

What Price Beauty?

by Miss Flo

Dear Miss Flo:
Do you think it is good policy for a wife to let her husband see how much she loves him, and how necessary he is to her happiness, or is it better for her to appear indifferent? When a man knows for a certainty that a woman's heart is his, is he likely to undervalue it? I have only been married a short time, and I am anxious to keep my husband's love. Please advise me.

LOOKING INTO THE MIND OF MAN
the more a woman is to win the more the man pursues her, and the more a woman throws herself at a man the more adroitly he dodges her. During the period of courtship the thing that is of more importance to him than anything else in the world is the state of mind of the girl he loves. It's a wonderful, sentimental adventure, and he follows all her moods. When she is coy and difficult it arouses all his sporting instinct, and when he succeeds in taking her away from his rivals, and she finally surrenders to him, he is thrilled with a sense of being a conquering, irresistible hero.
But marriage is a different story altogether. A man expects the capture to end the chase, and he doesn't want to have to run on the balance of his life. He expects marriage to finish all doubts, fears, heart aches and speculations about the woman he loves, so that he will be free to give his undivided attention to his work. For that reason, the tactics that won a woman a husband will not serve to hold him, and the wife who tries to pique her husband's interest in her by her indifference is more apt to land in a divorce court than to strengthen her position in the man's heart.

For men do not want to be kept guessing about their wives. They want to be sure of them. The man who is married to a woman who keeps him in constant doubt of her affection, and keeps him on the verge of a nervous breakdown with jealousies and doubts and suspicions does not think he has drawn much of a prize in the matrimonial gamble. On the contrary, he is likely to think he has been taken in, and he isn't crazy about having been so badly mistaken in his judgment.

The wise woman never hesitates to let her husband know how much she loves him, how necessary he is to her happiness, because her love makes the strongest claim she can possibly have upon him. Many a man who has made an unsuitable marriage with a woman with whom he had no real companionship, and many a man who has outgrown the woman he married in his youth, a kept faithful to her by the knowledge of her devotion to him, for few husbands are heartless enough to hurt a wife who worships him, or leave the woman whose whole life is bound up in him.

Nor is there any allure of mind or person that appeals to a man so much as just the certainty of a wife's love and the knowledge that if all the world turned against him, she would still remain loyal and true.

Mrs. W. W. Walker is directing the presentation. The cast of characters: Billy Abbey, an out-of-a-job husband ..... Dan Taylor
Mary Abbey, his discontented wife ..... DeEtta Duryee
Sally Carter, Mary's chum ..... Mrs. Kathryn Duncan
Mrs. Berdon, Mary's Mother ..... Mrs. Percy Tyson
Burt Childs, Billy's best friend ..... Glen Riddle
Dolly, Grandma's angel but a terror ..... Faye Parsons
Katie, the Abbey's German maid ..... Mrs. Lee Putnam
Harry Stevens, Sally's sweetheart ..... Paul Nice

Danny Grubb, an iceman and Katie's suitor ..... Clifford Wilson
Patrick Murphy, a policeman, also Katie's suitor ..... Lee Putnam
There will also be specialty stunts and songs by the men's quartet of the Baptist church. The members of the P. T. A. promise a full evening's pleasure and amusement. A small admission will be charged.

In making boiled icings for a cake, if it does not seem to be cooked enough after it has been taken from the fire, it can be reheated in the top of a double boiler, even after the syrup has been poured over the egg white.

Rich, heavy foods should be served with lighter, more succulent foods. This evens up the calories and avoids too heavy tax on the digestive system. For example, a light lettuce salad is relished with a heavy meat dish.

Colors in foods add attractiveness to a meal. Green or other bright fruits and vegetables, egg yolk, yellow cheese, browned meats or bread or cake crusts, are all examples of appetizing colorful foods.

Very sweet foods have a tendency to blunt the appetite for other foods that supply materials the body needs. It is best, therefore, to serve sweets in small quantities, or toward the end of a meal.

Another Ham Improvement

Ham-souring, caused by a group of bacteria, may be prevented by thorough chilling immediately after slaughter and by maintenance of a low temperature until the hams have absorbed sufficient salt to hold the organisms in permanent check. This important discovery is the result of experiments conducted by E. A. Boyer of the meat inspection service of the United States Department of Agriculture. Such contributions to the livestock and packing industries make Federal meat inspection a distinct asset to those enterprises as well as a safeguard to the health of consumers.
