GOOD BASKETBALL ON NEW SCHEDULE

High School and Alumni to Tangle in Annual Affair at Gym Wednesday Night

ST. MARY'S TAKES GAME

Traveling West Linn Aggregation Stops Here Tuesday Night to Play Local H. S.

Two good basketball games will be offered Springfield sports lovers during the Christmas week, according to an announcement issued at Springfield high school Wednesday by W. E. Buell, principal.

Tuesday, December 29, the strong West Linn team will invade Springfield for an interesting game. The West Linn boys are going to make a barnstorming tour next week and will be guests of the Springfield high school overnight while here.

Although West Linn has not been in the state tournament for the past few years, their team has repeatedly been a runner-up in Oregon City district, and they can be counted on to bring a strong squad on the trip.

Equally interesting, or perhaps more so to Springfield followers will be the game the next night, Wednesday, December 30, when the regular high school five meets the alumni group in a benefit contest at the high school gymnasium.

These alumni-vs-H. S. games have grown to be annual affairs and have attracted considerable attention. Not infrequently do the former students romp away with the long end of a close score. This year the grads will have such players as Everett and Freeman Squires, Thurman, and the Tomseth brothers, in the lineup.

Admission to the game will be 25 cents and 10 cents. All proceeds will be used to purchase new basketball shoes for the regular high school team. The tickets are now on sale.

Both of these games will start at 8 o'clock.

Coach Norval May's regulars went down to a 23-21 defeat last Friday evening at the hands of St. Mary's in Eugene. The Springfield boys held the lead the first half, but were unable to stop St. Mary's boys from dropping in long baskets to even and finally pass their own score.

Proceeding the meeting the men held another of their stag covered dish dinners. Paper napkins, and paper tablecloths helped to create the proper atmosphere which made the meal successful and enjoyable.

The Brotherhood voted to pay the taxes for the last half of the year on the vacant lot owned by the church, and to pay the balance due on the bill for completing the work on the furnace in the parsonage.

BIDS CALLED FOR AERIAL SURVEY

Government Ready to Photograph Willamette River from Springfield to Corvallis

OPEN BIDS ON JANUARY 5

Work Must Start 10 Days After Awarding and be Completed 30 Days Later

Bids for photographing from the air the upper Willamette river from Springfield to Corvallis as a part of the canalization survey now being conducted by Army engineers, are to be opened at the office of Major Oscar O. Kuentz, district officer at his office in Portland on January 5. It was announced this week. The work is to cover an area of approximately 90 square miles. Specifications relative to the work set forth that the land to be photographed is approximately 2.5 miles wide, and the area indicated includes various channels and sloughs of the river. From the photographs is to be constructed a controlled mosaic of the area.

The work is authorized by an act approved February 23, 1931, and the specifications prescribe that it is to be begun within 10 calendar days after receipt of notice from the engineers and completed within 30 calendar days.

Reference is made to physical data to the effect that figures of the weather bureau show an average of four clear, six partly cloudy and 21 cloudy days in January. The December and February averages are about the same. High water and floods are experienced in January and February.

Land adjacent to the river is referred to as cultivated plain, providing many fields and pastures suitable for emergency landings. Commercial landing fields are located at Eugene and Albany.

"The river channels are narrow, the water swift and the banks lined with trees, so there are no water areas suitable for seaplane or amphibian landings and anchorages," according to the specifications.

Members of the survey crew now doing ground work left Wednesday for Portland to spend the Christmas holidays. They are expected to be back on duty Monday morning.

Student Players Draw Big House

Virginia Christie Carries Off Honors With Her Work as Evasive Debutante

Virginia Christie, playing the role of Ruby Mayfield, modern debutante in "The Hidden Guest" three-act mystery comedy, at the Springfield high school Friday night, carried away honors for the best performance.

Although not carrying the leading role, Eva Louk as Melanthura, "Melons," the superstitious housemaid, had an equally difficult part and gave a fine presentation of the role.

Others in the play carried their parts in a nice manner, but lacked the polish of the two mentioned. It is seldom that high school players are able to abandon their self-consciousness as well as these two did.

Mis Marguerite Milhollen directed the play which drew a large crowd.

Some comment was heard on the new stage settings used for the first time in the production of the play. Most of it was very favorable, although some expressed disappointment at the color scheme.

The cloth is a dark grey which easily lends itself to transformation to other colors with the proper use of colored stage and flood lights. In the hurry to get the stage properties in readiness the colored light had to be overlooked.

Members of the high school orchestra entertained with several selections before the play and between the first and second acts. Eldred Gaspy offered violin solos during the second intermission. The orchestra was augmented in two of its selections by xylophone solos played by Barbara Barnell.

NEEDY FAMILIES GIVEN BASKETS

All Poor People of City Provided with Christmas Dinner Food Through Relief Depot

TOYS ARE INCLUDED

Work of Community Group Has Been Successful; Minimum Money is Required

Christmas will be a brighter and happier day for some 24 needy families in the vicinity of Springfield because of the generosity of the residents of the city and surrounding farm territory.

Mrs. Ida Gantz, Mrs. Carl Olson, Mrs. Scott, and Mrs. Wheaton four loyal workers spent the past two days preparing Christmas baskets for the needy people on their list. Baskets can hardly be the correct term, however as many of the boxes which were filled with supplies are even larger than most of the old-fashioned clothes baskets.

These ladies are acting on behalf of the people of the entire city. Contributions and donations of foods and produce of all kinds have been very generously contributed by individuals and organizations. Farmers have supplied 1,750 quantities of fruits and vegetables, and town people have contributed canned fruits, vegetables, and groceries of all kinds. Of course the committee has not been able to put a turkey or goose in each Christmas box, but there are sufficient varieties of foods in each to make it possible to prepare several very good meals.

The children are not being forgotten either. Christmas is supposed to be a time of rejoicing for the children and most of the poor children of Springfield will find some toys in their homes Christmas morning. Many organizations in the city have been gathering toys for distribution and a large number of toys were collected at the Methodist church cantata and pageant last night. People of the church having decided to bring them instead of an offering in many instances. The Baptist guild has also made and distributed many toys for the poor children.

A great deal of credit for the successful manner in which the city of Springfield has been able to handle her relief problem this winter must go to the relief committee organized under the direction of N. L. Pollard. They provided the independent nucleus around which the work could be centered. They provided a central depot for the concentration of the supplies, and have been very successful in securing the cooperation of local organizations in the management of the depot. Of course the organization was useless without the good will and cooperation of the contributors, but this has been maintained.

This committee maintains a record system of all needy people of Springfield and vicinity and are able to distribute equitably all necessary food and clothing. There has been no charity drive for finances here aside from the Red Cross and Salvation Army, the people preferring to share what they have with others and in this manner have been able to provide enough for all.

Pohl was elected president of the Cooking club of the Christian church at Springfield at the regular meeting and Christmas party of the ladies held last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. L. G.
