Ten Minutes

Dick Berwster had a deal on to sell his house. A buyer had sought him out—but—there was a hitch in the terms of final settlement. Dick was a smart man—but a bit inexperienced in such transactions. He thought over the proposition—finally deciding he would have to sacrifice a bit of profit to close the deal.

Remembering our offer to advise customers whenever possible—Dick dropped in to ask our judgment of his action.

"You made just $500 for me," said Dick 10 minutes later as he left our bank. We had made a very simple suggestion of ANOTHER way to finance his sale.

It was a small detail—for which we charged nothing.—Only a part of the same service we offer you—when you bank here. ....
