

WILLIAM HAINES IN "JUST A GIGOLO" SHOWS

Starting Sunday the Fox McDonald theatre is presenting William Haines in his latest movie production, "Just a Gigolo," taken from the play "Dancing Partners."

Haines is his usual bubbling self with an added touch in his latest picture of a more serious nature. He demonstrates ably his ability to portray more than one kind of role and it is said that "Just a Gigolo" is the best thing he has done to date.

He is supported by C. Aubrey Smith, Charlotte Granville, and many other stars who give the young star many a chance to show his wares.

Lew Ayres, who plays the stellar role in "Iron Man," the Universal feature which comes to the Fox McDonald theatre next Friday claims to have learned one thing early in life—it is difficult to do two things at once and be taken seriously in both.

Lew Ayres is a good musician. He not only plays the banjo, but also the organ and had his own orchestra for a season. He made his living from his music for several years.

A doctor's patients may be dangerous rivals to his wife, but what about another doctor stealing her love?

This is the climaxing situation in "Doctors' Wives," Fox drama coming to the Fox McDonald theatre next Wednesday.

CIVIC CLUB PICNIC PLANNED JUNE 29

Women Hold Final Session Before Vacation; Complete Rose Show Business

Plans for a picnic, the tentative date of which has been set for Tuesday, June 30, were discussed at the regular meeting of the Springfield Women's Civic club at the Community hall Tuesday evening. This was the final meeting of the group until fall. The next meeting will be held early in September.

Present plans are to make the picnic an all-day affair to be held at the home of Mrs. Ora Hemenway west of Cottage Grove. Mrs. Hemenway is a former resident of Springfield and was very active in the Civic club while residing here. All persons having room for extra passengers are requested to notify her. Also, all persons who do not have transportation should call her before the picnic.

The picnic is not restricted to members of the club according to Mrs. Wheaton, president of the club. Any women of Springfield who are interested in the work of the organization are welcome to attend.

Final business for the year was transacted at the meeting Tuesday. Affairs of the Rose show held two weeks ago were closed. Books of the treasurer showed that the affair paid its own expenses this year. The surplus was so small that it was decided not to give any prizes for winners of ribbons in the flower exhibit.

PRETTY WEDDING HELD AT THURSTON JUNE 4

Miss Ruth Lyman, Assistant Pastor, Becomes Bride of Rev. Victor Hershizer

The most beautiful church wedding ever held in Thurston was solemnized Thursday evening, June 4, when Miss Ruth Lyman, assistant pastor of Thurston church and Rev. Victor Hershizer pastor of the church were united in marriage by the bride's brother, Rev. W. H. Lyman of Stayton with the double ring ceremony. Mrs. S. E. Stevens from Eugene played the Lohengrin wedding march. Mrs. Walter P. Stevens of Eugene sang, "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Hershizer entered the church under an arch of fern held by members of her Bible school class. Little Norma Hart and Betty Henson were flower girls. The church was beautifully decorated the electric lights were turned out and the building lighted with candles.

Mrs. C. M. Lyman of Eugene was matron of honor and Norman Lyman of Eugene and Donald Davis attended the couple, the bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Carl Lyman of Denver, Colorado, her dress was cream satin, she wore a veil of cream lace net and carried a large bouquet of flowers. Mr. Hershizer is a graduate of Eugene Bible university this year and Mrs. Hershizer is a student there also. They plan to continue their work at the E. B. U. next year. Their many friends here wish them much happiness in their future.

SELF-HELP CLOTHING NEW FOR SMALL CHILD

Proper Clothing Boon to Mothers Teaching Small Children to Dress Themselves

Self-help garments, designed to save time for busy mothers as well as encourage habits of self-reliance in children, constitute the latest thing for the well-dressed three and four year old this year, says Mrs. Harriet K. Sinnard, extension specialist in clothing at Oregon State college.

A group of small dresses and suits for little tots of this age have been designed by the bureau of home economics, U. S. department of agriculture, and several sample outfits have recently been received by Mrs. Sinnard for inspection.

The average child of three years is old enough to begin to dress and undress himself if his clothing is simply designed and without complicated fastenings. Mrs. Sinnard says. This is not only a help to mothers but the child enjoys it and develops through it a feeling of self-reliance.

Among the features of the new garments which facilitate manipulation by small chubby fingers are few buttons and buttonholes, but where needed, these are large enough to be easily grasped. Trousers have simple side openings instead of the usual packets. This allows the front and back to open independently, and each button has but one buttonhole. In many cases trousers have simulated pockets which form drop fronts.

Bloomers and trousers in many cases are fastened to an underwaist of light weight cotton mesh. This makes an ideal sun suit, according to Mrs. Sinnard. Simple little dresses and overblouses to match the bloomers and trousers are provided. These may be slipped on over the sun suits and little son or daughter is all dressed up and ready for a trip to town.

Other aids to comfort and freedom for the youngsters are sleeves above the elbows, trousers above the knees, and no floppy collars. The collars, where used, are sewed down, which makes for ease in ironing.

Information regarding patterns for the new garments may be obtained from home demonstration agents, or from Mrs. Sinnard at the college.
