In all ordinary cases we see intuitively at first view,
what is our duty, what is the honest part. In these cases, doubt and deliberation is of itself dishonesty—BUTLER.

KING AND KING

No doubt there will be some confusion at the general election over the names of James K. King, successful candidate for the republican nomination, and Alta King, the democratic nominee. One King will be disappointed and the other district attorney that is certain but the public can be pleased because there are two good men running for the job, and even if there is confusion as to names law enforcement will not suffer.

The contest in the beginning looks like a close race. James K. King, brilliant young trial lawyer, has the republican party behind him with a two to one registration over the democrats. Alta King, long a figure in public life in Lane county at Eugene and Cottage Grove, is well and favorably known both as a straightforward man and an attorney. The fact that he so decisively defeated the present district attorney at the election indicates he has many friends and political strength.

We soldiered in the same outfit with Jimmie King in France and know him as a capable, fair-minded young man, always willing to sacrifice for his fellow men. He was a good soldier, he is a good lawyer and he would make a good district attorney.

Our business relations with Alta King during the past five or six years tells us that he is capable to fill the office for which he seeks. No one can question his integrity, and his long experience in public office and the practice of law in Lane county will stand him in good stead if elected.

Both men will wage clean and aggressive campaigns. Both have friends in both parties who will switch to their support in the general election. Who will be elected no man can say until the ballots are counted, except it will be King.

A bulletin from Texas tells us that the women in the Southwest are very conservative and brags on their restraint. "Only within the last six months or so, for instance, have women ventured to smoke in public in San Antonio. Women expect and still receive the old-time courtesies and attentions. Men remove their hats when women are in office buildings and give up their seats in streets cars" continues the report.

Now that the women have ventured to smoke the correspondent might add another paragraph, which he didn't. "Men are still very generous to women—they give them the first light off the match and even divide their favorite brand of cigarettes with them. Could anything be more chivalrous?"

A. B. See, famous elevator manufacturer and anti-feminist, has written a book calling on men to revolt against the dominance of woman. The man should rule the home, he says, and the vote should be taken away from women. Try and get it!

A. B. See also holds that education should be confined mainly to a thorough study of the alphabet. Evidently he wants to perpetuate his name in the schools.

A couple married fifty years were given a great many gifts and a big party by their friends. They certainly deserved it!

Harry Hershfield tells of a Scotchman who went crazy trying to shoot of a cannon a little at a time.

THE FORCE OF INTELLIGENCE

More and more sheer brain power is coming into its own as opposed to brute strength. The world has known times when physical force dominated both man and beast. Those days are gone. Now everything is ruled by thoughts in the minds of men.

And this Age of Intellect is having unexpected results. The old-time prize-fighter, and many other old-time exponents of various sports, had only strength. The prize-fighter with the largest biceps, longest reach, steadiest legs and the best punch was the idol of the populace. Now a prize-fighter is expected to have some business sagacity, and a good scientific knowledge of the fistic game. In addition, we have come to expect our prize-fighters to know a little, even more than a little about things which belong to the realm of art.

Witness the coming to this country of Italy's champion, Umberto Torriani. Not half as much fuss is being made about Umberto's muscles as is being made about his classical education. Umberto is proud of being a deep student of Shakespeare, Homer, and the entire range of classic literature.

Our own Gene Tunney—whom Umberto would like to meet in the ring and as an opponent in an intelligence test—knows not only the art of the uppercut but has been a good reader all of his life and only a few weeks ago addressed an audience of college students on the subject of Shakespeare. And he made some pretty wise remarks about the Bard of Avon, too.

In all sport, and in many other lines of activity, the participants today have more in their craniums than a cynic would expect. This is an age where brain-power dominates.

IN MEMORY OF THE WRIGHTS

At Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, a stone tablet of more than usual significance has been unveiled. Its inscription reads:

On this spot, Sept. 17, 1900, Wilbur Wright began the assembly of the Wright brothers' first experimental glider which led to man's conquest of the air.

A little more than three years later, Orville Wright, near that spot on the sand dunes, first flew a motor-driven airplane.

The flight lasted only twelve seconds. But though of short duration, it constituted the first successful experiment with a heavier-than-air machine in the long history of flying attempts. Time has vindicated the Wright brothers.

For many months after the first flight of Orville Wright, the world refused to believe that it had actually taken place.

Even as late as 1905 and 1906, when the Wrights were constantly making short flying trips, persons all over the country jeered at them for believing that man could fly. Scientific articles tried to "prove" that flying was impossible. People did not believe even the evidence of eye-witnesses.

Not until 1908 were the adventures of the Wright brothers given credence.

They were the forerunners of Lindbergh, Captain Wilkins, the German-Irish flyers, and all the other brave souls whose air exploits have aroused the applause and fired the enthusiasm of the nation.

Time has vindicated them mightily. Today the science to which they gave their best efforts has developed to an astounding degree. The nation cherishes the memory of these great pioneers.

A survey shows that in Detroit the liquor industry ranks second. The auto industry is first. Perhaps some of the moonshine finds a ready market as a substitute for gasoline.

A remedy for insomnia has been sent to America by a Berlin scientist. It will never be needed in Philadelphia.

SPRINGFIELD GIRLS TAKE PART IN U. OF O. EVENT

A number of Springfield high school girls attended the high school play day held at the university last Saturday morning and afternoon. The event was sponsored by the women's physical education department.

The local girls participated in various games and sports. At noon a picnic lunch was served. A social swim for all the high school and university girls was the final event of the day.

The Springfield girls reported having a fine time during the day.

FREE METHODISTS TO CONVENE AT GROVE

Free Methodist of Southern Oregon will hold their annual conference in connection with their camp meetings, May 31 to June 10, in the camp grounds at Cottage Grove, owned by the Methodist church. This is one of the beauty spots of Cottage Grove and a large attendance is expected.

Bishop A. D. Zanhizer of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, will preside. Rev. Fenwick, evangelist, will be in attendance as well as Rev. J. K. Muman of Columbia River conference and Rev. Harry Kreider of Seattle, formerly of Eugene. Many others will be present, some representing the Seattle Pacific college.

Rev. A. C. Archer is the district elder and will furnish information to all who desire to attend. His address is Seventh street South, Cottage Grove.

FORCED TO SLEEP IN CHAIR—GAS SO BAD

"Nights I sat up in a chair, I had such stomach gas. I took Adlerika and nothing I eat hurts me now. I sleep fine."—Mrs. Glenn Butler.

Even the FIRST spoonful of Adlerika relieves gas on the stomach and removes astonishing amounts of old waste matter from the system. Makes you enjoy your meals and sleep better. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. Flanery's Drug Store.

A Packard Or A Ford?

Either or both, the same in Bifocal lenses. The Duo-Site or Kryptoks? Either will convey the rays of light to the eye and is better than always having two pairs of glasses.

The Duo Site Bifocal is the perfection of Optical science.

The Kryptok is a comfortable lens for business or pleasure.
