RADABAUGHS LEAVE HERE FOR HOME IN ROSEBURG

After spending nearly a year as Springfield citizens, Glenn Radabaugh together with Mrs. Radabaugh left Sunday for Roseburg, where they will make their permanent home owing to the fact that Mr. Radabaugh has been called to the southern Oregon city to act as managing editor of the Roseburg News-Review.

Mr. Radabaugh during his residence in Springfield was the reporter for the Springfield News. Before coming here, he was affiliated with the staff of the Eugene Register, and previously attended the school of journalism at the University of Oregon.

The Radabaughs were active in church affairs and took part in various civic activities.

Roseburg is Mr. Radabaugh's home town where he received his early journalistic training on the News-Review to which he is now returning in an elevated capacity.

LARSON TO REMAIN IN HOSPITAL TWO MONTHS

J. M. Larson, commander of the Springfield post of the American Legion, who is now receiving treatment at the Veterans' hospital No. 59 in Tacoma, Washington, will have to remain in bed about 25 more days and remain in the hospital for about two months, according to a letter received this week by Mrs. M. B. Huntly, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

Larson writes that five of the six men in his ward are from Oregon. Among those in his ward are Ed Stewart of Springfield and Les Svarverud of Eugene.

Larson was sent to the Tacoma institution through the efforts of the local auxiliary organization.

GOAL OF RED CROSS ANNUAL ROLL CALL 5,000,000 MEMBERS

Disaster Relief and Work for Veterans Cause Heavy Drain on Resources.

In order to enable the American Red Cross to carry on its broad activities, ranging from service to the world war veteran to instant response in time of disaster, a membership of 5,000,000 should be enrolled, and in this year of 1928-1929 that is the goal set for the twelfth annual roll call, to be held from November 11 to 29, Armistice to Thanksgiving Day.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross at Washington, in calling upon the nation for 5,000,000 adult members, directs attention to the great expenditures required of the Red Cross for disaster and veteran relief work, and for its many other activities devoted to health preservation and improvement and to cutting down the number of accidental deaths, through life saving and first aid courses.

"The Red Cross should at all times have a large reserve fund," Judge Payne stated, "because when disaster strikes, and this organization is called into instant action, there is no time to stop and raise funds. Dollars may mean lives, so we should have at all times a good reserve. We have been forced each year to draw upon our reserves, and we find that the demands are increasing annually."

Judge Payne pointed out that in the fiscal year of 1927-28, the Red Cross had extended aid in 66 major catastrophes in the United States and its insular possessions, and in 22 nations abroad. This does not include the West Indies hurricane disaster in Porto Rico and Florida, which occurred after the close of the Red Cross fiscal year, June 30, 1928.

The Red Cross expenditures for disaster in that period were $16,544,258.87, of which approximately $13,000,000 was expended in the Mississippi Valley for the flood relief work, which came from a fund contributed by the public. More than $1,000,000 was expended in the St. Louis tornado damage, and more than $1,000,000 in New England. In both cases public relief funds were raised, although in New England the Red Cross contributed in excess of $500,000 from its own funds for the relief work. In the majority of the other 66 disasters, and in all of the 22 foreign catastrophes in which the Red Cross extended aid, the money came from its own resources.

The largest item in the annual budget of the Red Cross is for its veteran relief and work for disabled ex-service and service men, upon which it expended in this year $1,169,795.

Every man and woman is asked by Judge Payne to join the Red Cross during the roll call period, to aid in these humanitarian enterprises.

To the first half-million new Ford owners

TO THE half-million men and women who have received new Fords in the last eleven months, there is no need to dwell on the performance of the car.

You have tested its speed on the open road. In traffic you have noted its quick acceleration and the safety of its brakes. You know how it climbs the hills. On long trips and over rough stretches you have come to appreciate its easy-riding comfort. Continuous driving has proved its economy of operation and low cost of up-keep.

This is an invitation to you to take full advantage of the service facilities of the Ford dealer organization so that you may continue to enjoy many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

The point is this. You have a great car in the new Ford. It is simple in design, constructed of the best materials and machined with unusual accuracy. It is so well-made, in fact, that it requires surprisingly little expense. That is the true meaning of Ford Service.

"Having a Terrible Time"

Dear Miss Vera:

My girl friend and I are having terrible time finding some fellows. We have chances every night to go some place, but always with persons we do not know. Can you give us some advice? Should we go with them or should we wait until some boys we know ask us?

SUSIE SUE.

Dear Susie Sue, this is a strange question, indeed. Of course, the answer is clearly that you should wait for your friends to invite you, rather than tag along with anyone. But it should not be difficult for you to make men friends. Why not get some one of these persons you do not yet know—be friendly! But talk to them and be sure you like them and can trust them before going out with them.

Dear Miss Vera:

I love a young boy dearly, but though he promised me not to, he has been taking out other girls besides me. I went out with another boy, and he was jealous.

Do you think he loves me? He said he still loves me, but I think he is lying. I'm heartbroken. Do you think I should be friendly with him when I see him? Do you think it would be best for me to go out with more boys or just with him?

Should a boy smoke while he is out with a girl? Do boys tell girls that they love them if they do not? Is fighting with a rival a sign of love on a boy's part?

BERTHA E. H.

Dear Bertha E. H., you certainly seem beset with difficulties. Go ahead and go out with as many boys as you like—many friends. If you think he is telling you an untruth when he says he loves you, this suspicion will always be with you. If you can't tell whether or not he loves you, how can I? Be friendly with him, of course, and see whether time brings any developments.

Neither jealousy nor fighting with a rival definitely shows love. They may show a jealous nature, or a love of fighting; sometimes these traits are associated with love, but not always.

Whether a boy should smoke or not is a matter entirely up to him unless he is a minor, but he should have consideration enough not to smoke in the presence of a girl who objects.

Of course many boys tell girls they love them when they do not—but a girl should be able to sense the truth.
