THE CHRISTIAN BASIS FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE

1 Corinthians 8:1-13

By Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

The quarterly temperance lesson has been a feature of the International Uniform series for many years. Its introduction in the Sunday school was followed by the scientific temperance instruction in the public schools in the various states of the Union. The general purpose is to teach the basic fact that alcohol is a poison and the effect that such a poison has on the individual and society. The whole subject is a live one today, not only in America but throughout the world. In the United States the study is especially pertinent as the wet and dry issue has such a prominent place in the coming presidential election.

A moral issue is much more than an individual matter. Every one exerts a far reaching influence, both conscious and unconscious. Paul had a case in hand when he wrote to the Corinthians from Ephesus, during his third missionary journey. Idol worship prevailed and any religion involves a sacrifice of one kind or another. Animals were slain to propitiate the various gods, and there were many of these so-called deities. The priests of the various cults could eat only a very small portion of the meat from such slaughter. Both the economic and natural thing to do was to offer the meat for sale, for there was nothing the matter with it from the standpoint of food.

At once a serious and conscientious question was raised in the minds of both Jews and Christians. They must not in any way partake of food which had first been offered to idols. Such food might be on any table where they were a guest. This whole matter was an issue at the Council in Jerusalem and it was mutually agreed between Jew and Gentile Christians that they would abstain from any use of such meats. This same question kept arising as the Gospel was taken to any new territory where the identical conditions were local. The case had to be argued through each time and every group convinced that they must give up things that may have been customary in the old life because of the new implications, through no actual physical harm would result if continued. In eating such food they were surely relating themselves to the worship of idols.

The Corinthians were told that the question of personal liberty should not decide the matter. They must face the effect of their actions on others. Doing as they pleased would become a "stumbling block for the weak." Many will not think things through but will permit the action of another to determine their course. Every life is an open book, which is read by others and their lives are influenced accordingly.

Without raising in any way the question of individual rights Paul reveals how eager he is to always render the utmost help to others. It is easy to imagine the short man standing as upright as possible and declaring as a working principle "Wherefore, if meat causeth my brother to stumble, I will eat no flesh for evermore."

In Paul's case the meat which had been offered to an idol was as nutritious as any other, but alcohol is always a poison. This is the decision of science and not the statement of a mere opinion.
