Republican for Sheriff Makes Statement of Qualifications and Proposed Policies

Methods by which C. A. (Tom) Swarts, candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Lane county proposes to reduce the cost of the office and to increase the efficiency of the same office if elected were outlined this week by the Springfield candidate.

"As a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Lane county, I submit the following statement:

"I was born at Marseilles, Illinois, February 22, 1887, moving to Goodland, Kansas, with my parents the same year. Attended public school there and at Lexington, Missouri, where I graduated from Wentworth Military academy in 1907. After graduation entered the employ of Rock Island railroad, in a clerical capacity where I remained until 1910. Resigned that position to come to Lane county in June of the same year. Was married in Kansas and have a wife and three daughters.

Farm Resident in 1910
"After coming to Oregon farmed until 1918 when I enlisted in the army and served with Company C, 216th field signal battalion.

"After being discharged from the army, returned to farming until 1922, then moved to Springfield to engage in the meat business with my father. Have served two three-year terms on the Board of Education in Springfield, being present chairman. The district's expenses have been reduced about $4000 for the coming year and the district is in good financial condition, its oldest warrants being dated February 29, 1932.

Has Army Record
"First lieutenant and commanding officer of Headquarters Company, First Battalion 162nd Infantry, Oregon National Guard for past six years.
"Have been active in fraternal circles of community for many years.
"Have been a taxpayer in Lane county for twenty years.

"If nominated and elected it is my desire to render the people of Lane county an efficient and economical administration. I believe that the cost of the office can be materially reduced by close personal supervision and care in the selection of deputies and clerks. A person working for the county should give the same service as they would for a business firm. By close co-operation with the state and city police the number of deputies can be reduced without sacrificing efficiency."

Experts In Favor Wooden Bridges

Savings Would Create Sizable Fund for Further Highway Construction Work

Seven sound reasons why many of the Oregon highway bridges should be built of wood rather than concrete are given in a letter which T. J. Starker, formerly of Corvallis, and now on the staff of the Penn State college forestry school, gives in a letter recently addressed to the Oregonian.

His reasons follow:
"Wood as a material for such structures as bridges has so many valuable properties that it should not be necessary to make any claims that cannot be thoroughly substantiated by scientific experimentation. The continued and increased use of wood, especially in such states as Oregon, should be called to the attention or even impressed upon the minds of all road-building agencies.

"(1) The fact that there are wooden bridges 45 to 65 years old in this country indicated their length of life and durability in service.

Cost is Only One-Half
"(2) The fact that this type of bridge can be built for approximately half or less than a concrete span of equal length should be in its favor.

"(3) The fact that the Southern Pacific Railway company traverses the same valleys as the Pacific highway, carrying tremendous loads on wooden trestles, indicates the safety of this type of construction.

"(4) The fact that Wyoming, a comparatively non-forested state, diverted $2,000,000 to the highway construction program the last biennium by changing to timber construction bridges, should recommend itself to a timbered state such as Oregon.

Wooden Spans Advertise
"(5) The fact that the difference between the cost of timber and other bridges could be used for more pavement and thus benefited more people, should be considered.

"(6) The fact that with the above savings the cement manufacturers could sell more barrels of cement for road construction than if the same money were used in bridge work should appeal to that class of manufacturers.

"(7) The fact that every wooden bridge built in Oregon is an advertisement to all visitors that the state believes in its own great product and is willing to use it should be of interest to every commercial body as well as every workman.

"Larger bridges and those subjected to heavy traffic should be built of concrete; but there is a vast field for the use of our own Douglas Fir in bridge building."

Here is a new way to arrange a scarf and it is such a simple trick that we wonder why no one ever thought of it before. It has appeared on a number of new dresses and is likely to appear on a good many more before many weeks have passed. But it is not necessary for you to buy a dress with this scarf arrangement when it is such a simple thing to add a scarf in this way to a dress that you already possess, and that stands in need of a new touch of trimming.

The scarf does not have to be a permanent part of the dress, either, because it is attached merely by means of buttonholes in the scarf and buttons on the dress.

You will need a piece of silk about a yard and a half long and nine inches wide to make the scarf, but you may piece it in the center if you do not want to buy a piece as long as this. Simply make a narrow machine stitched hem along the sides and one end of the scarf or finish with a hand rolled hem. Finish the unhemmed end with a facing an inch or more in width so as to provide a substantial place for your buttons. And then along the side of the dress where the scarf is attached make the necessary number of buttonholes.

McKenzie Valley

McKenzie Valley residents have taken advantage of the past week's splendid weather to get in some of their belated crops.

A few have just completed grain seeding, others are just now preparing and planting their corn fields.

The late gardens are also being planted. Heavy winds the past week have contributed toward rapid drying of the soil.

The Leaburg high school body presented their play, "Uncle Rube" Monday evening this week to a good audience. Receipts of $14.60 were reported.

The Waltherville C. E. society sponsored a program Thursday evening when Mrs. Clara Tuttle Fenton presented her pupils in recital.

The Waltherville Rebekahs are planning a program for Saturday evening, May 14. Several one-act plays, readings and music will be included in the program.

The Leaburg young people's class sponsored a splendid Mother's day program at their community church Sunday evening. Rev. Ralph Clark was also present and spoke to a large audience on the subject of "Mother."

Mrs. Fred Williams entertained a group of friends at "500" Saturday evening at her home near the Leaburg power plant.

DOCTOR'S OFFICES ARE RE-FINISHED THIS WEEK

All of the rooms in the offices of Dr. W. C. Rebhan, physician, have been refinished this week by Frank Fisher, local decorator. The waiting room, the reception room and the Doctor's office have been finished in gray with silver-gray trimming. The rest room, x-ray room, surgical room, supply room, dark room, and hallways have been finished in a buff color. All of the curtains and drapes have also been taken down and recleaned during the week.

SKATING PARTY WILL BE AT ARMORY TONIGHT

The third of a series of roller skating parties being held at the Eugene armory on Thursday evenings by members of Mrs. A. B. Van Valzah's Sunday school class and the Epworth League of the Methodist church will be held tonight it has been announced by Howard Hughes, chairman. This will probably be the final skating party of the season for the group.

Coburg Methodist "Fresh Paths Revealed by the Spirit" will be the sermon subject of Rev. Dean C. Poindexter at the Coburg Methodist church Sunday morning at 9:45. The young people will meet at 7 o'clock for a service with Ben Adair as their leader.

LIFT TRUST LAWS SAYS U. OF O. MAN

Holds Regulated Production Will Restore Confidence, Stability and Business

Editor's Note—The following article was written for the Springfield News by Jesse K. Bond, professor of Business Administration at the University of Oregon.

Trust and be saved. Surely the way to get bigger and better economic leaders does not consist in denying to those we already have a chance to plan and achieve concerted action.

Confidence and credit are based on prices and human character. Our business leaders are already sufficiently chastened, but with prices unstable or declining most leaders, owners and borrowers remain frightened. Like scared bank depositors they seek salvation in cash.

Banks Limit Withdrawals
Recently Urbana and Aurora, Illinois, saved their banks by establishing effective withdrawal quotas for depositors. Similarly each of our industries could treat its market like a bank and establish fair output or sales quotas for all its producers, so as not to break the market.

In the lumber industry such action has actually been planned but the leaders had to give it up for fear of hostile prosecutors and the anti-trust laws.

We, through our laws, refused these leaders the chance to save their industry. In this, as in other industries, each producer can reduce unit costs by capacity operation. Under present conditions of over-equipment and rapid changes in methods, capacity operation is not practicable for all, because it breaks the market. It is from the resulting destructive competition that a group of 122 business leaders recently asked a moratorium. It was refused because we do not trust them.

Provide Government Protection
It is perfectly feasible to grant their request and still assure ourselves all needed protection. Give the federal trade commission, or some similar authority representing consumers, power to approve plans for stabilization in each industry and to suspend the application of the anti-trust laws as long as the approval plans are followed in good faith. Give these approved plans such legal force as may be necessary to make them effective.

The mere announcement of such a policy by congress would start a vigorous economic recovery. Let's give our leaders the chance they ask for, and they will restore prices, wages and confidence.

Alcohol Serves Dual Purpose In Our Life

Beneficial and Harmful Uses of Liquor Contrasted by Junior High Student in Winning Essay on "Alcohol and Its Effects."

Note: This essay was written by Robert Knox in competition with other students at the Junior high school for prizes offered by the W. C. T. U. His essay won first place in Springfield and second prize in Lane county.

By ROBERT KNOX

We may well say that most everything in the world of science serves two purposes: One beneficial, and the other harmful. This is true of the automobile, which speeds up transportation, and yet takes a heavy toll of human lives; and it is true of airplanes, guns and fire. It is equally true of alcohol.

Alcohol serves mankind in many important ways. It may be given as medicine by a physician; it is a good antiseptic, and is widely used in hospitals; it is used in tincture of iodine; it is used as a rub by athletes to tone up tired and sore muscles. Its beneficial uses are unlimited.

Over-Indulgence Cause of Ban
But this same alcohol has many disastrous effects. The American people realized this when they framed the Eighteenth amendment to our constitution. The effects of alcohol are many and varied, but we may think of them affecting people biologically, socially, and economically.

When alcohol in any form is taken internally in small amounts it acts as a stimulant, and when used in larger quantities it acts as a narcotic. At first the heart beats more rapidly and the nerves are excited, but after a sufficient amount has been taken the individual is likely to become unconscious, and the ability to control his mind and body is lost. An interesting experiment was performed upon guinea pigs to determine the effects of drinking alcohol. It was found that the guinea pigs which were given alcohol had fewer young, were less healthy, that the offspring were deformed, and that the eyes of these animals and their organs of respiration were harmed. Similar effects can be expected by the individual who persists in drinking alcoholic beverages. That alcohol shortens life was definitely proved by studies made by 43 insurance companies of the U. S. and Canada. These studies covered 25 years and included two million people. So we see the dangerous bodily effects produced by liquor drinking.

Users Often Commit Crimes
Looking at the problem from another angle we see that the safety of society is endangered by the drinker, for it makes people do things that are wrong, and it may cause them to commit crimes. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children found that 90 per cent of the cases which came to its attention were due to alcohol. Many times insanity is the result of habitual drinking.

Lastly, we must consider the fact that drinking causes poverty, because men and women buy alcohol with money which may be needed for food, and other necessities. Because people who drink cannot be trusted to do their work well it makes it difficult for the drinker to secure or hold a steady position.

Thus we see that alcohol, which has many beneficial uses, may, if used wrongly bring about harmful biological, social and economic effects.

Would the drink habit help me to become a good doctor? From the reasons which I have given, one can easily see that alcohol drinking will greatly hinder success in this, and other professions, trades and jobs.
