"THE COCOANUTS" WILL BE HIT AT McDONALD

The Marx Brothers, whose first all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing moving picture, "The Cocoanuts," which will show at the McDonald theatre next week, starting Sunday, was the hit of the Broadway season, were playing in their latest current stage attraction, "Animal Crackers," when work on their screen production was begun.

These comedians went directly from a Broadway stage hit to a Broadway motion picture hit. The critics who raved about their "Animal Crackers," turned to rave about them in their motion picture, "The Cocoanuts."

"The Cocoanuts" was written by the successful playwright, George S. Kaufman, and Irvin Berlin composed the music. It was first presented on the stage and had a brilliant New York run of more than a year. For the screen production, the entire stage production was carried over and Berlin added a new theme song, "When My Dreams Come True."

In "Big Time," the Fox Movie-tone all talking screen drama which unfolds the heartbreaks, triumphs and joys behind the scenes of a vaudeville theatre, Stepin Fetchit enacts his best and funniest role since his inimitable characterization of "Gummy" in "Hearts in Dixie."

Stepin portrays the character of "Eli" keeper of the seals which are trained by "Sybil," a role which gives Daphne Pollard, well known comedienne, an opportunity for creating laughs.

Lee Tracy and Mae Clarke, both recently prominent on Broadway, are entrusted with the leading roles in this backstage romance, which will open Friday at the McDonald in Eugene. Tracy appears as "Eddie Burns," a small time hooper with an overdeveloped sense of his own importance, who is taught a lesson in humility of which he is so much in need.

Walter Camp, Jr., former Yale football star and son of the late football expert, with Ruth Elder, noted aviatrix, with whom he is reported engaged. Ruth Elder, at present a member of the Lady Bird Air Derby from Santa Monica to Cleveland, confirmed the report.
