Cooley Sells Interest to Pohl; Will Now Operate Sound Theatre at Reedsport

Five important business changes have been announced in Springfield this week, principal one which is the purchase of Gray's Seed and Feed store from A. R. Gray of Eugene by Irish Murphy company. Other changes are the sale by Clarence Cooley of his interest in the Springfield Electric company to M. A. Pohl; the purchase of the Dodd Miller plumbing business by his former partner, Neil Pollard; the closing of the Bell Theatre; and the moving of the Rodenbough radio store to 240 Main street.

Probably the most important of all the announced changes will be the purchase of the feed and seed store which was owned and operated by Dallas Murphy and A. R. Gray following the sale of the Gray grocery interests to M. R. Irish. The store will hereafter be known as the Irish-Murphy Seed and Feed company. No changes are anticipated in the personnel. Marion Adams will continue to manage the feed store for the new owners. Future plans for the store call for changes, the nature of which could not be announced this week.

Canal Would Aid Land Drainage

Dr. Hodge Suggests New Approach to Canalization: Group at Salem Friday

Members of the Willamette Valley Waterways association decided at their meeting at Salem last Friday to delay the request for a public hearing on the proposed canalization of the Willamette river from Oregon City to Springfield until October when it is proposed to compile a new set of figures of actual tonnage now available, the possible saving which may be gained by use of water transportation, and the prospective future tonnage which may be developed if water transportation rates can be obtained at all points along the valley.

Clifford Wilson, member of the board of directors from Springfield, told the men present at the meeting that the canalization of the river would mean a great development of the pole business in this city as Seattle now has a freight differential of $1.25 which cannot be overcome here without cheaper transportation.

A. F. S. Steele, secretary of the Eugene chamber of commerce, told the group that the figures which the board of army engineers in Washington had used in reaching their decision not to approve of the plan were those of 1928, and which showed Lane county as having 88,000 tons of tonnage as against an actual tonnage of 800,000. Tonnage from only three counties were considered by the board in making its decision, he said.

A new method of approach to the problem was suggested by Dr. E. T. Hodge, professor of geology at the University of Oregon, in an address in which he stated that the Willamette river has a bed but cannot stay in it. He suggested the regulation of the river, using the canalization as a means to this end. He explained that the river can be regulated and if regulated would transform the Willamette by reason of straightening the course of the river and deepening the channel. This would assist in drainage of lands adjacent to the river which are not productive at the present time because of being too wet.

The next meeting of the group will be held in the grand ballroom of the Multnomah hotel in Portland at noon on April 17. A delegation of 300 people interested in this work is expected at the meeting.

LANE ASSURED OF LARGE FOREST ROAD PROGRAM

State to Get $1,344,741 for Forest Road Work in 1931 and Again in Year 1932

A highway program in the National forests of Oregon for the year 1932 fully as extensive as that of this year, which is itself setting a new record, was assured this week when advice from Washington, D. C. stated that Oregon will receive $1,344,741 out of the allocation of $9,500,000 in forest highway funds to be expended in 33 states and territories in the fiscal year 1932.

The total for the United States is the same as that being expended this year. The 1931 program is being rushed to aid in relief of unemployment, as well as to open up national forest areas to use and to facilitate protection of forest and watershed against fire, according to Regional Forester C. J. Buck, at Portland.

Oregon ranks second of all states in the total amount received. California being the only state to receive a greater allotment of funds.

The funds are used in the states having national forest lands within their boundaries, and is apportioned on a basis of acreage and value of these forests.

The construction and maintenance of the forest highways is handled by the bureau of public roads.

The highway building program for this year is more than double that of former years and it is expected that much new work will be completed in the National forests of Lane county during the next two years.

SHRUB PLANTING TOLD CIVIC GROUP

Usable Native Shrubs and Proper Care Requirements Explained by Woodruff

LATE LAWNS ARE BEST

Mrs. Honeyman Asks Cooperation of Club in County Cleanup Campaign

Much valuable information concerning the selection and planting of native and imported ornamental shrubs in this vicinity was given at the Community hall Tuesday evening by Roy Woodruff, Lane county horticulturist, in an address before the members of the Civic club.

Other out-of-town visitors at the meeting which was well attended, including Miss Gertrude Skow, Lane home demonstration agent, Mrs. Ella Edmundson, Mrs. Jessie Honeyman, Mrs. Miles, and Mrs. Reiter, all of Eugene.

Mrs. Stanley Baugh and Mrs. J. Edgell, of Stafford Ridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Bailey of Bailey Hill.

Mrs. Reiter was formerly a Miss Kelly, and a daughter of the former owner of the townsite of Springfield after whom Kelly butte has been named.

Plantings Discussed
Woodruff spoke on the subject, "The Planting and Transplanting of Shrubs." He told of the many native trees and shrubs in this county which were suitable for ornamental use, but which were in danger of becoming extinct if they were not protected.

Four of these, he stated, are especially adaptable to transplanting. They are Oregon grape, myrtle, rhododendron, and chinquapin. These plants are not difficult to transplant, he stated, saying that care should be taken not to damage the roots and that the roots should be protected with leaf mold or peat moss. They may be moved anytime between the months of November and June.

Native evergreen should be transplanted in the spring before they set their new leaf growths. This is usually done in March or April. They should be pruned the same time of the year and should be pruned to the desired shape.

A good rule to follow in pruning trees and shrubs is to trim all those which blossom in June or earlier after they have bloomed. Other plants should be trimmed before June.

Lawns are best planted in warm weather instead of in cold weather as is often supposed, he declared. The ground works better and the seed grows quicker and more evenly.

The necessity of using sprays on all bushes and plants at times was discussed by Mr. Woodruff in closing his address.

Cleanup Aid Requested

Cooperation of the local club in the county wide effort to obtain the Samuel Hill award for outdoor improvements was asked by Mrs. Honeyman. She is making a survey of the county pointing out all unsightly things such as ash piles, old buildings, delapidated signs, and other things which should be cleaned up or removed. Junior class members offered "The Love Nest," while the seniors chose, "Boots and Her Buddies" as their presentation skit.

The high school auditorium was filled for the event which also had as special curtain entertainment acts, a banjo-harmonica solo by Richard Liles, a violin solo by Edward Glaspay, and a vocal solo by Virginia Hansen.

More than $12 was taken in as proceeds from the production. The sum of $48.50 has been used to make the final payment on the stage curtain. The balance has been turned over to the student body treasury. This is believed to be a new record for receipts at high school functions.

Parts of his body were badly mangled by rocks and other debris lifted by the explosion.

NEW CLASS IDEA MAY HAVE TRIAL

School Board Considers Establishment of Opportunity Class in Springfield

WOULD AID STUDENTS

Plan Would Require Another Teacher and Special Room for Proposed Group

Starting of an opportunity class in the school system of this city is now being considered by the school board according to Dr. W. H. Pollard, chairman. The proposal has been discussed at previous meetings and will probably be given final decision at the next regular board meeting which will be held on April 6.

Opportunity classes are new ventures in most school systems, and are especially such in cities the size of Springfield. They are organized to aid those students who, due to illness, lack of interest, or a great many other causes, have fallen behind their class mates in their regular school work, and who would necessarily remain behind the rest of their grade school career without some additional assistance such as would be offered under the new system.

Under the proposed plan all grade school children who are behind in school work would be placed in one small class with a special teacher who did nothing else but supervise the study and aid the progress of the individual members of the group.

This plan, if worked out successfully, would mean that each child could progress just as rapidly as his ability would warrant until he was able to return to his regular class again.

The inclusion of this special class in the school system of the city would require two major changes. It would make it necessary to equip a room for the group and to employ an additional teacher to take over this work or to relieve one of the present staff members, if one is assigned to this work.
