The most satisfactory sort of practical house dress remains—as it has been for many years—the one piece dress of cotton or linen material.

Now there are cotton house frocks that carry out the new fashion ideas as effectively as the more expensive dresses of silk or wool. They show the raised waistline—usually marked by a belt of some sort, which should never be too tightly drawn. Skirts are a trifle longer but not enough longer to cause any awkwardness, and the new flare produced by pleats or godets permits ease of motion to satisfy even the most athletic of housewives.

The return to fashion of the separate blouse strikes me as a real boon to the woman who must make a small dress allowance go a long way.

The most practical of the new blouses are washable, and the woman who has acquired the habit of washing her own dainty lingerie should find it no hardship to wash and iron a blouse or two every week.

In selecting a blouse of the washable sort you should not merely satisfy yourself that the material itself is washable. Remember that the better grade crepe de chine and wash silk is much less likely to shrink than the cheaper, flimsier sort. Pleated frills and ruffles are attractive, but they lose their charm once they have been washed. Be sure that the buttons used to fasten the cuffs or to provide ornament to the blouse are of the washable sort.

It is always wiser to select a blouse made of one color than one in which a colored material is used for trimming on a light blouse. If the color "runs" a little in the wash no harm is done to the monotone blouse—whereas if a colored material is used on a light blouse even a little "run-ning" will be disastrous.

OVERPRODUCTION SHUTS SAWMILL DOWN AGAIN

The sawmill at the Booth-Kelly Lumber mill at Springfield was shut down again for the third time this year on Tuesday night. Some of the planers are still running.

Overproduction and bad markets are given as the reasons for the suspension of operations. It is not certain just when the mill will reopen, but it is believed it will be next Monday.

UPPER WILLAMETTE

Fire destroyed the house occupied by the Fuller family at Pleasant Hill Thursday morning of last week. All of the contents of the building were removed by the family and neighbors. The blaze was started by a spark from the chimney eating into the roof. The neighboring farmers were called by telephone and rushed to the assistance of the family.

The house is a large two story building and was about half a mile from the Willamette highway, north of the H. C. Wheeler home. It was the property of Mr. Dennis, who lives in the McHawk valley. The loss is partially covered by insurance, it is understood.

The young people's Christian Endeavor society will give a supper and play "Friday for Luck" at the Pleasant Hill church Friday, March 28. The Lighthouse Tragedy is another feature of the program in addition to readings and musical numbers. It is announced. The supper will be served from 6:00 o'clock to 8:00 and there will be a charge of 35c per plate.

Mrs. Alice English and her daughter, Margaret, accompanied by Mr. Olaf Holderson, all of Eugene, spent Sunday with friends at Pleasant Hill. Mrs. English and daughter formerly resided at Pleasant Hill.

Practice for the junior play has begun at the high school.
