A thankful heart is not only the greatest virtue, but parent of all other virtues.—Cicero.

MEMORIAL DAY

Since last a day was set aside in honor of departed soldiers, the ranks of the great war heroes have been thinned by the passing of Marshal Foch.

One of the greatest generals of all time, his brave spirit now belongs to eternity. Like many great generals, he espoused peace with all his might and main, yet proved a fierce and unrelenting warrior when struggling for a righteous cause.

Significant was the coupling of his name with that of the Unknown Soldier at the time of his death. Beautiful was the thought of saluting them both—one the greatest general, perhaps, of the World War; the other, unknown, obscure.

It is in that spirit that we must celebrate Decoration Day, reserving our honors not only for the famous and glorious leaders, but dividing them as well among the humblest of those who have served their people in a common cause.

Our tributes of gratitude and love must embrace all those who gave their lives—with equal emphasis for the rulers and ruled, the mighty and the humble, the known and the unknown.

Whether it be Seattle's pull or Portland's location at the end of the Columbia gorge that will get for one of these cities the terminus of the east-west air mail line remains to be seen. Aviators testified before a hearing in Washington, D. C. that the Portland route was the best from the standpoint of flying. However, Washington cities are lining up behind Seattle while Oregon does nothing. That has too often been the situation in Oregon on other matters.

The Portland Telegram seeks to oust the public service commission, because it will not lower telephone rates in that city. Neither would the legislature give Portland the home rule bill demanded whereby she could make her own rates. We expect next that the Telegram will want the legislature abolished and the governor fired.

The average operating cost of motor vehicles is 6 1/2 cents a mile, Prof. T. R. Agg, highway engineer of Iowa State College, has concluded following a survey. The maximum is 9 1/2 cents a mile for heavy automobiles and the minimum 4 cents a mile for light machines, he said.

Shortage of money from government oil lease sources has compelled the government to drop work this year on several reclamation projects. It appears that the government is losing money after the oil scandal publicity.

The Fort Worth plane broke the world's record for sustained flight. Henry Ford says a new kind of power is needed for airplanes. The present engine seems to last as well as the pilots so hardier men to drive planes is evidently in demand.

JUNE BRIDES

The month of marriages is here. Of course every month is a month of marriages, but June seems especially to abound with them, and these has always been an additional halo of romance over marriages that take place in June.

That is as it should be, for June is in itself beautiful and romantic, the glorious month of roses.

What better time to wed than when the fields are abloom with flowers, and the sweet song of birds in the air?

What better month for honeymoons?

Young man—young lady—if you are engaged or expect to be shortly—why not seize the opportunity to make a June wedding of it?

And while we are on the subject, let's not forget the brides of former years. Remember those who married in Junes of the past with tokens of your affection—perhaps, indeed, your mother too was a "June Bride."

A FISH STORY

The following interview in the Portland Telegram sounds to us like our friend Ben Dorris, Springfield nut grower, who is chairman of the state game commission:

REACH FOR A FLY ROD INSTEAD OF A HARPOON

"Oregon should point the way in whale conservation," a member of the State Game commission said Friday. "Corsets are so little worn nowadays there is no excuse for continuing the ruthless slaughter that is threatening them—the whales—with utter extinction. It is all nonsense to say that they are needed for their blubber or for their meat."

"I not only agree with Professor Henry Fairchild Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History," the commissioner continued, "that concerted international action is necessary, but I am prepared to assume for Oregon the leadership in this work."

"I say—Let Oregon show those foreigners how to save whales. Let us lead the way."

"Dr. Osborn says about 30,000 whales are being killed annually. What Oregon's share in this slaughter is I don't know, nor do I care. If I am given the support of press, public and sportsmen, Oregon will save more whales than she has ever killed."

"I propose a state-wide whale conservation campaign, backed by spirited advertising and publicity."

Short Season, Maybe

"Oregon will teach her fishermen to leave whales alone except, possibly, during a very short open season. Suppose our share of the annual kill is 100 whales, though, mind you, I don't admit this. I am prepared to have our sportsmen refrain from killing 200 whales a year."

"Now, I don't say that we can induce old whalers, who have the very spirit of whaling in their blood, to quit at once and turn to minnows. But I do say we can educate them to taper off gradually on porpoise, shark, tuna, barracuda and work down to the smaller fish."

"I propose for our campaign slogan 'Reach for a fly rod wheels.'"

"Furthermore I demand immediate enactment of game laws requiring sportsmen to throw back all whales under 30 feet."

Commercial Angle

"What about commercial fisheries?" the commissioner was asked.

"That is outside my jurisdiction," he replied. "The State Fish commission must regulate industrial fishing, but you can quote me as unalterably opposed to whale whale wheels."

"So much for conservation," the commissioner continued. "Lots of commissioners would stop here, content that they had done their duty. But I am willing to go a step further."

"I believe we should go in for whale propagation. Let us establish whale hatcheries and stock our streams with whale fry."

"Would you like to say something about whale life in the Willamette?" the commissioner was asked.

"No," he said. "I don't believe I would."

"Some of your political opponents have suggested that there are no whales in Oregon and that you're full of blubber. Would you care to say something about the prints of whales being found on river beds?"

"No," he replied. "I'm a game commissioner, but I know when to quit."

This system has been proven by the best authorities. It will work—especially if the candy is the pure wholesome kind Eggimann makes. EGGIMANN'S "Where the Service is Different"
