Very Latest

Here is the dressing sack that we have found so convenient and that can be packed as easily as a large handkerchief in one's vacation trunk or bag. We suggest making one for yourself now, and several more to use for Christmas presents or bridge party prizes later on.

The material measures a yard and a half the long way and a yard the other way. You will need five and a half yards of lace which is applied flat and mited at the corners. If you do not want lace you can finish the edge with feather stitching done with silk to match the jacket.

The slit is about nine inches long. Turn the raw edges of the slit back on the right side a quarter of an inch, running down almost to nothing at the ends, and cover with a strip of rosebud trimming. Or else don't turn the edges back—just bind them with a piece of ribbon, soft, narrow ribbon, not more than three-quarters of an inch wide. And lay the rosebud trimming over that.

If you want you can bind the whole thing with ribbon, instead of turning a hem, and then bind the neck opening with the same ribbon and omit the rosebud trimming.

Earn Scholarships

The four young men pictured with their supervisor are calling on the women of this city during the past week securing subscriptions for a national woman's magazine which offers university scholarships each year to a certain number of picked representatives who have to earn their own way through school.

A team of four boys usually travel over two or three states during the summer months taking subscriptions and when they return to their schools in September they find a check for more than enough to pay their tuition expenses awaiting them. The publication company does not pay the scholarships directly to the boys, but instead mails the check to the treasurer of the school where the boy is attending and instructs him not to actually turn any of the money over to the boys, but to draw on the scholarship check for school expenses, thus eliminating all possibility of finding professional magazine sellers working for them under the guise of college boys. The boys are paid a small percentage of their sales each week during the summer to live on and this is not enough to induce the professional to take up the work without the scholarship.

The integrity of the four boys, who have been working in this county for the past two weeks, has been vouched for by the Eugene dealer handling the publication's patterns. The boys all play musical instruments and have been on two radio programs during the last week.

During the remaining months of the boys' vacation they will travel in southern and eastern Oregon continuing their sales work until they have sold the required number of subscriptions.

Radio is, this month, 65 years of age, according to those historians who date its birth from the conception of the idea of radio transmission first promulgated by James Clark Maxwell, in 1865. This was not proved until 22 years later when Heinrich Hertz, in 1887, showed the existence of electrical waves in the ether. In 1894, Marconi, adapted a device of Hertz's so that it became the first instrument capable of transmitting and receiving radio impulses. This was the wireless.

Without this primary work and that of Emil Berliner's invention of the microphone for telephonic conversation, in 1877, we should not enjoy the fine variety of musical programs, talks, and plays that are poured out into the air for our pleasure.

Joe White, who is the Silver Masked Tenor of NBC, was on the verge of singing "You're the Sweetest Girl in the World" on the afternoon of June 22, when the program was interrupted to read an announcement concerning the birth of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's son.

"Make it the 'sweetest boy in the world' and we'll dedicate the number to the new baby," whispered the singer to Milt Cross, his announcer.

"Brad" Reynolds, tenor of the "Roundtowners" quartet over CBS, abandoned a medical course in college to become a singer. He left home in St. Joseph, Mo., and arrived in New York with $9 in cash and an ambition to become a great concert artist. The ambition never left him, altho the $9 did, and he washed dishes in a bowery restaurant for quite a while to eat. Finally he got his start singing in a church in Jersey City. Today he is considered one of the finest young lyric tenors on the air.

Possibly the World's Softest Job is that of the page boys in the NBC building who stand at the elevator signal buttons on each floor and push the button for those who wish to ride. The nattily-dressed page on the top floor has the easiest task of all. He has only one button to push—down.

Anna Case, NBC soprano, gave her quite valuable services free of charge to a benefit performance at the Neshanic, New Jersey, Reformed church recently. And thereby hangs a tale.

Twenty years ago Miss Case was an unknown but ambitious young vocalist. She needed funds to continue her studies. The Neshanic church employed her as a soloist at $12 a month. But that $12 paid for the music lessons that started her on the road to fame. Evidently Miss Case didn't forget.

Frank Crummit, WABC star, was the first professional to use the ukelele on the stage. He did this during an engagement at the Palace theatre in New York, many years ago. He still has the clippings, in which the critics call the instrument every conceivable name except a ukelele.

Senator Watson, floor leader of the Republican party in the senate, must have his little joke. He displaced the Nit Wit program to broadcast a talk on the tariff over the Columbia network. When he was told that the Nit Wit hour had been cancelled he said, "This is the first I knew that the Democrats had an hour on the air."
