STATE GAME FARM MANAGER WRITES OF BREEDING EFFORTS

"You must look to the game breeders of this country for your future supply of upland game birds. Restraining laws alone will not increase, or even maintain, the supply. We must produce if we would destroy."

The above is an excerpt from an article written by Gene Simpson, superintendent of game breeding for the state of Oregon, and also superintendent of the state game farm, which is located a few miles north of Springfield, which was published in a recent copy of American Game, the bulletin of the American Game protective association.

Were Imported From China
In the article Mr. Simpson describes the operations of the two Oregon game farms for the past year and tells of the methods being used in this state. He recalls the fact that Judge O. N. Denny brought the first Chinese ring-necked pheasant to the state from China in 1880, and that his widow now receives a pension of $50 per month from the state game fund in recognition of the service rendered to the state by her late husband.

Aside from establishing the ring-necked pheasant as the leading upland game bird in this state, Mr. Simpson has also achieved greater success in experiments breeding the Hungarian partridge than anyone else in this country. He has demonstrated that the Hungarian bird can be raised in captivity with a reasonable assurance of success, although it is more precarious than the breeding of pheasants, and requires different methods of handling the birds during the laying periods and in the laying fields.

Mr. Simpson raised 435 Hungarian partridges to maturity during the past year, and is optimistic over the possibilities in this field of breeding.

Nominate Officers
The first nominations for officers of the Rebekah lodge were made at the meeting of the members last Monday evening. Further nominations will be made at the meeting next Monday and the election of new officials will be held the last of November or the first week in December.

GOVERNMENT WARNS FARMERS TO GO SLOW IN PLANTING WHEAT

Go cautiously in planting wheat, is the advice of the government to the farmers.

Last year the government issued a similar warning in regard to potatoes.

The Department of Agriculture says that in view of the general tendency for the expansion of acreage in the principal exporting countries, it seems doubtful whether prices of wheat in world markets in the next few years will average much above the levels of the past six years. That is, unless unfavorable conditions result in a series of unusually low yields.

Last year the warning in regard to potatoes wasn't heeded and serious overproduction ruined prices and left field upon field unharvested.

With the Federal Farm Board in action, and a great national cooperative being set up for the wheat interests, growers generally are inclined to see better days ahead and whether the warning will be widely heeded is problematical.

The government warns that drought may not so auspiciously benefit prices next year. Too late drought damaged somewhat the winter wheat and more seriously cut into the yield of spring wheat in the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina.

United States farmers must expect to meet in the future continued keen competition in export markets from Canada, Australia and Argentina.

VICTIM OF TRAIN WRECK NOW OUT OF HOSPITAL

C. R. Wetzel, employee of the Fischer Lumber company and member of the train crew which were forced to jump for their lives last week when the trainload of logs which they were bringing down from Marcola was wrecked, has been released from the Pacific Christian hospital in Eugene, where he was taken for treatment of injuries which he received when he jumped with his companions from the rapidly moving train. He was badly cut and bruised, but suffered no broken bones. His companions on the train, which became uncontrollable when the brake rod on the engine broke, also jumped, but were uninjured.

Sixty thousand feet of saw logs were piled up in a canyon when the six cars jumped the track and sent their cargoes on an eight hundred foot fall.
