

BOOTH-KELLY OFFERS PRIZE FOR SLOGAN

A ten dollar prize is being offered by the Booth-Kelly company for the best safety first slogan to be used on its calendars for the year 1927. Each year the company conducts a slogan contest for its calendars which are obtained from the National Safety Council, who issues beautiful calendars for the use of industrial concerns. The calendars have twelve paintings in oil done by such well known artists as Philip Lybard, Norman Hah, Arnold Lorne Hicks, Gustavison, Andrew Loomis, and Fred Mizen and are surrounded by a decorative scheme done by a commercial artist at a cost of $400. On the back of the calendar are health talks dealing with such subjects as physical examinations, colds, care for the eyes and the teeth, heart and kidney diseases, tuberculosis, pneumonia, Bright's disease, headaches, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and measles.

Last year the winning slogan was "Think Sanely-Work Safely," and the slogan for the year before was "The Man Who Thinks Is The Man Who Works Safely." The $10 prize is given to maintain interest in and to help further the safety first movement. The contest is open only to employees of the Booth-Kelly company and their families. Only three suggestions can be made by any one person. The slogans should be short and to the point with safety the subject. Ten words is as long a slogan as can be used. Entries in the contest should be written on a sheet of paper without any name, the name being written on a separate sheet and both enclosed in a sealed unstamped envelope and addressed to the Booth-Kelly company, Eugene, Oregon, writing on one corner of the envelope, "Safety Slogan." All envelopes should be handed to the safety committee not later than Friday October 8. Judging will be done by a competent disinterested committee and awards will be announced as soon as possible after the close of the contest.

The Booth-Kelly company will distribute 600 of the calendars the first of the year, 200 of them going to Springfield employees and the remainder to Wendling.

UNIVERSITY FROWN ON STUDENTS WITH AUTOS

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oregon, September 23, (Special)—Pointing out that automobiles brought to college by University students are a cause of poor scholarship and increase the danger of moral delinquency, University authorities have appealed to parents to prohibit their sons and daughters from bringing cars to Eugene, it was announced today.

While several other large institutions have prohibited the use of student cars, Oregon will attempt to solve the problem by seeking the parent's co-operation, it was stated.

"The increasing use of automobiles by University students has been observed with much concern by University authorities everywhere," a letter sent to parents today read. "Careful studies have shown that they cause poor scholarship, are expensive, waste valuable time, increase the danger of moral delinquency, and cause traffic congestion about the campus; that at best they are undesirable and unnecessary at college, and that they are often positively demoralizing."

Although permission may be obtained in cases where automobiles are particularly necessary, officials pointed out that "we are constantly striving to maintain on the campus a simple, wholesome, democratic and scholarly atmosphere. Many of the students are self-supporting and gain rather than lose thereby in respect and social standing."

The Philadelphia of Our Ancestors

Here is shown a section of "High Street," a reproduction of Philadelphia's famous Market street in the days of 1776. It is one of the outstanding features of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition now being held in Philadelphia to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Every building has been built to actual size and in actual architectural detail. The furnishings of each building are exact reproductions of those used in the Revolutionary days. Many of the pieces on display are the originals and today are worth thousands of dollars because of their historic value. The Exposition continues until December 1.
