

FOOD DAINTIES TO BE EXHIBITED AT FAIR

All kinds of food dainties will be exhibited in the Domestic Process Department of the Lane County Fair. Mrs. F. A. Richardson of Creswell is department manager again this year and is actively engaged in the preparatory work.

Mrs. Richardson is very desirous that all parts of the county shall be represented in her department. "There are any number of women in the county who can make wonderful bread, cakes, cookies, pies and all sorts of things," urges Mrs. Richardson. Let us have a really county exhibit this year," she has planned the effective decoration of her department already. Every entry must be accompanied by the recipe by which it was prepared.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION GATHERING IS SUNDAY

Between 200 and 300 members of American Sunday School Union groups in this county are expected to gather at the fish hatchery up the McKenzie river for the annual picnic and joint services, according to announcement by Kenneth Tobais, missionary of the organization with headquarters at Eugene.

Sunday schools represented will be Vida, Leaburg, Deerhorn, Waltherville, Upper Camp Creek, Goshen, LeBlue and Lone Cedar. Several Springfield Sunday school workers are expected to attend.

Rev. Frank Allen of Portland will be the chief speaker of the day. The Sunday school hour will start in the morning at 10 o'clock. The ground will be fitted for lunch at noon, and free coffee will be served.

Birthday Celebrated

Evelyn Harris was hostess to a number of her young friends Tuesday at a party honoring her birthday. The afternoon was spent in games and conversation, and delicious refreshments were served by the young hostess.

Those present were Gladys Smith of Lowell, Byrdene Cummings of North Bend, Eunice McFarland, Adaline Perkins, Thelma Baker, Barbara Adams, Eileen Irwin, Melba and Lloyd Harris, all of Springfield.

A feature of the afternoon was a peanut hunt.

FINAL PLANS ARE MADE FOR OPENING OF SCHOOL

Principal A. J. Morgan announced this morning that final preparations for the opening of school September 12 are being made, and that the buildings are in unusually good shape for use.

Re-roofing of the Lincoln school is complete. The high school building has been repainted, and the roof tarred. Plaster inside has been patched by L. Gardner.

Thirty small seats have been purchased and installed at the Britain school. Seats from the Brattain building have been moved to the Lincoln building, and likewise those from this place have been moved to the high school. There are now 200 seats at the high school.

Mr. Morgan pointed out that at the close of school last year, slips for creek for sodden earth, there was a hall from the north road. He recognized the guard of the liquor-truck whom he had assisted when it was mired. "Got a big wrench?" asked the man. "The nut's worked loose on this axle and one of our hind wheels was about ready to drop off when we noticed it. Don't know what he's thinking of, but Jake hasn't a wrench in his toolkit."

"Just a minute," replied Eddie. He brought a wrench from the cabin and, with a tumultuous admixture of feeling, accompanied the man up the road to the truck. It was but the work of a few minutes to twist the nut home on the jacked-up wheel. When it was done the guard, with a knowing smile, reached for the box under the seat, but Eddie stopped him.

"Not for mine," he said. "The last bottle nearly put me away. I think it had arsenic in it!"

"But this is good stuff," assured Jake, eagerly. "This is a little private stock we keep for ourselves and our friends. We were all out last week."

"All right, kid, it's up to you," said the guard when Eddie refused again. "She's clearin' off. Come on and take a little ride."

Eddie responded to the invitation. He did want to do something besides fight his own thoughts. He would ride a few miles toward town drop off, and walk back through the barrens, which were beginning to exercise a powerful fascination for him. Of course he wouldn't drink any of their beastly liquor.

While the truck went on, to wait for him below the ridge west of the house, he ran in to tell Patsy Jane. "Go ahead; it'll do you good," she urged. And then she added: "Who are your friends?"

"Oh, a couple of fellows I met awhile ago," he said evasively, as he kissed her.

The booze-runners proved to be entertaining companions. They took it for granted that he was a kindred spirit, and they spoke freely and with humor, of their calling—its dangers, its adventures, its sordid tangle of plot and crossplot.

The first time they produced a bottle and drank from it, he refused their invitation to join; and the second time the third time he succumbed to their urging to "take just a sip." Which was only the start.

books were given pupils. He said these should be looked up immediately and books obtained.

Clara Wagner, graduate of O. A. C., has signed her contract for commercial teacher. Mr. Morgan has someone in mind to succeed Sylvia Veatch, whose resignation the board has refused to accept until her successor is found. He will present his recommendation to the board shortly.

Principal Moffitt of the Lincoln Junior high school is moving to Springfield with his wife and daughter.
