

Houston to Give Delegates Warm Welcome

Coliseum, Built For Event, Will Be Permanent; City's Growth Due to Plans of Its Pioneers

Written for The Springfield News By ROBERT FULLER

Through Autocaster News Service Houston, Texas, June 21—Houston is all set for the great Democratic National Convention, which will convene here on June 26. And while Houston has been bending every effort toward perfecting plans for the convention, civic leaders have not been overlooking the opportunity so to shape this work that it will fit into the solid foundation of a still greater Houston. Although the movement and actual construction of the convention coliseum has been somewhat of an overnight project, all workers seemingly have been impressed with the idea that they are not building a temporary structure.

The city of Houston was laid out according to a well-defined city plan by its pioneers. Leaders of civic life in villages, towns and cities throughout the nation are expected to absorb some concrete ideas on city-building when they are in Houston for the convention. These local leaders are pioneers and it is to them that future generations will point when their towns become cities.

The coliseum is placed in the center of what is destined to be a "civic center," an area in which many future public buildings are planned. In this there is a good idea in city building. No community is too small to start planning for the future, and a sound foundation provides for later phenomenal growth. In its early days Houston was a small, secluded town. It has become large and powerful because of the wise planning of its pioneers.

All the proceedings at the convention have been perfected that is considered adequate to care for another 100,000 overnight addition to the population.

Special arrangements are being made by convention committees to care for all visitors to Houston at and about the time of the party gathering.

These are the words of Jesse H. Jones, Houston capitalist and chairman of the arrangements committee: "Come to Houston the city is ready to care for you."

Claude G. Bowers, New York editorial writer, historian and orator, will be the keynote speaker at the convention. Mr. Bowers attracted great attention by his address at the last Jackson Day Dinner, which is considered a masterpiece. It was beautifully written, and most effectively spoken.

It was Jesse H. Jones who led the fight for Houston when the Democratic convention city was being chosen. Mr. Jones is the publisher of the Houston Chronicle.

All the proceedings to the convention—as in the case of the Kansas City conclave of the G. O. P.—will be broadcast over the radio in a gigantic hook-up reaching into every nook and cranny of the country. The most thorough "radio picture" of a convention ever made will be presented to the listeners, as microphones will be placed all about the convention floor and balconies and everything going on will be "picked up" and transmitted.

CLARENCE JONES, 7, IS STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Clarence Jones, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey (Cy) Jones, received a severe bruise on his back and minor injuries about his head and body when he was accidentally struck by a car Saturday afternoon.

O. D. Cole who is visiting here from Idaho was driving along the street on Main between Mill and Second streets at the rate of about 12 miles an hour, he reported. The Jones boy was playing behind some barrels being used in construction work on the service station being built there and suddenly jumped from behind them into the street with his back to the oncoming car.

Although the car passed over the boy the wheels did not strike his body. He is not considered seriously injured.

WILD BLACKBERRIES ARE PLENTIFUL THIS YEAR

Wild blackberries in this section are plentiful, it was reported here this morning. Many local residents are picking the fruit along the banks of the McKenzie river east of here. In some cases the bushes grow along the highway and are easily accessible.

The crop of cherries this year is far better than last despite predictions early in the season that the yield would be very much smaller on account of the weather condition. The cherries received so far on the local market are of fine quality and are reasonable in price it was stated.

Very Much In Love

Dear Miss Vera, I am 17 years old and very much in love with a fellow who is a few years older than I. After going together several months, we became engaged. We decided to get married when I'd be about 19 years old, and as this is a long time to wait we thought we'd break the engagement, with the understanding that some day we would marry.

I have always been true to him, and told him everything. He has promised to do the same, and I believe he is pretty true so far. Other fellows have asked me to go with them, but I refused because my thoughts go back to the one I love. He does not go out with different girls. He has told me often that he loves me. Do you think he loves me if he waits till I'm of age? Everybody tells me that he is not worthy of my love, and that I'd be foolish to marry him. But I love him and no one else.

BOBBIE

Dear Bobbie, if you love the young man and no one else, you should marry him no matter what your friends think. Unless, of course, your parents object. Your letter seems to indicate that he loves you.

In fact, your letter seems to describe a particularly beautiful and complete love on the part of both of you. Good luck, Bobbie!

How To Win Him Back

Dear Miss Vera, I am a young girl of 14 and I dearly love a young man who is twenty. I have been out with him once or twice, and talked with him a few times. He seemed to care a lot for me then but now it seems to me that he cares for another girl.

He treats me all right as far as I know. What can I do to win his love?

Elizabeth.

Dear Elizabeth, perhaps the young man thinks you are too young for him. At any rate, be as sweet and gracious and considerate as you can be when you are with him—make yourself as adorable as possible, and perhaps he will come to adore you!

It is perfectly proper for him to see other girls, as at his age very few young men care to tie themselves. And as for you—do not moon about him, but go about having as good a time as you can. Have many friends up definitely with one, and like them all. Don't let him make you miserable.
