THE OLD GRAVEYARD

Springfield has an old delapidated graveyard on the hill that is not a credit to the town. Fences and grave markers are down and falling to decay.

In a few years all traces of the graves will have disappeared. We can imagine this condition taking place in some far out of the way place but never before have we seen anything like it inside a city limits.

Some civic organization would be doing commendable work to give this old graveyard attention. Either move the bodies to other cemeteries repair the fences and grave markers at the present location.

SPIRITS WORKING ON HIGH MOUNTAINS

Spirits told the man who started the rush to the McKenzie pass that there was a gold lodge there. Because he believed it hundreds of claims were staked out in the barren lava that geologists have been unable to find any kind of metal deposits, let alone gold.

During the search for the lost youths in the Three Sisters country the editor of the Springfield News and others who took part in the search received spirit letters from different people telling where to find the boys.

WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA!!—MONEY

Money plus interest makes money. Indians sold New York City for $24 to Dutchmen. Had they placed that sum at six per cent compounded on the day they sold the land their heirs would have more money now than New York City is worth.

But interest, while sure is slow. A good idea makes money quickly. John E. Andrus, called the "Straphanger Millionaire" because he hangs to streetcar straps when he might ride in his automobile, bought one share of Singer Sewing Machine stock for a few dollars in 1864.

It was not Mr. Andrus' thrift that made the money, but THE IDEA of another man, putting the eye of the needle in the needle's point, instead of the other end, thus making the sewing machine possible. Be thrifty, save, let interest work for you by all means. But use your brain for QUICK results.

A chicken never stops scratching because the worms are scarce.

To succeed one has to work hard and save harder.

Editorial Comment

HE LAY AWAKE

James Buchanan Duke, the tobacco king, died worth ninety million dollars. But it wasn't tobacco, primarily, that did it. Advertising should take the credit.

His father, Washington Duke, conducted a tobacco enterprise, his son being in with him as partner or associate. Business then was none too good.

"My son came back from a business trip to New York," said the old gentleman, "saying he had pledged our credit for $750,000 to be spent in advertising during twelve months. Our entire assets didn't amount to that much. I told Buck so. He merely smiled. For three nights I did not close my eyes in slumber, worrying over what I regarded as certain ruin. Buck slept peacefully. But when the advertising began, orders came so fast we had to increase production. At the end of the twelve months every cent of the advertising was paid for and our assets were several millions."—The Ambassador.

DR. FRANK CRANE SAYS

THERE'S BUNK IN CLEVERNESS PLEA

Whether it is a phase of inferiority complex or not, it is true that people are always suspicious of clever people. They resent their cleverness as an implied superiority, and the best means for creating a prejudice against them is to pretend that they are cleverer than ourselves.

It is a favorite pose of lawyers before a jury to discard all oratory or arts of reasoning and proclaim themselves as simply presenters of facts.

Those who wish to enhance their own personal reputation may pose as clever men, but those who wish to gain their particular point renounce any appearance of cleverness.

One of the favorite arguments against doing business with other nations is to claim they are much cleverer than ourselves, much more tricky and resourceful. Every nation wishes to consider itself as simple, faithful and trusting, and all others as wily and deceitful.

We heard a great deal about President Wilson's being taken in by Lloyd George and Clemenceau. We are now deluged with news to the effect that our representatives abroad in another conference are being cozened by the statesmen of other nations.

All this is pure bunk. The Yankees are as clever as anybody and abundantly able to take care of themselves. If anybody leaves them with the heavy end of the stick to carry they will have to be pretty sharp.

Suspicion of foreigners is all too common and a frequent cause of misunderstandings. It would be much better to be honest and frank ourselves, to lay the cards on the table and to trust other people to do the same. Much animosity and antagonism are aroused by suspicion. Trust hardly ever arouses anything but trust in return.

A man some time ago wrote a book entitled, "My Neighbor Is Perfect."

If everybody believed in his neighbor and trusted him we would have much less trouble than we do at present.

It is often said that the Golden Rule needs an amendment. It is not only necessary to do unto others as you would they should do unto you, but to be bold enough to take the first step in trust.

The idea of claiming that other statesmen or diplomats are wily and slippery, while our own are rugged and honest, is a vicious one, and all who help to spread it are not doing a very commendable job.
