

OREGON STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Principal Events of the Week Assembled for Information of Our Readers.

Fire destroyed the pioneer plant of the Springfield Mill & Grain company, causing damage estimated at $250,000.

A large black bear recently walked into the town of Metolius, just after noon as the children were on the way to school.

Forty to 50 tons of tomatoes were being canned each day at the Bagley cannery in Ashland during the peak of the season.

Evergreen blackberries in the Silverton district will yield only about 50 per cent of what they did last year, according to reports from growers.

Albany, Corvallis, Eugene and Salem will unite in a publicity campaign of the Willamette valley counties for the purpose of securing desirable settlers.

An effort to keep the Wapinitia cut off open to travel this winter will be made by the state highway department unless unusual conditions develop.

Two carloads of cold-pack blackberries, the first to be shipped out of the Rogue River valley, were started recently for eastern markets by the Bagley Canning company of Ashland.

Truman Lukenbach of Scio claims that he took 44 potatoes from a single hill at his place. They were of the Burbank variety and all but four were fully matured and of marketable size.

A Junction City creamery, owned by A. R. Christensen & Son, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin. Christensen estimated the loss at $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

Construction of a new lookout station on top of Mount McLaughlin in southern Oregon is being rushed before winter storms. The new house was transported to the top of the peak in pieces.

Polk county farmers are filing applications for irrigation permits very rapidly, according to County Agent Beck. Thus far 43 farmers have permits to irrigate 1972 acres from the streams and lakes of the county.

Moet of the Surprise valley crop of alfalfa seed from Klamath county has been shipped to market with about two carloads remaining in scattered units. Five carloads have been sent out to date. The crop was cut short this year by inroads of the army worms.

Billie Miles, 2, of Redmond, swallowed a safety pin recently while his mother, Mrs. Orval Miles, was undressing him to remove ants that had crawled onto his body while he was at play. He was brought in to the doctor and the safety pin was located by X-ray.

Sheep growers of Morrow county have already shipped 35,000 lambs to eastern markets this year, and 15,000 more are expected to go during the season. C. W. Smith, county agent, is keeping an accurate check on shrinkage and costs for use at shipping time next year.

B. F. Goodpasture of Vida will harvest between three and four tons of filberts from his baby-filbert trees this year. This is about three times the yield last year. Mr. Goodpasture has the largest filbert orchard in the upper McKenzie, 35 acres being planted to the nuts.

Two small children burned to death in a fire which destroyed the farm home of Harlan Yarrington about 10 miles east of Elgin. The parents had gone to the barn to do the milking. When they discovered the fire, timbers were falling in, and although several attempts were made to rescue the children they were unable to reach them.

BARLEY PROVES GOOD POULTRY FEED SAYS EXTENSION SPECIALIST

Use of barley as a chicken feed in place of corn is the subject of an article issued recently by H. E. Cosby, extension poultry specialist of the Oregon state college.

The protracted drought in the great corn belt has caused a short crop of corn. Its price will be relatively higher than the price of Oregon wheat, oats, and barley," says Mr. Cosby.

Requests for information relative to the partial substitution of barley for corn have exceeded the requests for any other poultry information and the article was written to meet this demand.

"Poultry meat and egg prices have undergone a period of lowered prices in keeping with generally depressed economics throughout the civilized world. The well informed poultryman, facing this condition, will attempt to lower production costs. Feed costs represent about 55 per cent of the total cost of producing eggs. Many poultrymen will make a partial substitution of barley for corn and will use more low priced wheat and oats," according to the specialist.

May Use 15 Per Cent Barley.
Barley may be ground and used safely and economically to the extent of 15 per cent of the mash ration. This will replace about 50 per cent of the yellow corn used in the average mash ration.

Whole barley may be used at the rate of 20 per cent of the scratch grain mixture. In sections where Hanchen barley is available it should be given preference. It is a heavy grain, low in fiber and more palatable because the objectionable spurs, or awns, are knocked off in threshing. When other varieties are used better results will be obtained by having it rolled before using it in the scratch.

An example of the substitution of barley for corn in a mash formula is given by making the change in the O. A. C. formula number 1. It would have the following ingredients: 400 pounds of millrun, 400 pounds ground wheat, 300 pounds ground corn, 200 pounds ground barley, 200 pounds meat scraps, 100 pounds fish meal, 50 pounds O. P. meal, and 50 pounds bone meal.

The scratch feed formula is as follows: 800 pounds whole wheat, 400 pounds whole yellow corn, 400 pounds Hanchen or rolled barley and 400 pounds gray oats.

The mash ration is best fed with liquid milk. Powdered milk at the rate of 5 per cent may be used instead. Oyster shell, grit charcoal and grit is fed in hoppers. If no green feed is available 4 per cent of high protein alfalfa leaf meal should be included. Cod liver oil is fed during the winter confinement period.

Barley is not as palatable as wheat or corn. It takes time to teach poultry to eat any new grain. It is better therefore to feed barley alone for one of the daily grain feeds for a few days before including it in the scratch.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexal Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation Chew a Rexal Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at Flanery's Rexal Drug Store.
