Moffitt Is Given O.K. By Moore

Present County School Superintendent Issues Statement in Behalf of Local Man

Support for the candidacy of Laurence C. Moffitt, seeking the Republican nomination for the county school superintendent position was increased Wednesday when E. J. Moore, present holder of the office issued the following statement.

"This is to certify that Laurence C. Moffitt has been Assistant County School Superintendent since November, 1930, and has become thoroughly familiar with the districts and the work carried on by the County School Superintendent in the office. I consider him well qualified for the office, having had about six years experience in country and city schools and he has made a decided success in handling them in this office and is 'on to the ropes.' I consider him well qualified for the duties of County School Superintendent and while I do not presume to hand down my office to my successor, as that would be against the principles of suffrage, I do consider him well qualified for the position and the office of School Superintendent could not be left in any better hands."

Hosts at Party — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennett were hosts at their home Saturday for two tables of 500. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Meats, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Morton were their guests.

New Education Plan Explained

State Board Outlines Offerings at Six Units of System for High School Students

Salem, May 19—Final allocation of work in the Oregon State System of Higher Education has just been announced to all of the high schools of the state. A poster sets out in outline form the offerings of the six units of the system at Ashland, Corvallis, Eugene, La Grande, Monmouth and Portland.

The poster presents the offerings of the system in three main divisions—the degree-granting schools, the lower division training and the preparation for teaching.

The degree-granting schools are located at Corvallis, Eugene, and Portland. At Corvallis will be degree curricula in agriculture, engineering, and mechanical arts, forestry, home economics, pharmacy and science. At Eugene will be business administration, fine arts, journalism, law, the school of literature, languages and arts, physical education and social sciences. The school of medicine is located at Portland, while approved work for admission to the medical school is offered at both Corvallis and Eugene. Curricula in nursing education are also offered under the supervision of the medical school.

Lower Division Similar

As to lower division, the poster states that unspecialized freshman and sophomore work is offered on essentially the same basis at both Eugene and Corvallis, to provide a broad foundation of general education needed by any student. Students undecided as to their later specialty may thus register on either campus, though those who have determined on their major curricula are advised to start where the school of their choice is located.

Lower division, or the first two years' work, is offered on essentially the same basis at both Eugene and Corvallis for the degree schools of business administration, fine arts, home economics, journalism, physical education, science, social sciences and literature, language and art. Necessary service courses in these same fields are provided on both campuses for the students in the technical and professional schools.

Under "Preparation for Teaching"

Under "Preparation for Teaching" the poster lists high school teacher training as being provided on a parallel basis for assigned specialties at both Corvallis and Eugene. At Eugene will be general education courses, training for educational administrators, and the training of teachers of literature, languages, arts, music, physical education, business administration, the social sciences and approved combination of subjects. At Corvallis will be the training of teachers for the biological and physical sciences, mathematics, agriculture, home economics, industrial arts, educational and vocational guidance and approved combination of subjects. The two-year course in secretarial training at Corvallis combined with the usual teacher training requirements will qualify students for the teaching of secretarial subjects.

Elementary teacher training is provided at Ashland, LaGrande and Monmouth on a comparable basis through two-year curricula leading to the state normal school diploma. This entitles graduates to teach in elementary schools.

Thurston

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bonney and daughter, Shirley Mae, spent Wednesday night at Mrs. Bonney's parents home, Mr. and Mrs. John Edmiston. They left Thursday for McKenzie Bridge to spend the summer where Mr. Bonney has employment in the forest service.

Mrs. John Price had her arm broken a few days ago by being struck by a car.

Mrs. Lewis has returned to her daughter's, Mrs. George Platt, after visiting several months with relatives near Portland.

Mrs. Bertha Herrington from Klammath Falls is here visiting her daughters, Mrs. William Henson, and Mrs. Hubert Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Turel from Port Orford spent Monday night with friends here.

Miss Hazel Edmiston left Tuesday morning for Portland to spend a few days with friends and relatives there.

SQUIRREL POISONING TIME IS EXTENDED

The time by which poisoning squirrels on neglected land must be completed by rodent control supervisors has been extended from May 15 to June 15, according to County Agent O. S. Fletcher. The extension of time was made on account of the rainy, backward spring that has delayed squirrel poisoning work.

During the past week three additional rodent control supervisors have been appointed by the county court. There are now 88 supervisors serving in 87 school districts of the county.

The county agent states that considering the weather, the campaign against the grey digger ground squirrels is progressing well in most parts of the county. He urges that all people who have not poisoned squirrels on their property do so at once so as to prevent migration of young squirrels.

THINGS

I know a young man who had a good job up to a few months ago. He spent money liberally while he had it, but was always unhappy.

Now he is earning barely enough to pay the rent of a cheap room and provide a couple of modest meals a day, and he is happier, tells me, than when he had plenty.

"I haven't so many THINGS to worry about," he said. "I've more time to think, to read, to listen to music, to look at pictures; and I've come to the conclusion that the principal trouble of most people in these days is that they've never learned to get along without THINGS."

I think my young friend is right. Things are of value only as they are useful to people, but too much use of things makes us dependent upon them; we become slaves of the machine. We give so much thought to many things which are, after all, only toys or means of gratifying our vanity, that we don't have time left for the enduring values that come from thought and reflection.

ALICE

Mrs. Alice Liddell Hargreaves, 80 years old, the original little Alice for whom Lewis Carroll wrote "Alice in Wonderland" seventy years ago, found New York so topsy-turvy, measured by her English standards, that it reminded her of the mythical adventures of her fictional namesake.

Next to writing a book that lives forever, there must be a great satisfaction in having inspired it. "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass" have delighted generations of children and their elders as well.

The Reverend Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, who wrote these books under the name of "Lewis Carroll," was a great mathematician and student. He wrote ponderous tomes that nobody but a mathematician could understand and that everybody has forgotten. But as long as human nature remains what it is, as it has remained from the beginning of time, "Alice" and her adventures will be read.

It seems to me that giving the world enduring enjoyment is a greater achievement than solving the most profound problem in mathematics.

LAUNDRIES

A friend showed me the other day a list of thirty-seven different chemicals which are used in the laundry and dry-cleaning industry. After looking over the list, which ran from acetic acid to zinc, I began to understand why my collars, come back with saw-edged and my shirts full of holes!

Another friend showed me a new machine for dry-cleaning which he believes will revolutionize that industry. It uses no gasoline or other inflammable material, so it can be installed anywhere, and it will clean a suit of clothes in fifteen minutes. In London, he told me, where he found this machine, you can drop into a shop, sit in a closed booth while your suit is being cleaned and pressed, and get out in twenty minutes at a cost of two shillings sixpence (half a crown) with a fresh, new-looking suit.

Considering that cleanliness is quite a modern idea and soap one of humanity's most recent inventions, it is amazing to regard the amount of money we spend to keep ourselves and our garments clean and it is not at all surprising that we are still careless about smoking chimneys and street dirt and other things which run up our laundry bills.

BOOTH

I saw a letter the other day from Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America; telling of the strain under which the people of his organization is laboring to help the out-of-work and distressed. The same day I passed by the national headquarters of the Salvation Army, where his sister, Evangeline Booth, is leading in the same sort of unselfish effort to help the down and out. It struck me, as it has struck me many times, that the nearest that any great body of people in this country come to living up to the teaching of Christ, the teaching of selflessness and the helping hand, is found in those two great organizations.

And to me it is something to think about that the leaders who are carrying on this work are the son and daughter of a Jew, "General" William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, who started life as a pawnbroker's apprentice.

It has always been the case that great men and women rise from the crowd by the force of their own courage and belief in themselves. And what makes them great is their ability to lead the crowd to higher aims and loftier purposes.

CHICAGO

My Chicago friends are getting enthusiastic over the World's Fair they are going to next year. They call it the "Century of Progress Exposition," and from what George King and others tell me it's going to be worth anybody's time to visit it. One interesting feature will be a group of Lincoln buildings, duplicating the Kentucky log cabin in which Lincoln was born, the Indian cabin in which he spent his boyhood, the store in which he was a partner at New Salem, Ill., the Rutledge Tavern where his boyhood sweetheart, Ann Rutledge, lived, and the "Wigwam" in which he was first nominated for the presidency.

I always enjoy visiting Chicago, whether there is a celebrating going on there or not. It is the most typically American city we have. I get the impression always that Chicago may not know where she's going but she's surely going somewhere. I don't think any American's education can be considered complete without a visit in Chicago long enough to get the spirit of the place.

Next year will be the biggest year for Chicago since 1893, and everybody who can ought to plan now to go there then.

RETAIL PRICES ON MILK DROPS

Distributors Announce Eight Cent Price for Springfield Effective on Tuesday

Retail milk prices in Springfield took a sharp decline Tuesday morning when one of the smaller distributors began delivering milk at eight cents a quart. All other distributors in the city soon followed the lead and by noon the prevailing prices were eight and five cents for quarts and pints respectively. Eugene milk prices are unchanged.

Officials of the Springfield Creamery declared yesterday that the reduction of milk prices to a level below pre-war prices was made necessary by competition and was not an indication that costs of producing and distributing the product had dropped to such a low level.

New low prices for ice cream were also announced at the Creamery recently. Ice cream is now selling for 29 cents in quart size brick cartons, and for 15 cents in pints. Low prices now being offered for cream and a large reduction in the percentage of profit have made the new prices possible. A considerable quantity of the ice cream and local butter is now being sold in 24 ounce stores.

Low prices for butter are not only a local according to the creamery men. The condition exists up and down the Pacific coast and as far east as the Atlantic seaboard. Many people are not able to purchase butter now, and in many Middle Western states farmers began feeding their grain to their cows when the grain prices were slashed thinking they would be able to market the butterfat. This market has been gradually filled and prices have been reduced, says the creamery officials.

COUNTY CHAMBER TO MEET AT FLORENCE

Florence will be hosts to the Lane County Chamber of Commerce at an all-day meeting Saturday of this week. Opening of the coast highway to travel and the Pomona Grange annual picnic are two other events which will bring many visitors to the coast city.

Several Springfield business men have indicated their intention of attending the County Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Upper Willamette

The Pleasant Hill grade school closed Wednesday, May 18, with a picnic for the children, parents and friends. A program was given in the morning and a basket dinner at noon.

The annual cleanup day for those interested in the Pleasant Hill cemetery will be held Thursday, May 19. The men are to come with tools to work and the women will furnish lunch at noon.

Mrs. Boyd Walker and son of Reedsport are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jordan and family. Mrs. Walker is a niece of Mr. Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams of California visited with the Jamesons this week.

The seniors of the Pleasant Hill high school had their sneak day Thursday, going to Winchester Bay for a fishing trip.

Douglas Kabler, who is attending Monmouth spent the week-end with his parents at Pleasant Hill.

The members of the Intermediate Endeavor society went on a picnic and hike up Lost Creek last Sunday.

Hills Creek baseball team was defeated 9 to 4 by the Redskins in a game held Sunday at Pleasant Hill.

Plans are under way for the Pleasant Hill annual picnic to be held Saturday, June 4, under the auspices of the Pleasant Hill Sunday school. Mrs. Beulah Carrothers is in charge.

Daughter Born—Mr. and Mrs. Chet Glendenning of the Willakenzie district are the parents of a 10 pound baby daughter born to them at their home Friday, May 13, 1932.

MOTT ACCUSED OF 'INVERTING TRUTH'

Hawley Declared Author of O. & C. Land Grant Bill by Which Counties Profit

Branding printed statements made in behalf of James W. Mott, candidate for congress, as deliberate falsehoods and "inverted truth," Ronald Glover and Claude E. Ingalls, supporters of Congressman W. C. Hawley issued a statement today in regard to the O. & C. land grant, of which this county receives thousands of dollars in tax money. They point out for the first time that Congressman Hawley was the author of the O. & C. land grant bill instead of Senator Stanfield and that Mott had nothing to do with it.

Their statement in part follows: "Senator Robert N. Stanfield was active in the support of this legislation and there is no attempt in this article in statement of fact to deprive him of any credit to which he is justly entitled. He introduced legislation similar to the Hawley bill in the Senate, but his bill was adversely reported upon by the Secretary of the Interior and did not become a law. Representative Hawley is deliberate and careful at all times and carefully prepares the way for legislation of the importance of this measure. He had as his colleague in the House from Oregon at the time, the late Nicholas J. Sinnott, who was then Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands of the House. There was the finest co-operation at all times between Representative Hawley and Sinnott on matters affecting the interests of Oregon, and particularly so in this instance. Knowing the opposition of the administration to the Stanfield measure, Representative Hawley and Sinnott first set about to overcome that opposition, knowing that a veto of the measure by President Coolidge, should it pass Congress, would undoubtedly mean its death, as it could not be passed over a veto.

"Accordingly conferences were held with the president and his cabinet advisors by Representatives Hawley, Sinnott and others, and the position there silenced or modified. Mr. Hawley introduced the bill, it was referred to Representative Sinnott's Committee on Public Lands. Mr. Hawley and Mr. Sinnott with Oregon citizens interested in the legislation immediately contacted members of the House to secure support of the measure when it came to a vote there. Mr. Sinnott had the matter favorably reported by his committee to the House and as chairman of the committee valiantly supported his report on the floor of the House and with Mr. Hawley secured sufficient support to pass it by the House and send it to the Senate, where it was substituted for the Stanfield measure, passed the Senate, and became a law by the approval of President Coolidge."

Manufacturers of swords report that business is pretty good. Prices are low and military schools are taking full advantage of the situation.
