AIRPLANE MOVIE IS SHOWN AT McDONALD

Up-to-date scientific phenomena are crowding one another in Los Angeles and Hollywood where moving picture companies, filming all-talking motion pictures out-doors, complain that airships and airplanes, flying directly over locations, interfere with proper recording.

"Motion picture companies shooting talking productions on location seem to have a magnetic attraction for airships and airplanes," said A. Edward Sutherland, director of the fast-moving Ring Lardner-George M. Cohan comedy-romance, "Fast Company," which will show at the Fox-McDonald Theatre, starting today for three days.

Sutherland had an experience of this kind while making outdoor shots for "Fast Company." Lieut. Carl Lange, skipper of the Goodyear airship Volunteer, flew over the field. When Sutherland heard the ship he stopped production, knowing that the sound of the motors would be picked up by the microphones. Lange discovered the picture company below him and shut off his motors.

This unusual courtesy startled the picture folk for an instant. Then they went ahead and favored the aerial guest with the unique experience of watching "Fast Company" in the making from a height of 400 feet in the air.

Ermine furniture and glass bathtubs are striking novelties offered by Cecil B. DeMille in "Dynamite," his first talking picture, and his first production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which comes to the Fox-McDonald Sunday for four days.

DeMille seems to be determined to go the full distance in his return to his former exotic type of material, after a prolonged sojourn with a more serious type of subject. "Dynamite" is by Jeanie McPherson. Its featured players include Conrad Nagel, Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford and Julia Faye.

WOULD CURTAIL SHIPMENT OF LONG HOUR MILLS

Portland, Nov. 21.—Prohibition of interstate shipment of lumber made in mills which operate more than eight hours a shift is to be sought by the 4L organization, according to action taken by the 4L board of directors at its 22nd annual meeting held here Monday. The board, composed of 12 employers and 12 employees, instructed that a committee be appointed to draft at once a suitable resolution and send copies of it to senators and representatives from the Pacific northwest.

Forty-eight lumber operators and employees were present at the meeting. W. C. Ruegnitz, president, was in the chair.

Old age pensions was a subject much discussed. The board voted the aid of the 4L organization in working for old age pensions in Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

A telegram, commending President Hoover in calling the industrial conference, wishing it success and tendering the help of the organization was sent.

Mr. Ruegnitz reported that 897 claims totaling $23,120 had been paid 4L members through the 4L group disability insurance. He said that the first year of the insurance plan had been a success and that more and more locals were availing themselves of the plan.

No change in going or minimum wage scales were proposed.

DATES ARE ANNOUNCED FOR HARVEST FESTIVAL

Wednesday, December 5, has been chosen as the date for the harvest festival which the Christian church is planning to hold in their parlors to assist in raising funds for the church work. The doors will open at 6:30 p. m. that evening to the general public.

Mrs. Abbie Lynch, general chair-member of the committees man of the festival, announced Sunday the members of the committees which will assist her. E. E. Morrison will have charge of all the free entertainment, which will consist largely of music by the band and church orchestra.

Others on various committees are Mrs. A. C. Travis and Mrs. E. E. Morrison, who will have charge of the various booths from which will be sold an almost unlimited number of items. Miss Frances Travis is directing the publicity.
