OWNERSH

THE first prehistoric man to become a manufacturer owned his own toolspough instruments of flint made with his own hands.

As industry developed and crude tools gave Why to more costly and more complex machinery, men separated themselves into groups,-owners of tools and users of tools. Out of this separation grew industrial problems, and in their solution, the trend has been toward a wider ownership of the tools of industry by those who use them.

Industry's most useful tool in America, the telephone, is owned by those it serves. Bell System seocrities are distributed among 800,000 investors, nearly all of whom are telephone users. The stock of the American Tel. & Tel. Co. is held by more than 420,000 owners, and no individual owns as much as 1%. In this nationwide ownership of nationwide facilities, the tool owner and tool user are identical.
