That Old Horseshoe Game

Why call it "barn-yard golf,"
That age-old horseshoe game,
Just to sneer, deride and scoff;
Try to cheapen with a name?

We wear no checkered cap
Nor do our pants tuck at the knees,
We know not of the putter,
Or the mashie, or the tees.

The young and old enjoy it,
It will drive away the blues,
And bring you health and vigor
If you win or if you lose.

I've a vision of the future
In its beauty I behold
Just piles and piles of horseshoes
And the stakes are made of gold.

They say the bells of heaven
Are a-ringing at the gate,
But I think it must be horseshoes
A-striking on the stake.

—D. J. Beals.

George Bancroft in a scene from his latest starring picture, "The Derelict" a Paramount Production at the Fox McDonald starting Friday.

GREAT DRAMATIC STORY "DERELICT" AT McDONALD

A belligerent, two-fisted sea captain will swagger onto the screen at the Fox McDonald theatre next Friday and Saturday and, while storms rage, ships flounder in mountainous seas, men battle for their lives in a pitiless sea, he will thrill you as no other screen character has thrilled you ever.

For this belligerent sea captain is none other than George Bancroft, deep-chested star of "Wolf of Wall Street," "Ladies Love Brutes," "The Mighty," fighting to keep a sluggish tramp steamer afloat through the fury of a tropical storm.

Out of the angry night comes the "mantic staccato signal of a ship in distress, "S.O.S."—"S.O.S."—And he knows that, aboard the floundering craft is the one man in the world he hates, and the woman who double-crossed him. That's the climatic situation of "Derelict," the picture that takes George Bancroft from the under-world, and sends him to sea.

"Derelict" is a great story for Bancroft. In it he has the type of characterization which has won him universal fame, in a new setting, in a story with a new theme, against the ever-fascinating background of the sea.

Wally Wales at Rex Hollywood—Most of our movie heroes have been soda water cowboys who play at cattle punchers.

Three yips and a hurrah for Wally Wales, hero of many of Mary Roberts Rinehart's novels and Saturday Evening Post stories, who plays at pictures and is a sure-nuff cowboy and bronco-busting he-man!

Wally, who will appear at the Rex theatre in "Trails of Danger" starting Friday is of the new order of Western star—as different from the old as a boy scout meeting is from the Riff war. The old order learned their "cow-punching" on a studio set; the new order, of which Wally is no less than pioneer, found their teachers in the hard-riding cow-ponies of their youth and their companions—the hard-cussing, hard fighting cowboys of the prairie and range.
