Berlin's Bride

Ellen Mackay, daughter of Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, married Irving Berlin, song writer, last week.

The Details.

No doubt it will interest the reader to know that the song hits we have all been singing for the last year or so were factors in this unique courtship.

Irving Berlin, a Jewish immigrant boy from Russia; a beer waiter in "Nigger Mike's" place on the Bowery, later one of the first cabaret entertainers there—but today worth a million or two and without doubt America's premier popular song genius had many obstacles to overcome in marrying Ellen Mackay, daughter of one of America's proudest and wealthiest families. He was opposed to the very end by his father, Clarence Mackay—and as this is written—is still unfor-given.

But love—and Berlin's harmony won the maiden's heart after more than two years of conquest; First, Berlin wrote:

"All alone, I'm so all alone—There is no one else but you. All alone by the telephone. Waiting for a ring, a ting-a-ling. I'm all alone every evening. All alone, feeling blue. Wond'ring where you are—and how you are—and if you are—all alone too.

Then Miss Mackay sailed for Europe—trying to please dad—and Berlin's song appeared:

"What'll I do—when you—are far away—and I am feeling blue—

Miss Mackay returned from Europe—and another Berlin song appeared. The popular, "Remember—have you forgot to remember."

She had not—the Catholic girl married the Jewish boy last Monday.

What will Berlin's next song hit be?

Here from Leaburg—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rauch of Leaburg were Springfield visitors Thursday.

Tonsils Removed—Mrs. B. C. Gay had her tonsils removed at a local physicians office last Friday.

Here from Florence—Mrs. Andy Rudiman of Florence is her for a few days visiting with friends.

Here from Walterville—Farrel McQuin of Walterville was in Springfield on business Friday.

Thurston Men In—Among Thurston residents who were in Springfield on business Friday were Walter Platt, C. F. Grant and Harry Jackson.

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

by John Joseph Calnea, M. D.

FACIAL ERUPTIONS

The most common facial skin-disease is acne. It does not depend upon a blood impurity or its origin. There are no "blood medicines" do not cure it.

This disease varies in severity, from a few small pustules to many large ones, the latter often leaving disfiguring pits or scars. A certain germ, the acne bacillus, may be found with the microscope, and may rather accompany than cause the eruption. We know that a rich, highly-seasoned diet will lend color to the picture; cheese and the like, including mince pies and fried foods are to be avoided. They overload certain glands of the skin which are already choked and inactive. A plain diet of coarse bread, fresh vegetables, plenty of fruits and drinking-water is to be commended. Young people do not need coffee or tea.

The pustules should never be squeezed. They may be carefully punctured with a clean needle dipped in a solution of carbolic acid before using, and then swabbed with cotton wet with peroxide of hydrogen. If hot wet packs are applied to the face, be sure to follow with cold packs, a minute or two after. Leave the special medication to your physician.

The acne patient should use his own towels and pillow-linen. The face should not be daubed with ointments or cheap lotions that stop up the pores. A good lotion for the face is made by adding boric acid to water, in any strength desired, for it is harmless. Lemon-juice lightly applied cleanses the tiny grooves in the skin, but should be rinsed lightly after the application. Use no face-powders containing lead or unknown coloring ingredients.

FOREST FIRE LAWS HAVE SHARP TEETH

It is becoming a serious matter to break the forest fire laws of Oregon and Washington. One hundred and eight-five people found this out last summer when they left fire in the woods, were brought to justice by officers of the United States forest service, and were found guilty. It cost them $2777 in fines and $518.95 in court costs.

Practically all of these cases were tried under the state fire laws by local justices of the peace, the large majority of whom, the federal forest officers report, are enforcing the fire laws without fear or favor.

These figures are given in a report just issued by the district forester's office, Portland, Oregon. A total of one hundred eighty-four cases are still pending final action.

In addition to these criminal cases, settlements were secured in seventeen civil cases, in which damages were collected by the government to the amount of $8238.66. A number of civil cases are still pending.

In the criminal cases, the report shows that ninety-eight convictions were for camp fires, thirty-one were for brushburning fires, and nineteen were for camp fires without permit, and two for smoking in a closed forest area. The remainder were for miscellaneous causes.

One hundred twenty-nine of the criminal convictions were in Oregon, and Washington. Of the twenty-two national forests in Oregon and Washington, the Siuslaw leads with thirty convictions; the Mount Hood is second with twenty-five and the Cascade is third with twenty-two.
