Confidence By Flo Man vs. Woman

Dear Miss Flo:—After reading a number of your articles, I thought you might also be interested in a bachelor's viewpoint toward women—and why he is staying single.

Of course you know, as every one else knows, that women were created primarily for man's entertainment and amusement. Adam was lonely—therefore Eve, and women have remained men's toys ever since.

Now women are refusing to remain toys. In other words, they are forgetting their place. Naturally men, realizing that there can be no happiness in the sea of matrimony, where there is mutiny on board ship, do not care to take a chance, so they stay single. I for one, am having too much fun being a bachelor to ever think of getting married.

What do you think of that? Billie.

You are quite flattering—when you credit me with reasoning power and try to convince me that my sex is merely man's plaything. You'll change your mind no doubt, about my reasoning power, when you learn that it takes a slightly different turn from yours. I heartily and most emphatically disagree with you. Where do you get the idea that women were created merely for men's amusement. Possibly you have been attending too many musical comedies and reviews.

If so, you might be pardoned for coming to such a conclusion, but no one can have even a fair acquaintance with the world of business women without being convinced otherwise.

Stenographers, shop girls, waitresses and business women with their own successful establishments would probably answer that if what they are doing now constitutes play—they hope they will never have to go to work in the field with which I am most familiar, and remember, I am not exploiting my sex any more than you are exploiting your sex—women are a match for the men any day—and in many cases, they are more than a match.

Whenever I hear a man say that he is having so much fun being a bachelor that he is never going to get married, I begin saving for a wedding present. I know he is wading in deep water, and before he knows it he will be sunk without warning, and before he can come up for air some girl will have him branded and hog-tied and coaxing for permission to love, honor, and support her for the rest of his life—and he will think she is doing him a favor if she permits him to do it. He forgets all about women being created for man's amusement.

Possibly you have never heard the story of the colored boy who always whistled when he walked past the cemetery—"just to keep up his courage."

Seriously, Billie, do you really think and believe in what you have written, or are you only trying to get an argument? I hope you don't believe it—not that your outburst of what you consider popular fancy among men is going to cause any great stir—but it is too suggestive of bitter disillusionment and disappointment, and sex conceit.

Don't exaggerate your own—or your own sex's importance. Both men and women are equally important in this world of ours. Use your reasoning powers—and if you really think that women are inferior to men—don't say anything about it. You may be laughed at.

I'll grant you that the woman of the past was the slave of man, commanding respect as a mother; idolatry, sometimes, by means of her beauty, but with her sex looked down upon with contempt, as being inferior mentally and otherwise.

But the elder Cato of Rome once complained, "We Roman rule over all men, but our wives rule over us." Today, more than ever before, the higher outlook on life is recognizing the woman, and her woman's work, independently pursuing her life to the highest development of her power, or living it out in wifehood. Beauty, intellect and motherliness even in the old days made sovereigns at home. Today they make women the equal of man—and in a great many things, their superior. Now, what do you think of that?

College Friends Meet.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Pollard was the scene Sunday of a happy reunion of old-time friends who attended Willamette University at Salem together in 1906 and 1907.

The visit of Prof. G. O. Oliver of Willamette University to Springfield as the speaker at the Methodist church occasioned the event. Both Dr. and Mrs. Pollard were fellow-students with Prof. Oliver, as was Dr. D. A. Forbes, of Cottage Grove, who was present for the occasion. Reminiscences of old college days were enjoyed.

Practical Instructions in HOME SEWING
By Ruth Wyeth Spears

Flowerlike Chiffon Skirt for Evening Wear.

The bodice of the dress is fitted very slightly to the figure and cut in six pointed scallops at the bottom. These scallops are finished with bias bindings.

The dress is made with a plain foundation of the chiffon. There are two tiers of the chiffon draperies, six on each row. The easiest way to shape these drapery pieces is to cut squares of twenty-seven inches dimensions. Then cut off the upper corner of a square as shown in the diagram at the right. The drapery pieces are then sewn in place at the top only, the rest being allowed to fall as it will. The edges may be picoted or rolled and whipped.

One and one-half yards of the crepe de Chine and five and a half yards of fifty-four inch chiffon will be needed to make this dress.

Funeral for Baby.

Funeral services for Maxine Benton, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Benton of Springfield, were held at the Walker chapel here Tuesday. Prof. S. E. Childers, pastor of the Christian church, conducted the services. Interment was in the Laurel Hill cemetery.
