CANINE CARD ANNOUNCED SUCCESS BY SPECTATORS

The 12 or 15 ring-side spectators who witnessed the canine bout staged on main street last Friday pronounced it quite a success, but were wondering about the desirability of the victor's spoils. The bull-dog undoubtedly won the belt, but his crown was a bullet.

After the fight, Kenneth Giles, local traffic officer and police chief, took him to the pond and shot him. This is a moral to other acrimonious canines to settle their disputes in private. The fight was short and fast with the victor determined to finish it himself. The two contestants were a bull dog and a collie.
