COMMUNITY CO-OPERATION

Splendid co-operation of organizations has been manifest in the building of hangars at the new airport. If we can have this teamwork in things we go after in future, surely we will get somewhere. After all a city is what its citizens make it. We can not expect to follow in the wake of progress—we must be marching in the front rank or advancement will stop.

DON'T WORRY YET

The sun will shine for a billion years, and then when it begins to dim another will form to take its place.

So says Professor Millikan of the California Institute of Technology.

Others have said that the sun would eventually go out and all would be in darkness. Many theories have been advanced. We trust in God to keep the world afloat and going, and are seldom if ever disturbed for a moment by all the predictions that tell us the world is going to end on such and such a date.

As for that second sun, thanks Professor. It's a great comfort to know that it is really coming along. But really, we guess we'll just string along for a while with the sun that we know, and just refuse to worry as to whether a second one is coming along or not. Personally, we don't need it!

There are now a million college students who never saw saloon, writes the secretary of the board of temperance. There are probably that many who never saw a livery stable, yet both saloons and livery stables were common things in the lives of the middle aged people of this country. The country has progressed. Liquor is still drunk and the people travel more than ever—and faster than ever. What is the answer? We do not know. But one thing is certain that law and morality are not one and the same thing and often are not even related.

Imports in this country last year were less than any time since 1924. Two-thirds of our imports came in duty free. The tariff does not keep out imports in all cases. Whether there is tariff or free goods imports are greatest when demand is greatest. The tariff simply keeps the price where the industry can pay the workers a better wage.

Glendale, which was visited by a disastrous fire last July, is now celebrating the opening of a new quarter million dollar sawmill which will have a payroll of $35,000 a month. This is a handsome addition to any community and will put Glendale again on its feet. Other Oregon communities will wish Glendale good luck.

The latest one on the Scotch is that one of the canny fellows sued a baseball manager because he fell out of a tree and hurt himself while watching a game.

Some of those California cities claim to have up to date police forces. They even have cadies to carry their clubs.

A NEW WAY TO TELL TIME

Henry Rheinhardt, chairman of the Associated Dress Industries, Chicago, comes forth with a brand new idea on the moot problem of the length of skirts.

He suggests that dresses should be worn down to the knee at noon, and hour by hour longer dresses should be worn until at midnight the dresses would be as long as in the days of our grandmothers.

This would give women fashion's authority to change their frocks every hour. The suggestion has been given serious attention all over the country.

It is said that this suggestion, if followed, would be a wonderful compromise, pleasing to both the advocates of long and short skirts.

We don't pose as an authority in such matters, but pass the idea on in the thought that it is interesting at any rate—and would provide us with a rather charming way of telling the time.

SHE HAS SPEED

"The stenographer we require," ran the ad, "must be fast, absolutely accurate, and must have human intelligence. If you are not a cracker-jack, don't bother us."

One of the answers wrote that she noted their requirements and went on: "Your advertisement appeals to me strongly—stronger than prepared mustard—as I have searched Europe, Airopo, Irope and Hoboken, in quest of someone who could use my talents to advantage. When it comes to this chinmistic proposition, I have never found man, woman or dictaphone who could get first base on me, either fancy or catch-as-catch-can. I write shorthand so fast that I have to use a specially prepared pencil with a platinum point and water cooled attachment, a note pad made of asbestos, ruled with sulphuric acid and stitched with catgut. I run with my cutout open at all speeds, and am, in fact, a guaranteed, double hydraulic welded, drop-forged and oil-tempered specimen of human lightning on a perfect thirty-six frame, ground to one-thousand of an inch.

"If you would avail yourself of the opportunity of a lifetime, wire me, but unless you are fully prepared to pay the tariff for such service don't bother me, as I am so nervous I can't stand still long enough to have my dresses fitted."

She got the job.—Wall Street Journal.

WORKERS SHIFT TO NEW TRADES

Henry Ford bestows his blessings on a world in which there shall be no work, no tobacco and not ever talk about liquor. And newspaper humorists rush to inquire what humanity will do with its time.

Humanity—business humanity—is already concerned with that question. Every great advance in the substitution of machines for men is met with the question, "What shall we do with the displaced men?"

So far no grave unemployment situation has arisen as a result of that development. There have been discomforts in the readjustments that always result but in the main new lines of endeavor have been opened as fast as old ones have been closed.

Some figures recently given out by the New York Telephone Company show how great is absorption in a comparatively new industry. There are in the employ of the company 41,000 men and women, more by 9,000 than the police, fire and street cleaning departments. Yet the telephone is only half a century old and its tremendous growth has been within 25 years.

The substitution of the automobile for the horse was in its day a tremendous economic displacement, one of the most familiar. A boy of 15 asked his father the other day what a livery stable was. To his father, a man of 50, the livery stable had been a familiar and fascinating place.

Yet the displacement which put the gasoline engine on the road, in the field and the filling station at every corner no longer seems a displacement. The wound, if wound it were, has healed and it takes sharp eyes to see the scar.—Nation's Business Magazine.

GOOD PROGRESS REPORTED IN BAND TRAINING CLASS

The sale of several new band instruments during the past few days to local high school and junior high school boys has been reported by Eugene Walker, agent for the Anspoker music company. The purchasers are enrolled in the class which is working under the direction of Andrew Landles, local band conductor.

The purpose of the class is to train men and boys for the new Springfield municipal band, so that the band may be made up wholly of local people, instead of partly of Eugene people, as is now the case. The class meets every Monday night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms for practice. Landles reports that the boys are making good progress, and he expects soon to have a band which will be a credit to the town.

LOCAL TYPISTS ENTER ANNUAL TOURNAMENT

Four Springfield high school students, Lena Frizell, Nadine McMurray, Vernice Hawke, and Angelina Severson, journeyed to Corvallis last weekend, where they entered the annual state typing tournament held on the campus of the Oregon State College. The girls failed to win any of the prizes offered, although they made a creditable showing at the meet. Myrtle Point high school was judged the winner at the meet. Miss Clara Wagner, instructor in typing at the local high school accompanied the girls to Corvallis.

The same typing team entered the annual Lane county meet at Eugene a week ago and took second among the schools from all parts of the county which were there. Eugene high school won first place. Nadine McMurray and Lena Frizell are from the advanced class, and Bernice Hawke and Angelina Severson are from the beginning class in typing.
