HAY GRADES EXPLAINED AT O. A. C. NEXT WEEK

O. A. C., June 10.—The first hay grading school and demonstration west of the Rockies will be conducted here June 14-19 inclusive under the auspices of the farm crops department of the school of agriculture. Dealers and producers in this and neighboring states and representatives of inspection departments of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Utah have written that they will attend.

"The increasing influence of federal grades in the market has brought about a demand for better understanding of them," said A. B. Cordley, dean of agriculture. As O. A. C. is the only college in the west possessing the necessary equipment to conduct such a school, the week of demonstrations here will serve a large territory.

C. F. Welsh, junior marketing specialist from the federal bureau of agricultural economics, is here now assisting G. R. Hyslop, head of the department of farm crops, and C. C. Ruth, associate professor, in preparing materials for the school. Edward C. Parker, assistant chief of federal marketing specialists, will arrive in time to take charge of the school. Dr. L. A. Strong, federal alfalfa weevil specialist, will also be here.

FARM REMINDERS

Many undesirable flavors and odors develop over night when the separator has been thoroughly rinsed with supposedly clean water, or with skim milk, says the O. A. C. experiment station. Analysis of the substance of which the separator slime is found in the morning after standing all night, shows what is taking place when this dirty separator is used to separate the fresh morning milk.

Kale, one of the most important fall and winter forage crops for western Oregon, is usually transplanted in June. Deep planting has given good results at the experiment station. By planting the roots in moist soil the tendency is to grow closer to the ground. Low blocky plants are more resistant to cold than rangy ones.

Twelve-spotted cucumber beetles are abundant in truck fields and gardens in Oregon, says the entomologist of the experiment station. The beetles are a greenish yellow color with 12 black spots. They are feeders on general foliage but prefer cucumbers, cantaloupe, squash, and beans. Lead arsenate with a trap crop has given the best control. When the beetles appear the crop is dusted with lead arsenate one part, and sifted wood-ashes or air slacked lime six parts, leaving a few plants of their preferred food for them to collect on where they are killed by hand.

Potatoes are usually harrowed before and after coming up and until they are three or four inches high, says the farm crops department at the Oregon Agricultural college. Shallow thorough cultivation is then needed often enough to control weeds. Level culture is best except where the soil is cold and moist or where it is irrigated. Slight ridging may sometimes be necessary to keep tubers from bulging out and sunburning. They are cultivated only when the vines are dry. Weeds are most easily killed while they are small. Cultivate when the ground is dry and free from weeds is unnecessary.

Go to Newport—Mrs. Ella Lambert and family left for Newport Saturday morning. They will spend a few weeks there on their vacation.

UPPER WILLAMETTE

The annual Pleasant Hill picnic sponsored this year by the Woodman failed to live up to its reputation and drench the earth with rain. Instead a very hot day brought crowds to the cool grove behind Woodman hall where all day long friends and old acquaintances enjoyed ice cold soda pop, ice cream, lemonade, etc. while they strolled through the grounds, listening to the program in the morning or watching the races and the baseball game in the afternoon. Large family dinners and pioneer groups enjoyed the picnic lunches at noon. The Christian Endeavor society managed the cafeteria booth where hot dogs, hamburger sandwiches, salads, cakes and coffee tempted those who had failed to bring their lunch. Many Eugene people were present. The force working at Court Lattin's mill came from Crow, the mill being shut down. Fall Creek, Lowell, Dexter, Trent, Coast Fork and Enterprise all sent many picnickers to the grounds. A splendid program with an address by Rev. W. A. Elkins entertained the crowd in the morning and the afternoon Oak ridge defeated the Woodteam at baseball.

On Sunday, June 20 the Christian church of Pleasant Hill will celebrate its 76 birthday. Services with social music will be held at 11 in the morning. Rev. W. A. Elkins giving the sermon. At noon a basket lunch will be held under the trees on the school grounds across from the church. The afternoon will be given over to singing, reading a history of the church and talks of old times by the pioneers. Many pioneers of Lane county are intending to be present and evocate particularly pioneers and new comers are urged to attend. An invitation is sent to all to come, bring baskets and help celebrate the day.

About forty ladies attended the sewing bee and stork shower given for Mrs. Morton Bristow at the home of Mrs. W. L. Bristow of Pleasant Hill. The afternoon was spent at needlework. Mrs. P. J. Laird gave several splendid readings. Mrs. C. F. Hyde helped the hostess serve ice cream and cake.

Loganberry and cherry picking has begun at Pleasant Hill and green apples are beginning to be harvested for pie.

Merrill Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Curtis is sick with the measles.
