APHIDS MULTIPLY FAST; RIGHT SPRAY CONTROLS

An aphid today may mean 500 tomorrow. Careful spraying with nicotine sulfate three-fourths of a pint to 100 gallons of water and 4 lbs. whale oil soap or 3 lbs. laundry soap helps prevent injury. For smaller amounts use one-half tablespoon nicotine sulfate and a piece of laundry soap about one inch square in one gallon of water.

The white eggs found among the aphid colonies are the gardeners' friends. As soon as these eggs hatch the repulsive looking larva of Syrphid flies eat from 10 to 20 aphids a day but do not feed on the plants.

If live aphids are still found 24 hours after applying the first spray a second spray is advisable immediately.

The pink and green aphids on roses are hardest to kill. By increasing the amount of nicotine to 1 to 1 1/2 pints per 100 gallons of water effective results are obtained.

Fewer aphids are killed after they have curled the leaves and are settled comfortably on the inside. Nicotine dust applied in warm weather aids in their control.

FARM POINTERS

Asparagus beetles, recently introduced in Oregon, are causing serious damage to the new asparagus shoots at this time, reports Don C. Mote, entomologist of the experiment station. A few plants left uncut attract the beetles which are then controlled with lead arsenate spray, 1 ounce to 1 gallon of water, or with dust. After the cutting season is over a spray or dust of lead arsenate, 2 or 3 applications at 10-day intervals, gives good results.

Deep plowing and thorough working of the soil to a good depth before planting are essential on permanent plantings of strawberries in Oregon as the first deep plowing will be the last time deep cultivation can be had. A loose, friable soil, which can best be obtained by planting after a rotation of crops and immediately following a cultivated crop has been found by the experiment station to be best suited for strawberries.

Steel Removed from Eye—A piece of steel was removed from one of the eyes of O. F. Anderson, at a local physician's office Saturday night. Mr. Anderson, who is manager of the Cascade Manufacturing company's plant, sustained the injury while working Saturday.

TAKE NO CHANCES

"With due respect to the 'kind of bread Grandma used to make' there is an element of luck in home baked bread. Some times it's good and some times it is not so good. But—the family has to eat it whether it is good or not.

Today there is no excuse for taking a chance with the families health—not with the Springfield Bakery turning out wonderful appetizing bread—fresh every day—and good every day—at a price which Grandma herself could not have baked it. Try a loaf of our PERFECTION.
