The building will be remodeled, with a cement floor installed in the rear where the milk is to be bottled and handled. The front of the store will be made into a retail shop for the sale of dairy products. The Daisy Lane dairy has enlarged considerably within the past few months. Recently the company took over the Lawson milk route. Refrigerated coolers have been installed to make the handling of milk as scientific as possible.

A Poor Shot

The village hadn't even a cinema, and when a fifth-rate theatrical company came there it was an event. Tonight they were playing "The Madness of Mabel Mudguard," but the intervals were long and the audience impatient.

To keep them quiet a versatile member of the cast, who had been on the music-halls, undertook to do a knife-throwing turn.

He threw knife after knife, slowly but surely plugging his pretty assistant between two rows of gleaming blades. Sometimes the knives missed her by an hair's breadth. The audience watched the exhibition in stolid silence for some time. Then a disgusted voice at the back of the hall remarked, audibly:—"Bill, let's clear out. The old fool's missed 'er again."

Only One Heath Hen Still Alive

Boston, May 16.—Out of the flock of Heath Hens once inhabiting Martha's Vineyard only one bird is alive today, it was revealed by the State Department of Conservation. In the spring of 1927 only 13 heath hens remained. Now only one can be found. "Never in the history of ornithology," said Dr. Alfred O. Gross, who undertook the study of the heath hen's decline, "has a species been watched in its normal environment down to the last individual. How long this bird will continue to live only time can answer.

The death of this bird will also mean the death of its race. As long as it lives it will be observed and protected. This last bird is a plump male, its plumage is in perfect condition and there is every outward appearance that it is a perfectly healthy individual."

MOLALLA BUCKEROO TO BE BIG WILD WEST SHOW JULY 2, 3, 4

There are times when the public likes to know something about the persons who "do things" for their amusement. In the town of Molalla, "the little town with the big Buckeroo," there will be three distinct characters taking part in the annual "Buckeroo" July 2, 3, and 4, whose names are nationally and internationally known. Bonnie Gray, Vera McGinnis and Ed. Wright are positively the last word in rodeo productions. The rodeo which is able to sign these names on a dotted line has procured the best talent ever shown in the arena. The Molalla Buckeroo is very fortunate to have secured these head liners and consequently will give the public the best wild west show in the northwest. The Molalla Buckeroo has always shown the best in the rodeo line and this year will surpass all others. With the thousand of covered seats for the big crowd and ample free parking space anyone who comes to Molalla is certain of an enjoyable day. The New York Commercial Globe in speaking of Bonnie Gray says "for sheer grace and marvelous riding Bonnie Gray leads them all." She has 12 beautiful trophy cups and honors all attained through hazardous struggle, all webbed about with lady-like manners, accomplishments and education, backed by diplomacy always grounded on absolute fairness.

She is a graduate of the University of Idaho and is the only woman who has ever ridden bulls in the Mexican arena. Her two horses King Tut and Domino are worth a fortune. Bonnie Gray will positively be at the Molalla Buckeroo July 2-4 and at no other rodeo attraction. Vera McGinnis and her wonderful trick horse Scotty needs no introduction to rodeo goers. She is in a class by herself. Ed. Wright, the greatest of all clowns and whose appearance at Pendleton, Cheyenne and Madison Square, New York as the head line event will be at Molalla. Molalla will have the biggest show, the best talent and any number of bands to liven things up. July 2nd is the day set for all Community clubs and they will be there in large numbers because Molalla's Buckeroo is a Community project.
