EXCURSION TO NEW OREGON WONDERLAND

Beautiful Odell Lake, locked in the heart of a sylvan wilderness until the opening of the Southern Pacific's new Cascade Line this year brought it within easy reach of the lovers of the outdoors, is one of the finest bodies of water on the Pacific Coast. More than 2000 feet in depth at places, the deep water lends to it a lovely sky-blue color. Rimmed by virgin forests and cupped among the mountains the lake is attracting hundreds of fishermen, campers and vacationists. Sunday next, July 31st, many plan to take advantage of the special low fare excursion to this beautiful section. Carl Olson local representative of the Southern Pacific states the round-trip fare from Springfield will be $3.60 and that the train will leave at 8:45 A. M. and will leave Odell Lake for return at 5:30 P. M. In addition to regular meals sandwiches and coffee will be obtained on the train on return trip.

GRAVOS TO RETURN

Here after Vacation—Mr. and Mrs. Verne Stewart were visitors in Springfield Wednesday on their way home after a vacation trip to Dunsmuir, California. They traveled the new Cascade route and returned the Shasta way.

HODGE IDEA SUPPORTED BY NEW OBSERVATIONS

The theory of Dr. E. T. Hodge of the University of Oregon that the Three Sisters are but remnants of a once giant peak, which he called Mount Multnomah, has been upheld by the observations of a party of experienced mountain climbers. The group, led by John Berry of Angora club of Astoria, recently scaled the three peaks and explored the surrounding country. With Dr. Hodge's scientific data at hand, the members traced the rim of the ancient crater and noted other evidence in support of the theory.

After the party had successfully scaled the middle and south peaks, Fred U. Robin of the Trails club, Portland, was able to ascend to within only 100 feet of the summit of the north peak. He was held back by a perpendicular wall formed within the last month when the mountain "sloughed off." This rock slide, Mr. Robin declared, had occurred since two Bend youths made the climb early in the month.

Yes He Did

"That drunkard we just saw is a very touching case. Isn't he?" "Well, now that you mention it, yes. He touched me for a five-spot yesterday."

Good Old Pals

"Yes, sir. It certainly pays to study," said the young man as he received his usual fifty-dollar check from his old man. "If not for my studies I wouldn't have this check. And I owe it all to my fellow students."
