

PLANT NEW CROP NOW SAYS EXPERT

State College Expert Stresses Advantages of Planting Crimson Red Clover

HEAVY YIELDS OBTAINED

Much of the Seed Is Imported into United States; Raise Some in Eastern States

Planting crimson clover as an emergency crop in Willamette valley fields where spring grain failed to produce adequate stands for a paying crop is now being recommended by G. H. Hyslop, chief of farm crops at the Oregon Experiment Station at Corvallis.

Several of the farmers in this vicinity have taken advantage of the opportunity for planting of the late rains of the past week and local seed dealers report some renewed buying activity as a consequence. Many of them are planting the red clover.

Farmers in the upper McKenzie and Mohawk districts declare that they now have a better opportunity of producing a paying hay or feed crop after the rainfall, they had the first of May and earlier when most of the farm crops were planted in dry soil.

Commenting on his suggestion that red clover be planted now, Professor Hyslop declares that the ground should be worked immediately to retain the moisture which it now holds.

He believes that Oregon can profitably produce a large share of the crimson clover seed now being imported into the United States. More than 3,000,000 pounds were brought into the country during the past 11 months. Large quantities of the seed are used in southern states where the crop is grown for soil and green manure crops. Unhulled seed for local use is now being harvested along the Atlantic seaboard from Delaware to Georgia, he states, but their commercial production is seriously hampered by rains during the harvest season.

Yields of 450 to 600 pounds of seed per acre are usually obtained in the Willamette valley although the Oregon Experiment station has had yields as high as 1200 pounds per acre. Crops which are up by the latter part of July will produce a seed crop the following year. If germination is delayed until fall the chances for a profitable crop of seed the next year are doubtful, especially on cold, poor, or heavy soil, says Hyslop.

One or two year old seed, sown 20 pounds to the acre, has been found to give the best results.

Boundary Board For Wheeler Law

School Officials Attend Meeting at Courthouse Tuesday to Urge Change in Act

The high schools of Lane county will very likely operate again during the next year under the Wheeler Law instead of turning back to the old state law which is being used by every county in Oregon with the exception of Lane according to Dr. W. H. Pollard, chairman of the Springfield board who attended a meeting at the court house in Eugene Tuesday. The meeting had been called by the county boundary board to hear discussions for and against continued operation of the high school districts under the present law.

H. C. Wheeler, legislator of Pleasant Hill and father of the law is in attendance at the meeting and defended his law. The boundary board seemed satisfied with the operation of the present law, and it will probably remain unchanged, although final action has not been taken.

School officials from Cottage Grove, Springfield, Eugene and Junction City attending the meeting protested that law as now enforced was not fair to the districts maintaining the schools.

Members of the boundary board argued that operation of school buses would be a prohibitory expense.

AIR TOUR COMING FRIDAY, JULY 3RD

Spectacular Program of Racing, Stunting, and Formation Flying to Be Seen

MISS HESTER COMING

More Than 50 Modern Ships Signed; Many Famous Women Pilots Are in Show

Thousands of people will flock to the Springfield Municipal Airport from all parts of Lane county, Friday, July 3, to witness the second Pacific Northwest Air Tour which will bring to this city at least 50 of the latest and best makes of aircraft all of which will be piloted by skilled aviators and many of which will be handled by nationally known fliers.

An entirely new group of planes will be included in the caravan than was exhibited at the airport last summer, and the program itself has been organized with a new background. Seventeen of the best stunts and exhibitions ever used in air shows in the United States have been incorporated into the tentative program by Russell Lawson, general manager of the tour, and Major French, army flier, who will have charge of movements of the ships.

Headlining the visiting pilots which will include a half dozen women fliers, will be Miss Dorothy Hester of Portland, holder of the world's record for both men and women for continuous outside loops. She will bring her Great Lakes training ship which was presented to her by the manufacturers while on a visit to the plant a few months ago. She will do all the stunts which can be done with a plane, including several outside loops which held the large crowd at the field last year breathless. She will also attempt to do an inverted outside loop. This is recognized as the most difficult event on the program. Tex Rankin and a score of other daring pilots will also thrill the crowd with their stunting.

The ships will arrive at the field at 10 o'clock Friday morning and will probably leave again at 2:00 in the afternoon.

Show Program
1. Arrival of planes: All planes will fly low across field in order that they may be observed closely in flight.

2. Inspection of ships: From the time ships are parked, thirty minutes will be devoted to the inspection of planes by spectators.

3. Parachute jump by Miss Billie Brown of Los Angeles: Premier woman parachute jumper of the world. Has the greatest number of jumps to her credit of any woman.

4. Stunting by Marshall Seagrave of Medford, Oregon, in his 250 horse power Speedwing Traveler.

5. Altitude race against time: Ships will take off and climb up to 1500 feet above the ground. They must then do either a loop, a barrel roll or one turn of a tall spin. Shortest time from ground to ground wins race. This is one of the most interesting stunts that has ever been introduced at any air show.

6. Stunting by Jonny Blum of Seattle, Washington: He is a naval pilot of exceptional ability. Will be flying a tapering wing Waco in demonstrations of stunts and speed.

7. Demonstration flying of new production planes: This will include quick take-offs, slow landings, climbing turns and demonstrating maneuverability of ship, showing safety and improvement of new planes.

8. Stunting and demonstrations by Gordon Mounts: Pacific Coast representative of the Fleet Air Craft corporation of Buffalo, N. Y.

9. Surprise act: No information will be given out on this performance, as it would spoil its effect.

10. Second parachute jump by Miss Brown's sister: One of these girls will make a delayed jump. That means she will delay opening her parachute until she has dropped at least 1000 feet from the ship.

11. Formation flying: There will be a formation of 3 Great Lake's airplanes; a formation of 3 Bird airplanes and 3 Fleet airplanes, and one National Guard squadron.

12. Flying lesson: In this event, we will endeavor to use the radio to explain the method of control of an airplane with actual demonstrations by a plane out in the center of the field.

13. Stunting by Tex Rankin: "Nuf Sed."

14. Gladys O'Donnell: Winner of practically all major closed course events and several cross country races, who will give a racing demonstration making pylon turns right off the ground.

15. Second surprise act of the day: No information will be given out on this act, but we will say that it includes everything that has ever been done in the way of stunt flying all rounded up into one act.

15. Speed demonstration by Florence Lowe (Pancho Barnes): In

Prepare Airport For Tour Ships

Grass Is Being Cut, Hangar to Be Moved Back From Center of Field

Considerable work is now under way at the Springfield municipal airport and more will be started during the next few days in preparation for the visit of the second Pacific Northwest States Air Tour which is scheduled to stop at the field Friday, July 3.

The grass on the entire field is being mowed down this week and this will be cleared off for hay before the tour ships arrive.

Braces have been placed on the second of the original two hangars at the field and it will be moved back to the road soon. It now sits out in the middle of the field and will be in the way when a large number of airplanes are lined up for inspection.

Parking of the many automobiles expected at the show this year will have to be handled on a different arrangement than was used last summer. It is planned to run a wire fence east and west from a position near the airplane filling station. Automobiles will be parked north of this fence and west of the largest hangar.

Visitors at the field now will find three planes always ready for use and one glider. Two gliders are in the process of construction or being rebuilt, and one small single place plane is being built. It will probably be ready for test flights in three weeks.

ASK DEPOSITORS TO PROVE CLAIMS

State Banking Officials Send Claim Blanks to All Known Depositors of Bank

DEPOSITORS NUMBER 900

First Payments Cannot Be Made Before Final Claims Are In September 24

Blanks on which all creditors of the defunct Commercial State bank shall make certified proof of claims are being mailed to all known depositors of the institution this week by officials representing the state banking department, and publication of the official Notice to Creditors, in compliance with state banking laws, is started in this issue of the News, September 24, 1931, has been set as the final date on which claims against the bank can be legally made.

This action definitely sets aside rumors that the first payments to depositors will be made very shortly. F. G. Havemann, deputy, in charge of the local institution, stated this week that no payments can be made until after the date on which final claims can be filed and added that it probably will be some time after that before the ratios of depositors returns can be worked out.

Mr. Havemann came to Springfield from Hubbard where he has been assisting in the settlement of affairs of the bank in that city which closed last spring.

Notary Public at Bank

The blank forms to be used in making affidavits of claims must be signed by a notary public before they are presented and filed. Mr. Havemann stated. He also said that depositors need not go to any expense in having the blanks attested to by a notary public as this can be done without cost by persons at the bank.

There are more than 800 known depositors of the bank. The commercial and savings departments will be liquidated separately.

Instructions accompanying the blank forms state that: "If you owe the bank and it holds your note in the same department as your deposit balance, either savings or commercial, an offset will be allowed. When the claim is filed you will be given a receipt bearing the same number."

The doors of the bank will be opened Friday morning for the convenience of those who were depositors of the institution.
