PROGRESS OF EXPERIMENT SHOWN IN O. A. C. DISPLAY

Portland, Nev. 4.—With the famous "Truth-in-Meats" exhibit as the central feature, Oregon Agricultural College and the experiment station are again represented at the International Livestock exposition this week with an exhibit that includes showing the progress of crop and livestock experiments at the several branch stations.

The "Truth-in-Meats" exhibit which was viewed last year by an estimated total of 78,000 persons, again shows the difference between low and high grade beef in every stage from "on the hoof" to the retail cut. Three main points the consumer may watch for in selecting good beef are white granulated fat, light red color in the lean, and marbling, or intermingling of streaks of fat with lean.

Two highly promising smut resistant grains are shown by the Moro branch station. Markton, a smut immune type of oats, was originated there and has so far passed the experimental stage as to be adopted widely throughout the northwest and in many states farther east. Regal, a new smut resisting winter wheat, is being distributed this year for the first time in any quantity. It is smut-immune, a good yielder, and judging from sample leaves in the exhibit, a good milling wheat.

The home station at Corvallis has an exhibit stressing the varieties of wheat found most profitable in Western Oregon by successful farmers and by exhaustive experiments. Those recommended are white winter, Eaton, Holland, and Jenkin club.

Clover seed is stressed in another part of the exhibit, the results of tests with seed from nearly every part of the world being shown. It is shown that western domestic seed is about as good as can be bought while much imported seed, especially that from Italy, is much inferior. How imported seed is stained to prevent its being sold as domestic is explained.

MARKET AGENT'S REPORT

By C. E. Spence, State Market Agent

Prune Growers Will Organize
The prune growers of the Willamette Valley realize that something must be done in the way of securing better prices and markets or many of the orchards will have to be abandoned. Many tons of the fruit remained unpicked this fall. To this end the Federal Department of Commerce will send one of its co-operative marketing specialists to Salem to help in organizing Oregon and Washington into a co-operative selling association. Work will start at once and it is hoped and expected that the prune growers of both states will give the organization solid backing.

Costs $51 to Distribute $49
"When it comes about, as is shown by the recent inquiry in the city of New York," says Frank B. Willis, U. S. Senator from Ohio, "that it costs $51 to distribute $49 worth of bread, it is perfectly apparent that the cost of distribution is some how too great. The annual farm products of the United States cost the consumer about $24,000,000,000, yet of this the farmer who raises the crop receives only $8,000,000,000. Two dollars are too much to pay for the distribution of one dollar's worth of products."

Don't Rush Them In
The price of hogs usually drops in November and December because of the fact that most of the farmers sell during these two months and the market becomes over-supplied. It might be a good idea for many of the farmers to hold over until January; the probable higher prices would warrant the risk.

What Lime Will Do

A test of the value of agricultural lime has been made on an Ohio farm. The average yield of clover hay on the farm was about a ton and a half to the acre. After the field had been limed it produced two and a fourth tons. An average of twelve other tests with corn showed not quite 31 bushels to the acre before liming and 36 1/2 bushels after the use of lime. There is no question about the value of lime, the question is to get it at a price the farmer can pay.

400,000,000 Chickens

The growth of the poultry industry in the last fifteen years has been amazing. Today it is one of the big agricultural industries of the nation. The Department of Agriculture states there are 400,000,000 chickens in the United States at the present time. To give one an idea of the immensity, in single file this population would make a procession 169,000 miles long and the eggs laid from the hens in a year, if laid end to end, would reach from the earth to the moon and back again. With the great increase and the segregation into localities, many diseases have come and the poultrymen have as many problems as other branches of agriculture have.

Saving Money!

The amount of thought, will, and habit produced in regularly saving money are the strongest foundation stones of success a man can lay.

The man who saves money, saves self-respect; he begets confidence, not only of himself but of others. The SAVER always wins out in the end; the SPENDER, never. Sooner or later the spender must pay for being the "good fellow" in his earlier days. If you do not have a savings account, start one the first thing TOMORROW.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Store Omits Future "Sales"

Another large, successful department store—the one at Pittsburgh, Pa.—has announced that in the future it will operate on the no-sale plan—a plan, by the way, that has made the J. C. Penney Company a household word throughout the United States.

That thrifty buyer—the American woman—recognizes in the no-sale plan of store operation a policy that safeguards her every purchase because it assures as much for her dollar today while she is buying as tomorrow or any time in the future.

Our Store—any store that does not hold sales—must always give the fullest measure of Service as represented by High Quality at Low Price, in order to maintain the Confidence of the public. It is our idea that we can better serve the public by serving it as nearly alike every day as is possible.

We congratulate our fellow merchant at Pittsburgh upon adopting this high policy of service.
