VERY LATEST

Are you unable to decide which you prefer—flowered chiffon or something even more lace-like for your spring evening gown? Then why not combine both and be completely satisfied?

Tulle and printed chiffon can be used together in most fascinating fashion—as witness the gown worn by Mary Wilton, in "Pleasure Bound." In softest peach tones it is developed,—pale creamy peach for the background of the chiffon; deeper tones for the flower motif in self-colors. The trailing flounces of tulle which almost form a train are in matching shades of peach—and the whole is delightful.

A new Molyneux model combines black net in tiered effect with borders of deep cream-colored lace. Never was the evening mode more feminine—so one can hardly err in this direction.

Molded to Figure Modes

Through the variations of line for the evening gown runs one noticeable theme—the modified princess silhouette which is achieved in different ways for each design.

Sometimes the form-fitting effect is brought about by merely gathering superfluous fullness at the sides on the hip; again through the use of the long bodice extending well below the hips. While the true princess gown cut frankly in form-fitting lines is a rarity, these simulated models that make the suggestion without being so in fact are in abundance. And this is particularly true of dance frocks for the younger set.

Jacket Costume Versatile

To those who must make one costume serve many needs the little jacket mode is a great comfort. Thus may an evening gown become an afternoon ensemble by the addition of a matching coat; or the street costume transform itself into an afternoon costume by the removal of the jacket which furnishes the tailored note.

CORN SILAGE EXPENSIVE FOR WILLAMETTE VALLEY

Corn silage is found to be a high cost feed in the Willamette valley. The usual cost is $7.40 per ton as determined by figures arrived at in a survey made by the Oregon experiment station. While corn growing can be justified for its value in crop rotation and as a weed control, feeding experiments show that for silage purposes vetch is as good, if not better than corn, and can be produced at a much lower figure, approximately $4.27 a ton.

Some farmers find it a convenient policy to raise corn for winter feed and vetch for summer feed, if the silo is not of sufficient size to hold the full year's feed supply.

No one can enjoy their work or play so well if their vision is not good and comfortable.

EUGENE GIFT CAMPAIGN GOES OVER THE TOP. NEW MUSEUM TO BE BUILT

By raising $40,000 in one day, the University of Oregon $150,000 gift campaign which had been conducted in Eugene during the past year, went over the top Monday. A total of $153,252.50 was subscribed, according to J. H. Koke, chairman of the drive.

The funds will be used in the construction of the new Campbell memorial building on the University campus, which will house the famous Murray Warner Museum of Oriental art.

The first unit of the new building, which will be started about May 1, will cost $160,000. It will be built of red brick two stories in height, and unlighted except for electricity, sunlight being detrimental to the antique art objects which will be on display there. In the rear of the building will be the Campbell Memorial court, in the memory of the late president of the University. A placid pool of water will stand in the center of the court, with a bust of Prince L. Campbell at one end, and various statuettes by members of the school of art about the court.

The Murray Warner collection is said to be one of the largest collections of Oriental art in the United States. It was given to the University of Oregon by Mrs. Murray Warner, of Eugene, who collected it during her many years in Asia. Only a small part of it is now on display in the Woman's building, but the entire collection will be on exhibition in the new building.
