Every home dressmaker should know how to make a neat belt, because so many of the new dresses, both for daytime and evening, are finished with belts—usually made of the material of the dress.

The easiest way to make a belt is to make it from a strip of material twice as wide as the belt is to be when finished, plus two-thirds of an inch, so that the belt may be turned in a third of an inch at each side. The diagram shows how to cut a belt of this simple sort. Turn in the edges a third of an inch—fold the belt in the center and for the entire length and turn in the ends so that it will be pointed at one end. Do not turn in the other end. Then baste the two sides and one end together evenly and stitch fairly close to the edge. The buckle is attached to the straight end that has not been turned under.

You may cut the belt in one piece of the same width as for the belt just described. Then fold in the center so that the right sides of the material are on the inside facing each other and stitch along the edge and one end in a seam a third of an inch wide. Then turn the belt right side out, which may be done easily if a hair pin or large safety pin is attached to the pointed end and forced down through the tube that is to form the belt. Now press the belt flat along the end and sides.

If you like you may cut the belt in two pieces. Place the pieces together right side in, stitch and turn right side out in the manner just described.

Still another way is to cut the belt of the desired size, allowing a third of an inch on all sides. Turn under the edges and baste and then cut a piece a trifle smaller than the first piece, turn under and baste on to the first piece to form a lining or facing.

Usually no interlining is necessary but when the material is very thin you may use an interlining of the size of the finished belt. This is made of heavy unbleached cotton or light-weight canvas, but it should not be too stiff.

Usually the belt is finished with a buckle at the straight edge and eyelets finished with buttonhole stitch at the other. Three of these eyelets, placed an inch or three-quarters of an inch apart are usually enough.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TO START MOTOR PICK-UP AND DELIVERY SERVICE

Store-door pickup and delivery of freight is shortly to be established on the lines of the Southern Pacific company through the medium of its subsidiary, the Pacific Motor Transport company, according to an announcement issued by L. C. Young, vice-president and manager of the latter company. He has filed a schedule of tariffs and notice of intention to operate such a line at the state capitol in Salem. The new service, explains Mr. Young, will provide a complete service from the store door of the shippers at point of origin to the store door of the consignee at point of destination all for one rate, the rate of the transport company being comparable with those of other carriers providing the same type of service.

The Pacific Motor Transport company's method of operation is to use motor trucks in cities and towns for pick-up and delivery work, performing the haul between towns by rail under contract arrangement with the Southern Pacific company, according to the announcement. The service offered to its patrons being complete in every respect.

One of the outstanding features of this new service is the fact, as explained by Young, that instead of purchasing their own trucks for use in cities and towns served and going into competition with local draymen, the Pacific Motor Transport company in every instance has made a contract with local draymen to perform this service for the account of the Transport company.

Carl Olson, agent for the Southern Pacific company in Springfield, will act as joint agent for the Pacific Motor Transport company and the company designated to handle the contract for the pick-up and delivery work in this city. Operations are scheduled to commence on December 5.

CLARA BOW MAKES "LOVE AMONG THE MILLIONAIRES"

Clara Bow has discovered that love is just as exciting among the millionaires as it is with ordinary folk, and the "It" personality is at its finest in the sparkling, comedy-full musical romance, "Love Among the Millionaires," showing at the Colonial theatre for two days starting Friday next, as it was when confined to the fleet in "True to the Navy."

Amid the clatter of dishes and the bliant tones of a nickel-in-the-slot piano, "Love Among the Millionaires" gets underway. Clara sings a song, "Believe It or Not, I've Found My Man." That's where Stanley Smith comes in and transports the Redhead to a fairy paradise of the wealthy at Palm Beach. But, even then, everything refuses to run smoothly.

Stanley has a father, Claude King, who thinks a son of the rich shouldn't marry a girl of the poor, and, likewise, Clara has a father, Charles Sellon, who declares no daughter of his will marry a wealthy man. While the old chaps get together, Clara and Stanley have a misunderstanding which almost breaks up the romance.

FISH AND GAME BODY TO RELEASE 300,000 TROUT IN MCKENZIE

Three hundred thousand rainbow trout will be released in the McKenzie river at the close of the fishing season in 1931 according to David Evans, chairman of the State fish and game commission. The declaration was made by Mr. Evans last Thursday evening when he addressed the members of the Lane county chamber of commerce at their meeting at the Howard dining room on the Pacific highway, north of Eugene.

The fish which will be released in 1931 were hatched in 1929 and will be between nine and twelve inches in length when they are released. The game commission believes that the liberation of larger fish and doing so immediately after the close of the season will materially reduce the number which ordinarily fall to live.

C. P. Barnard, county judge, reported to the meeting that every effort would be made to complete construction work on the Willamette highway during the next year.

W. A. Taylor and W. K. Barnell, of Springfield, attended the meeting which was presided over by H. E. Maxey, president of the organization.

The next meeting will be held at Junction City and they have promised to have a speaker talk on the canalization of the Willamette river.
