FARM RELIEF—HOOVER'S OR SMITH'S

A Smith's farm relief program is that if he is nominated he will call together some men who know more about farming than he does and ask them what to do. Smith admits he knows nothing about the business of farming but still thinks he can solve the farmers' problem.

Herbert Hoover says if he is elected he will cause the government to organize a corporation to market the exportable surplus farm products that keeps down the price of all commodities. Hoover as director of the European relief before and during the war and food administrator in this country has directed the distribution of more farm products than any other one person in the world.

Contrast these two methods by which the presidential candidates propose to solve the farm problem, and the experience of the two men. Any logical farmer can't help but vote the republican ticket this year if he wants something done to relieve farm conditions.

CONSOLIDATING COUNTIES

Tennessee and some of the other eastern states have reduced the expense of county government recently by consolidating counties. There are some counties in Oregon that might well be consolidated and not make the work burdensome on county officials. In fact many of the coast counties and some in Eastern Oregon would have neither the population nor the taxable wealth of Lane county were they consolidated in pairs.

When Oregon became a state modes of travel were slow, there were no good highways and few railroads. The automobile was unknown and the airplane undreamed of. Now we have all these things and people living 50 miles from the county seat are actually closer in travel time than those living six or eight miles away 30 or 40 years ago. Fewer counties and better paid county officials would reduce the cost of government considerably in Oregon.

School enrollment indicates that Springfield is more than holding her own in population. There are more children enrolled than there has ever been. Consequently there must be more people living in Springfield than ever before. There are very few vacant houses despite the fact that new houses are being built all the time. It can be safely said that Springfield is keeping pace with the rest of the Willamette valley in population increase.

The production of women's cotton stockings dropped off in two years from 1,795,600 dozen pairs to 727,880 dozen pairs. Not hard times but prosperity has caused the slump in the cotton stocking industry. Women are wearing silk and a few of them are following the new styles of no stockings at all.

"Overheating the home not only wastes the fuel but invites the family physician," writes a heat expert. It's safe to say in this climate more people overheat their homes than do not have sufficient heat to keep warm.

A course in cooking is now being given to aspiring doctors at John Hopkins University. If their practice the art of cooking extensively, these future doctors may drum up a lot of trade for themselves.

Now that Zogu has been crowned King of Albania, another of our misconceptions has vanished. We always thought Zogu was the name of a soda cracker.

The Prince of Wales started for a tour of East Africa wearing a derby. Campaign managers, please note!

Recent announcements place the number of speakeasies in Philadelphia at 13,000. No wonder it is known as the quiet city.

Orders have run considerably ahead of lumber shipments for the past several weeks. Shipments also have been greater than production indicating that the large stocks on hands are now being reduced. If this condition continues for many more weeks the lumber business should be normal again.

Antique collectors are now seeking whiskey bottles for preservation among their rare items, with the contents removed. Well, many would be glad to furnish the bottles if allowed to undertake the task of removing the contents!

Remember if you haven't registered you can't register or vote after October 6. Also if you haven't voted in the past two years or have moved into another precinct you are not registered and can not vote.

Reynoldo Luza, European fashion artist, says that a woman cannot acquire charm until she is thirty or more. Evidently a stunt to get women to tell him their right ages!

A New Jersey insane asylum is to establish a beauty parlor as a curative measure for its patients. Evidently believes the patients can float back to sanity on a permanent wave.

The proposed Nation-wide Air Taxi Service may be a good thing, but think of the poor air taxi drivers who won't ever be able to make traffic stops!

A woman in New York state had to pay a $15 fine for throwing a kiss at a police sergeant. Luckily, it didn't hit an innocent bystander.

With the democrats mixing liquor and religion in the national campaign its a good year to vote a straight ticket. Straight Republican!

The importance of the Negro vote is just one more colorful feature of this presidential campaign.

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, will probably urge the country to get back to "Norman-cy."

Will Rogers Says---

I was kinder disappointed in Al's speech of acceptance. I thought he was smarter than he is, I thought he would refuse.

Just think how much bigger man Al would have been if he had refused. If he gets elected he will be only one out of thirty that's held presidency. But if he had refused he'd be the first in history to do that—and probably the last.

A Democrat is naturally windier than a Republican. He is out of office more and he has more time to think things to say. All a Republican has to say is "Well I am in, try and get me out." While with a Democrat he has to say something that will get the Republican out and also that will get him in.

Al said he would take the nomination because "this is the country that had raised him from obscurity to the standard bearer of his party." Now Al didn't have any monopoly on obscurity at birth. There is awful few babies very well known at weaning time.

The part of his speech that kinder hit me was where he said that if he was elected he would have our government quit messing around down in Latin America. In other words if a Marine went sight-seeing he would have to pay his own way.

Al is honest about farm relief. He says he don't know a corn stalk from a jimson weed and that a tractor might be a mouth wash so far as he is concerned. All in all, Al did a mighty fine job of promising. Now I think my platform is more constructive. I will make mine up after I get in. Nobody knows what they might want by next March anyhow. —WILL ROGERS.

IS CORPORAL PUNISHMENT SOMETIMES NECESSARY?

"All aboard!" called little Ethel, as she rapidly turned the imaginary steering wheel of her touring car.

"Time to come home," broke in Mother's voice.

"Oh, no, Mother, I can't," answered the driver, "I can't stop the car yet."

"We're late," said her mother, hastily approaching the fast-moving "car".

Seizing her little girl's hand, she pulled her from the bench, saying, "We're awfully late. I didn't realize what time it was. We have to hurry."

Ethel whimpered for a few minutes, but soon all her attention was absorbed in trying to make her little legs keep pace with Mother's long stride.

"Please don't go so fast," she gasped two or three times, each time receiving the same impatient reply, "Didn't I tell you it's late!"

After what seemed to Ethel ages and ages, their street loomed into view and then their apartment house.

"Thank goodness!" cried Ethel's tired little legs.

"I can't walk upstairs," she announced as they came to their house.

"Nonsense," answered her mother, "I can't carry a great, big girl like you. Hurry up, now."

"I can't!" cried Ethel, falling into a disconsolate heap on the bottom step.

The mother scolded, argued, pleaded and, as a last resort, tried to make a game of the ordeal, showing how dolly walked up the stairs, and trying to induce Ethel to run a race with the toy kitten.

All of no avail! Ethel stuck to her guns, tearfully insisting that she couldn't walk any more.

"All right, then," said the mother, "stay there," and up the steps she resolutely walked.

Ethel, left alone, now thoroughly hysterical, began to cry louder and still louder. Her mother heard her all the way up-stairs. Between worrying as to whether Ethel was catching cold, and as to what the neighbors would think, Mrs. Mann was almost distracted.

After about a quarter of an hour, she could stand it no longer and hurried down to the unhappy child.

Picking her up, she stood her right foot on her feet, and placing her right foot on the first step, said, "Now put the other foot up."

Ethel remained immovable, all her energy being used in crying. Her mother gave the refractory leg a resounding blow, repeating her command. This time it was obeyed!

"Do you want more or will you walk up?" screamed the overwrought mother.

Gasping with fright, the little girl ascended the stairs. But she could eat no dinner, and it was hours before she could go to sleep. For that matter, Mrs. Mann also had lost her appetite.

"But you just have to resort to corporal punishment with a child like that," she announced to her husband later in the evening, when she was regaling him with the events of the day.

Do you agree with her, or do you feel confident that little Ethel could be managed without friction or

RELIEF FROM CURSE

OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at Planery's Drugs Store—(Adv.)

Have A Good Laugh With The Camera Man

Don't run for a doctor—you're not seeing things—the camera man did. Calm down. Pretty Lillian Metzger, at the extreme right, seems to have made the camera man go wrong. The first picture is of a film beauty, Raquel Torres—it's easy to see where the naughty camera man was looking. Johnny Brown, also of the films, is the only male sufferer in this cameraman's spree. His legs are certainly long enough to reach the ground. The second picture is of a young lady who may have got that way eating at boarding houses. When Tex Rickard sees this, he may try to sign her up—her reach beats anything he ever "seed" before. No, you don't need new eyeglasses—but somebody needs a new camera.
